Analysis of Mississippi Administrative Office of Courts (AOC) Dataset on Criminal Dispositions 1994-2017 to Determine Demographics of Individuals Convicted of Certain Disfranchising Felonies

Was Juh.

Purpose of Analysis

The purpose of this analysis is to estimate the total number and racial demographics of individuals convicted of disfranchising crimes in Mississippi from 1994-2017, excluding murder and rape, which were not part of the original list of disfranchising crimes in the 1890 Constitution.

Overall Results

Estimated Number of Individuals Convicted of Disfranchising Crimes (Excluding Murder and Rape):

43,903

By Race:

American Indian: 0.06%

Asian: 0.15%

Black: 59.2%

Hispanic: 0.04%

White: 38.14%

Other: 0.30%

Unknown: 1.62%

No Data: 0.49%

Methodology

Data Source

Data reflecting the criminal dispositions in Mississippi from 1994-2017 is made available by the Mississippi Administrative Office of Courts (AOC). Data was made available via an electronic Excel spreadsheet file, herein the "AOC spreadsheet".<sup>1</sup>

Selection of Offense and Disposition Categories

For this analysis, the specific criminal dispositions that the Secretary of State has deemed to be reflective of a criminal conviction have been taken from a list provided by that office. These criminal dispositions are repeated in Appendix 1.

The specific offenses that have been determined by the Secretary of State to fall within the umbrella of the disenfranchising crimes were also taken from a list provided by that office. These offenses are repeated in Appendix 2.<sup>2</sup>

Removal of Murder and Rape from Offense Categories

Entries reflecting convictions for murder and rape were excluded from the population examined in this analysis. This was done at the request of counsel, who has explained that this analysis is focused on people convicted of the disenfranchising crimes that are still in effect from the original list in the 1890 Constitution. He has explained that murder and rape were not part of that original list but were added later in 1968. (He also explained that burglary was part of the original 1890 list but was removed by amendment in 1950). The murder-rape entries include all categories of capital murder, murder, rape, and statutory rape, as well as an offense category labeled "homicide; killing of an unborn quick child," all of which were included in the Secretary's list of specific offenses. Eliminating these various categories reduced the number of offense categories used to filter data in the AOC spreadsheet from 99 to 71. This list of all remaining offenses is contained in Appendix 3.

Omission of Individuals Convicted of Shoplifting

One of the offense categories in the Secretary of State's list is "Felony Shoplifting," which presumably falls under the umbrella of theft. However, there is no category of "felony shoplifting" in the AOC spreadsheet. Instead, there is only "shoplifting" which does not clearly differentiate between a felony and misdemeanor conviction. Accordingly, shoplifting convictions are omitted from this analysis.

Filtering Stages

Two stages of filtering were applied as the first steps in narrowing data in the AOC spreadsheet. First, data in Column Y "Name of Sentencing Offense" of the AOC spreadsheet was filtered for the relevant offense categories (See Appendix 3). This reduced the total number of rows in the spreadsheet from 690,976 to 161,066. The resulting filtered list was transferred to an Excel workbook for further analysis.

&lt;sup>2</sup> The disenfranchising crimes listed in the current version of the Section 241 of the Mississippi Constitution are "murder, rape, bribery, theft, arson, obtaining money or goods under false pretense, perjury, embezzlement, or bigamy." The Secretary of State's list reflects specific offenses that the Secretary deems to fall within the crimes listed in Section 241.

Second, data in Column U "Disposition" of the Excel workbook was filtered for the relevant 22 disposition categories (See Appendix 1). This reduced the total number of rows in the workbook from 161,066 to 76,534. The resulting filtered list was transferred to a second sheet in the Excel workbook for further analysis.

Creation of a Unique Identifier for De-Duplication

The spreadsheet provided by the AOC duplicates some individuals. For example, a particular individual may be listed multiple times if he was convicted of multiple counts, or if multiple entries were made to reflect different stages of his case (such as conviction and sentencing), or if he was convicted of different crimes at different times. The AOC spreadsheet does not include a unique identifier or code for each individual.

To prevent duplication and potential error in results of this analysis, an Excel formula was created to de-duplicate the list.

Three data elements from the AOC spreadsheet were selected to use in combination as unique personally identifying information: Column D "Last Name", Column E "First Name", and Column J "Date of Birth". All of the rows in the AOC spreadsheet results used for this analysis contained data for last and first names, and approximately 96.4% retained data for date of birth.

Example of Unique Identifier: "SMITHJOHN01/01/90"

After a unique identifier was created for individuals, an Advanced Filter was applied to Column K "Unique ID". Data was "filtered in-place" for "unique records only" to generate a list of unique individuals. This Advanced Filter function is designed to search for unique records while filtering out duplicate references to the unique record. Therefore, if the unique individual "SMITHJOHN01/01/90" appears 6 times in the AOC spreadsheet, it will be counted only once after applying an Advanced Filter for Unique Records Only. To double check that the "filter in-place" function produced an accurate de-duplication result, Excel Advanced Filter also provides a function that allows the user to copy "unique records only" to a different location in the spreadsheet, thus extracting the list rather than filtering it in place. This process produced the same de-duplication result. These steps were repeated a second time in a separate spreadsheet to reproduce results.

Results of De-duplication

&lt;sup>3</sup> Lacking any other data that is both unique to individuals and ubiquitous, last name, first name and date of birth presents the best option. However, errors may exist. For instance, if a name or date of birth is entered correctly for one entry and incorrectly for another entry of the same individual, the individual would be counted more than once. Or if a person is listed under two different names for different events, he would be counted more than once. Individuals who coincidentally share the same last name, first name and date of birth may be undercounted.

The total number of rows prior to the de-duplication process is 76,534.

After the process of creating a unique identifier and eliminating duplication of such identifiers, the total estimated number is 43,903.

Individuals without a Date of Birth Listed

A total of 2,734 entries in the AOC spreadsheet contain no date of birth and a significant share of these entries lack racial demographic data. Of the 2,734 entries, 791 are black, 630 are white, 1157 are unknown, 147 are blank for race, and 9 are other races. Because of the difficulty of de-duplication, and the absence of racial data for many of these entries, those have not been de-duplicated and have been omitted from the analysis.

Results of Analysis

Using the methodology described in this report, below is the total estimated number and racial demographics of people convicted in Mississippi from 1994 – 2017 of the disenfranchising crimes from the original 1890 list that remain in effect today:

Estimated Number of Disenfranchised Individuals: 43,903

Data for unique individuals includes ethnicity, as provided in the AOC spreadsheet. The results are as follows:
