DECLARATION OF PAUL ROLF JENSEN IN SUPPORT OF DEFENDANTS ROGER J. STONE AND STOP THE STEAL'S
OPPOSITION TO MOTION FOR TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER AND/OR PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

I, PAUL ROLF JENSEN, hereby declare as follows:

1. I am an attorney at law, duly licensed to practice before the Supreme Courts of the United States and of the State of California, as well as other federal courts, and am prepared to immediately file an application for admission pro hac vice in this case on behalf of Roger Stone and Stop the Steal.

2. Last Thursday I appeared for these same defendants, and opposite these same lawyers for Plaintiff Arizona Democratic Party, in United States District Court in Phoenix, where the identical relief was sought there as they are seeking here. On Friday, the Arizona Court issued its ruling. Attached hereto as Exhibit 1 is a true copy of that Order. So that the Court may see the identical nature of the complaint and motion there, I attach true copies of these as well, as follows: Exhibit 2: Plaintiff's Complaint; Exhibit 3: Plaintiff's Motion for a Restraining Order; Exhibit 4: Plaintiff's Memorandum of Law in Support of Motion for a Restraining Order; Exhibit 5: Plaintiff's Proposed Order; Exhibit 6: Declaration of Gronski in Support of Motion for a Restraining Order; Exhibit 7: Declaration of Mellman in Support of Motion for a Restraining Order.
2. Last Friday, in litigation brought by these same plaintiffs' lawyers identical in almost every respect to our litigation here in Pennsylvania, the District Court, without participation from Rogert Stone and Stop the Steal, GRANTED plaintiff Ohio Democratic Party the same injunction they are seeking in this case. Yesterday, Defendant Trump campaign sought an emergency stay of that injunction before the Sixth Circuit, and I filed a joinder in that emergency motion, and asked for the same relief.
3. At approximately 10:45 this morning Pacific Time I received the Order of the Sixth Circuit, which I attach hereto as Exhibit 8, staying that injunction.

I hereby declare under penalty of perjury of the laws of the United States, and of California, that the foregoing is true and correct of my own personal knowledge and that if called upon, I would and could so competently testify.

Executed at Costa Mesa, California on November 6, 2016

No. CV-16-03752-PHX-JJT

ORDER

15 In response to what it alleges to be a call for the intimidation of voters in next 16 week's presidential election by Donald J. Trump for President, Inc. ("Trump 17 Campaign"), the Arizona Republican Party ("ARP"), Roger J. Stone, Jr., and Stop the 18 Steal, Inc., the Arizona Democratic Party ("ADP") filed this lawsuit a mere eight days 19 before the election. Plaintiff ADP seeks injunctive relief for violations of the Ku Klux 20 Klan Act of 1871, 42 U.S.C. § 1985(3), and Section 11(b) of Voting Rights Act of 1965, 21 52 U.S.C. § 10307(b). (Doc. 1, Compl.) After the Court set an expedited briefing and 22 hearing schedule (Doc. 7), Plaintiff filed a Motion for Temporary Restraining Order 23 and/or Preliminary Injunction (Doc. 10, Mot.), Defendants ARP and the Trump 24 Campaign filed a Response (Doc. 15, GOP Resp.), and Plaintiff filed a Reply thereto 25 (Doc. 22, Reply to GOP).

26 Plaintiff was only able to serve Defendant Stop the Steal on November 2, 2016
27 (Doc. 19), the day its Response to Plaintiff's Motion would have been due, and Plaintiff 28 did not file a certificate of service with regard to Defendant Mr. Stone prior to the

1 Hearing (see Doc. 22-1). On November 3, 2016, the Court held a Hearing on Plaintiff's
2 Motion. (Doc. 24.) Stop the Steal and Mr. Stone appeared through counsel at the Hearing 3 for the purpose of contesting both service and the Court's jurisdiction over them in this 4 matter. The Court denied Stop the Steal's motion to dismiss and reserved judgment on 5 that of Mr. Stone. (Doc. 24.) The Court heard evidence and argument from all parties on 6 Plaintiff's Motion and ordered briefing from Stop the Steal. (Doc. 24.) On November 4, 7 2016, Stop the Steal and Mr. Stone filed a Response (Doc. 27, STS Resp.), and Plaintiff
8 filed a Reply thereto (Doc. 28, Reply to STS).

9 Considering all the evidence and arguments of the parties and for the reasons that 10 follow, the Court will deny Mr. Stone's Motion to Dismiss (Doc. 24) and deny Plaintiff's 11 Motion for Temporary Restraining Order and/or Preliminary Injunction (Doc. 10).

12 I. LEGAL ANALYSIS

13 A. Standing

14 To bring a judicable lawsuit into Federal Court, Article III of the Constitution 15 requires that one have "the core component of standing." Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife, 16 504 U.S. 555, 560 (1992). To satisfy Article III's standing requirements, a plaintiff must 17 show that he suffered a "concrete and particularized" injury that is "fairly traceable to the 18 challenged action of the defendant," and that a favorable decision would likely redress 19 the injury. Friends of the Earth, Inc. v. Laidlaw Environmental Servs. (TOC), Inc., 528
20 U.S. 167, 180 (2000). In the complaint, the plaintiff must "alleg[e] specific facts 21 sufficient" to establish standing. Schmier v. U.S. Court of Appeals for Ninth Circuit, 279
22 F.3d 817, 821 (9th Cir. 2002). Accordingly, courts should dismiss a plaintiff's complaint 23 if he has failed to provide facts sufficient to establish standing. See, e.g., Chandler v.
24 State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 598 F.3d 1115, 1123 (9th Cir. 2010).

25 An organization has standing "to seek judicial relief from injury to itself and to 26 vindicate whatever rights and immunities the association itself may enjoy." Warth v.
27 Seldin, 422 U.S. 490, 511 (1975). An organization also has "associational standing" to 28 bring suit on behalf of its members "when its members would otherwise have standing to 1 sue in their own right, the interests at stake are germane to the organization's purpose, 2 and neither the claim asserted nor the relief requested requires the participation of 3 individual members in the lawsuit." Friends of the Earth, Inc., 528 U.S. at 181 (citing 4 Hunt v. Wash. State Apple Adver. Comm'n, 432 U.S. 333, 343 (1977)).

5 In the Complaint, Plaintiff alleges it has standing to bring this action both on 6 behalf of itself and its members "because it is supporting many candidates in the 7 Presidential, Senate, House, and numerous statewide elections" and will suffer immediate 8 and irreparable injury if Defendants' alleged conspiracy to intimidate voters "succeeds in 9 disrupting or changing the results of the election." (Compl. ¶ 14.) This is sufficient to 10 establish Plaintiff's standing, see Crawford v. Marion Cnty. Election Bd., 553 U.S. 181, 11 189 n.7 (2008), and Defendants do not challenge Plaintiff's standing to bring its claims in 12 this matter.

13 B. Mr. Stone's Motion to Dismiss for Lack of Service and Jurisdiction

14 At the Hearing, Mr. Stone, through counsel, moved to dismiss Plaintiff's claims 15 against him for lack of service and lack of jurisdiction.¹ (Tr. at 43.) Since then, Plaintiff 16 has filed a certificate of service with regard to Mr. Stone (Doc. 26), so the Court will 17 deny as moot his motion with regard to service. The Court addresses his motion with 18 regard to jurisdiction here.

19 In order for a federal court to adjudicate a matter, it must have jurisdiction over the 20 parties. Ins. Corp. of Ir. v. Compagnie des Bauxites de Guinee, 456 U.S. 694, 701 (1982).
21 The party bringing the action has the burden of establishing that personal jurisdiction 22 exists. Kokkonen v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 511 U.S. 375, 377 (1994) (citing 23 McNutt v. Gen. Motors Acceptance Corp., 298 U.S. 178, 182-83 (1936)); Data Disc, Inc.
24 v. Sys. Tech. Assocs., Inc., 557 F.2d 1280, 1285 (9th Cir. 1977). When a defendant 25 moves, prior to trial, to dismiss a complaint for lack of personal jurisdiction, the plaintiff 26 must "come forward with facts, by affidavit or otherwise, supporting personal 27

28 ¹ The Court denied a similar motion brought by Defendant Stop the Steal at the Hearing. (Tr. at 52.)

2 Sys., Inc. v. Jobar Int’l, Inc., 551 F.2d 784, 787 (9th Cir. 1977)).

3 Because there is no statutory method for resolving the question of personal 4 jurisdiction, “the mode of determination is left to the trial court.” Data Disc, 557 F.2d at 5 1285 (citing Gibbs v. Buck, 307 U.S. 66, 71-72 (1939)). Where, as here, a court resolves 6 the question of personal jurisdiction upon motions and supporting documents, the 7 plaintiff “must make only a prima facie showing of jurisdictional facts through the 8 submitted materials in order to avoid a defendant’s motion to dismiss.” Id. In determining 9 whether the plaintiff has met that burden, the “uncontroverted allegations in [the 10 plaintiff’s] complaint must be taken as true, and conflicts between the facts contained in 11 the parties’ affidavits must be resolved in [the plaintiff’s] favor.” Rio Props., Inc. v. Rio 12 Int’l Interlink, 284 F.3d 1007, 1019 (9th Cir. 2002) (citation omitted).

13 To establish personal jurisdiction over a nonresident defendant, a plaintiff must 14 show that the forum state’s long-arm statute confers jurisdiction over the defendant and 15 that the exercise of jurisdiction comports with constitutional principles of due process.
16 Id.; Omeluk v. Langsten Slip & Batbyggeri A/S, 52 F.3d 267, 269 (9th Cir. 1995).
17 Arizona’s long-arm statute allows the exercise of personal jurisdiction to the same extent 18 as the United States Constitution. See Ariz. R. Civ. Proc. 4.2(a); Cybersell v. Cybersell, 19 130 F.3d 414, 416 (9th Cir. 1997); A. Uberti & C. v. Leonardo, 892 P.2d 1354, 1358 20 (Ariz. 1995) (stating that under Rule 4.2(a), “Arizona will exert personal jurisdiction over 21 a nonresident litigant to the maximum extent allowed by the federal constitution”). Thus, 22 a court in Arizona may exercise personal jurisdiction over a nonresident defendant so 23 long as doing so accords with constitutional principles of due process. Cybersell, 130 24 F.3d at 416.

25 Due process requires that a nonresident defendant have sufficient minimum 26 contacts with the forum state so that “maintenance of the suit does not offend ‘traditional 27 notions of fair play and substantial justice.’” Int’l Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310, 28 316 (1945) (quoting Milliken v. Meyer, 311 U.S. 457, 463 (1940)); see also Data Disc,

1 557 F.2d at 1287. Courts recognize two bases for personal jurisdiction within the 2 confines of due process: “(1) ‘general jurisdiction’ which arises when a defendant’s 3 contacts with the forum state are so pervasive as to justify the exercise of jurisdiction 4 over the defendant in all matters;² and (2) ‘specific jurisdiction’ which arises out of the 5 defendant’s contacts with the forum state giving rise to the subject litigation.” Birder v.
6 Jockey’s Guild, Inc., 444 F. Supp. 2d 1005, 1008 (C.D. Cal. 2006).

7 Here, Plaintiff contends that the Court has specific jurisdiction over Mr. Stone 8 through his actions in conjunction with and as a volunteer for Stop the Steal. The issue of 9 whether specific jurisdiction will lie turns on the extent of the defendant’s contacts with 10 the forum and the degree to which the plaintiff’s suit is related to those contacts. Yahoo!
11 Inc. v. La Ligue Contre Le Racisme Et L’Antisemitisme, 433 F.3d 1199, 1210 (9th Cir.
12 2006). The Ninth Circuit uses the following approach in making this evaluation: (1) the 13 nonresident defendant must do some act in or consummate some transaction with the 14 forum, or perform some act by which it purposefully avails itself of the privilege of 15 conducting activities in the forum, thereby invoking the benefits and protections of its 16 laws; (2) the claim must be one which arises out of or results from the defendant’s forum-17 related activities; and (3) exercise of jurisdiction must be reasonable. Data Disc, 557 F.2d 18 at 1287. All three requirements must be satisfied for the exercise of jurisdiction to 19 comport with constitutional principles of due process. Omeluk, 52 F.3d at 270. The 20 plaintiff bears the burden of establishing the first two prongs of the test. Schwarzenegger 21 v. Fred Martin Motor Co., 374 F.3d 797, 802 (9th Cir. 2004). If the plaintiff does so, the 22 burden shifts to the defendant to set forth a “compelling case” that the exercise of 23 jurisdiction would be unreasonable. Mavrix Photo, Inc. v. Brand Tech’s, Inc., 647 F.3d 24 1218, 1228 (9th Cir. 2011) (citing Burger King Corp. v. Rudzewicz, 471 U.S. 462, 476-78 25 (1985)).

26
27 28 ² Plaintiff does not attempt to provide facts to support a finding of general jurisdiction over Mr. Stone.

1 With regard to the first element, the plaintiff must show the defendant “either (1) 2 ‘purposefully availed’ himself of the privilege of conducting activities in the forum, or 3 (2) ‘purposefully directed’ his activities toward the forum.” Pebble Beach Co. v. Caddy, 4 453 F.3d 1151, 1155 (9th Cir. 2006) (quoting Schwarzenegger, 374 F.3d at 802). The 5 Ninth Circuit has explained that in cases involving tortious conduct, as here, the 6 purposeful direction analysis is most commonly applied. Mavrix Photo, 647 F.3d at 1228.
7 Purposeful direction is determined by using the “effects” test that was developed in 8 Calder v. Jones, 465 U.S. 783, 789-90 (1984). The effects test requires that “the 9 defendant allegedly must have (1) committed an intentional act, (2) expressly aimed at 10 the forum state, (3) causing harm that the defendant knows is likely to be suffered in the 11 forum state.” Yahoo!, at 1206.

12 A defendant’s intentional act in the forum state does not necessarily have to be 13 wrongful or tortious. “In any personal jurisdiction case we must evaluate all of a 14 defendant’s contacts with the forum state, whether or not those contacts involve wrongful 15 activity by the defendant.” Yahoo!, 433 F.3d at 1207. Courts must consider “the extent of 16 the defendant’s contacts with the forum and the degree to which the plaintiff’s suit is 17 related to those contacts. A strong showing on one axis will permit a lesser showing on 18 the other.” Id. at 1210.

19 Plaintiff alleges and proffers some evidence that Mr. Stone and Stop the Steal have 20 “engaged in the recruitment of individuals to come into the State of Arizona for the 21 purpose of engaging in election monitoring and exit poll activities on Election Day in 22 Arizona,” including signing up 107 volunteers as of November 1, 2016, and that 23 Mr. Stone has publicly and repeatedly tied himself to Stop the Steal. (Tr. at 47-50; Reply 24 to STS at 3-6.) Though Mr. Stone’s counsel argued that Mr. Stone is distinct from Stop 25 the Steal in terms of these actions (Tr. at 46), Mr. Stone produced no evidence to 26 contradict Plaintiff’s evidence. The Court finds that, through the acts of recruiting and 27 organizing exit poll takers to come to Arizona polling places, Mr. Stone has sufficient 28 contacts with Arizona. Furthermore, it is undisputed that Plaintiff’s claims arise from 1 those contacts. Because Mr. Stone made no argument that the Court's exercise of 2 jurisdiction would be unreasonable, the Court finds it has jurisdiction over Mr. Stone in 3 this matter. Accordingly, the Court will deny Mr. Stone's oral motion to dismiss on that 4 basis.

5 C. Plaintiff's Motion for Injunctive Relief

6 The Supreme Court has observed that "a preliminary injunction is an extraordinary 7 and drastic remedy, one that should not be granted unless the movant, by a clear showing, 8 carries the burden of persuasion." Mazurek v. Armstrong, 520 U.S. 968, 972 (1997) 9 (internal quotation and citation omitted). "A plaintiff seeking a preliminary injunction 10 must establish that he is likely to succeed on the merits, that he is likely to suffer 11 irreparable harm in the absence of preliminary relief, that the balance of equities tips in 12 his favor, and that an injunction is in the public interest." Winter v. Natural Res. Def.
13 Council, Inc., 555 U.S. 7, 20 (2008) (citations omitted); see also Garcia v. Google, Inc., 14 786 F.3d 733, 740 (9th Cir. 2015). The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, employing a 15 sliding scale analysis, has also stated that, where there are "serious questions going to the 16 merits" such that a plaintiff has not necessarily demonstrated a "likelihood of success," "a 17 hardship balance that tips sharply toward the plaintiff can support issuance of an 18 injunction, assuming the other two elements of the Winter test are also met." Drakes Bay 19 Oyster Co. v. Jewell, 747 F.3d 1073, 1085 (9th Cir. 2013) (internal quotations and 20 citations omitted).

21 1. Likelihood of Success on the Merits

22 Plaintiff brings claims under both the Voting Rights Act and Ku Klux Klan Act.
23 Section 11(b) of the Voting Rights Act provides, "No person, whether acting under color 24 of law or otherwise, shall intimidate, threaten, or coerce, or attempt to intimidate, 25 threaten, or coerce any person for voting or attempting to vote" or "for urging or aiding 26 any person to vote or attempt to vote." 52 U.S.C. § 10307(b).³ The statute does not

28 ³ ARP and the Trump Campaign argue that an action under Section 11(b) of the Voting Rights Act requires a showing that a defendant intended to intimidate, threaten or coerce or attempt to intimidate, threaten or coerce a person for voting or attempting to

1 exclude a private right of action for injunctive relief, as Plaintiff has brought here. Allen
2 v. State Bd. of Elections, 393 U.S. 544, 555-56 & n.18 (1969); see also 28 U.S.C.
3 § 1343(a)(4).

4 The Ku Klux Klan Act provides that an injured party has a right of action for 5 recovery of damages against a person who, with another person, “conspire[s] to prevent 6 by force, intimidation, or threat, any citizen who is lawfully entitled to vote, from giving 7 his support or advocacy in a legal manner, toward or in favor of the election of any 8 lawfully qualified person as an elector for President or Vice President, or as a Member of 9 Congress of the United States.” 42 U.S.C. § 1985(3).⁴

10 Arizona law also includes an anti-voter intimidation provision, which states it is a 11 class 1 misdemeanor for a person, directly or indirectly, to knowingly “practice 12 intimidation” or “inflict or threaten infliction” of “injury, damage, harm or loss” in order 13 “to induce or compel” a voter “to vote or refrain from voting for a particular person or 14 measure at any election provided by law, or on account of such person having voted or 15 refrained from voting at an election.” A.R.S. § 16-1013. In addition, Arizona more 16 stringently controls the area within 75 feet of a polling place as posted by election 17 officials. A.R.S. § 16-515. At any time the polls are open (except for the purpose of 18 voting and for election officials), only “one representative⁵ at any one time of each

20 vote. (GOP Resp. at 22 (citing Olagues v. Russoniello, 770 F.2d 791, 804 (9th Cir.
21 1985)).) Plaintiff argues that an action under Section 11(b) only requires that a defendant 22 intended to act, with the result that the actions intimidate, threaten or coerce or attempt to 23 intimidate, threaten or coerce a person for voting or attempting to vote. (Reply to GOP at 4 (citing Section 11(b) of the Voting Rights Act); Reply to STS at 7-9.) While the Court agrees with Plaintiff that the plain language of the statute does not require a particular mens rea, the Court need not decide this question to resolve Plaintiff’s Motion.

24 ⁴ ARP and the Trump Campaign argue that an action under 42 U.S.C. § 1985(3) 25 requires a showing of racial animus and that the specific provision invoked by Plaintiff—26 the “support and advocacy clause”—cannot be applied against a non-state actor. (GOP 27 Resp. at 17-19.) Plaintiff disagrees on both counts. (Reply to GOP at 4-8.) Again, the 28 plain language of the statute does not require either of the elements proposed by ARP and the Trump Campaign. For the purpose of resolving Plaintiff’s Motion, the Court presumes application of the “support and advocacy clause,” like the other clauses in 42 U.S.C. § 1985(3), to ARP and the Trump Campaign as non-state actors. The Court need not read into the statute a racial animus requirement to resolve Plaintiff’s Motion.

⁵ For the purposes of this Order, the Court refers to these representatives provided

1 political party represented on the ballot who has been appointed by the county chairman 2 of that political party and the challengers allowed by law” may be present within the 75-3 foot limit, and “[v]oters having cast their ballots shall promptly move outside” the 75-4 foot limit. A.R.S. § 16-515(A). Election officials, party representatives and challengers 5 authorized by law to be within the 75-foot limit “shall not wear, carry or display materials 6 that identify or express support for or opposition to a candidate, a political party or 7 organization, a ballot question or any other political issue and shall not electioneer” 8 within the 75-foot limit. A.R.S. § 16-515(F). The statute defines “electioneering” as 9 expressing support for or against a political party, candidate or ballot measure 10 “knowingly, intentionally, by verbal expression and in order to induce or compel another 11 person to vote in a particular manner or refrain from voting.” A.R.S. § 16-515(I). The 12 statute also provides that no person shall take photographs or videos while within the 75-
13 foot limit. A.R.S. § 16-515(G). A violation of any of these provisions is a class 2 14 misdemeanor. A.R.S. § 16-515(H).

15 For Plaintiff’s claim under the Voting Rights Act, Plaintiff must demonstrate that 16 Defendants acted or attempted to intimidate, threaten or coerce a person for voting or 17 attempting to vote; similarly, for Plaintiff’s claim under the Ku Klux Klan Act, Plaintiff 18 must demonstrate that Defendants conspired to prevent a person from voting through 19 force, intimidation or threat. Plaintiff claims that Defendants’ statements to their 20 constituents urging them to be present and observe the activities of other voters at polling 21 places, to follow other voters and interrogate them as to their votes, to record other 22 voters’ license plates, to photograph and video-record other voters, and to call 911 if they 23 suspect someone has engaged in voter fraud constitute at least an attempt to intimidate 24 and/or threaten voters for voting or attempting to vote. (E.g., Compl. ¶¶ 49, 51, 58.)
25 Plaintiff also claims that the plan by Mr. Stone and Stop the Steal to conduct exit polls at

28 for by statute and duly appointed as “credentialed poll watchers.” The Court refers to those persons present to observe activities at a polling place who are not appointed under the statute as “uncredentialed observers.”

1 carefully selected polling places is merely a pretext for intimidating minority voters.
2 (E.g., Compl. ¶¶ 36-39.)

3 a. Statements of the Arizona Republican Party

4 In conjunction with its claims against ARP, Plaintiff proffers evidence that, in a 5 press release, ARP Chairman Robert Graham stated that the party's credentialed poll 6 watchers "will be the eyes and ears of the GOP to look for those who show up with 7 multiple ballots." (Doc. 11-2 at 6-8, Gonski Decl. Ex. 2.) Acknowledging that state law 8 prohibits talking to voters or taking photographs in polling places, Mr. Graham stated that 9 credentialed poll watchers are "still free to follow voters out into the parking lot, ask 10 them questions, take their pictures and photograph their vehicles and license plate."
11 (Gonski Decl. Ex. 2.) ARP spokesman Tim Sifert added that credentialed poll watchers 12 are "free to go outside that 75-foot limit" and "[t]hat's where they can turn on their phone 13 to take video or pictures or something like that." (Gonski Decl. Ex. 2.) Mr. Graham also 14 stated that, if they believe a felony is in progress, credentialed poll watchers can call 911.
15 (Gonski Decl. Ex. 2.) Plaintiff claims that these statements amount to a call for ARP's 16 credentialed poll watchers to intimidate voters at polling places. Moreover, Plaintiff 17 points to evidence that ARP is flooded with requests from people who would like to 18 become credentialed poll watchers in the upcoming election—some of whom, Plaintiff 19 asserts, the Trump Campaign recruited—to argue that ARP is cooperating with the 20 Trump Campaign to intimidate voters on a wide scale.

21 Mr. Graham and Mr. Sifert made their statements in the context of a new Arizona 22 law, A.R.S. § 16-1005(H)-(I), which prohibits a practice called "ballot harvesting," or 23 collecting other people's ballots (with some exceptions, including family members and 24 caregivers) and delivering them to polling places.⁶ The press release makes the context of 25 the ARP officials' statements clear; Mr. Graham states that the ARP's credentialed poll 26 watchers are looking "for those who show up with multiple ballots." (Gonski Decl.

28 ⁶ The day after the Hearing, an en banc panel of the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that the statute is constitutionally infirm and struck it down in Ninth Circuit Case No. 16-16698, Order dated Nov. 4, 2016. (See Reply to STS at 2.)

1 Ex. 2.) Contrary to Plaintiff's suggestion, nothing in these officials' statements to the 2 press indicates that ARP is training or otherwise instructing its credentialed poll 3 watchers, or anyone else, to follow voters to their cars or take their photographs for 4 reasons other than suspected ballot harvesting. Both officials also state that Arizona law 5 prohibits talking to voters or taking photographs at polling places, that is, within the 75-6 foot limit. (Gonski Decl. Ex. 2; see also Doc. 25, Transcript of Nov. 3, 2016 Hearing 7 ("Tr.") at 71-72.)

8 At the Hearing, Mr. Graham testified that the Arizona Republican Lawyers 9 Association ("ARLA") trains ARP's credentialed poll watchers and is responsible for the 10 contents of the training manual. (Tr. at 58, 64-65.) He confirmed that ARP has received 11 requests from approximately 1,000 people to be poll watchers for this election, compared 12 to approximately 200 in past elections, but that ARP does not have the resources to train 13 all of those interested before this election and those not trained will not become 14 credentialed poll watchers. (Tr. at 59, 69.) Mr. Graham stated that in his time with ARP, 15 there has never been an issue with credentialed poll watchers acting improperly in past 16 elections. (Tr. at 71.) He also stated that ARP's credentialed poll watching program is 17 provided for by law—the same as in past elections—and that ARP is not coordinating 18 with the Trump Campaign or anyone else to organize any other poll watching activities.
19 (Tr. at 57, 68, 71, 76-77.) Indeed, Mr. Graham testified that he had never heard of Stop 20 the Steal or Mr. Stone before this lawsuit. (Tr. at 73-74.) Mr. Graham confirmed that his 21 statements in the press were specifically aimed at the new ballot harvesting law and that, 22 if the Ninth Circuit strikes down the ballot harvesting prohibition, ARP would instruct 23 credentialed poll watchers not to photograph voters dropping off multiple ballots.⁷ (Tr. at 24 72.) The Court heard no evidence of a broad conspiracy to intimidate voters through poll 25 watching, as claimed by Plaintiff, or a plan by ARP to train or otherwise organize poll 26 watchers with the Trump Campaign, Stop the Steal or Mr. Stone.

28 ⁷ After the Ninth Circuit did strike the ballot harvesting law, ARP filed a Notice (Doc. 30-2) that it was informing its credentialed poll watchers via its website not to follow or photograph voters suspected of ballot harvesting or, indeed, any voter.

1 Walter Opaska testified on behalf of ARLA, which has taken on the responsibility
2 of training credentialed poll watchers for the Republican Party in Arizona. (Tr. at 81.)
3 Mr. Opaska stated that ARLA trains credentialed poll watchers never to talk to or 4 confront voters and not to lodge a “challenge” as provided for by law against any voter.
5 (Tr. at 87-88.) Mr. Opaska stated that credentialed poll watchers do not have the authority 6 to enforce the now stricken ballot harvesting law, or any other law, and if they suspect a 7 voter is breaking the law, they are to report it to the elections inspector. (Tr. at 88-90.) He 8 tells credentialed poll watchers that they may discreetly take photos or videos of a person 9 suspected of breaking the law outside the 75-foot limit but never to interact with a voter.
10 (Tr. at 87, 90-91.) While the training manual for credentialed poll watchers states that a 11 voter could be suspected of ballot harvesting if he or she brings in three or more ballots, 12 Mr. Opaska stated that he instructed credentialed poll watchers only to be suspicious of 13 voters who come to the polling place with “10, 20, a box load of ballots”—an instruction 14 that is no longer meaningful in the absence of a ballot harvesting prohibition. (Tr. at 86, 15 90.) He stated that, in the years he has been involved in the program, there has never been 16 a report that a credentialed poll watcher for the Arizona GOP challenged a voter. (Tr. at 17 94.) The Court heard no evidence that ARP is affiliated with training poll watchers to 18 engage in any activities that would on their face constitute intimidation, threat, coercion 19 or force against any voter for voting or attempting to vote.

20 In its brief filed after the Hearing, Plaintiff provides a screen-shot of a page from 21 ARP’s website that states, “If you observe anything improper or illegal at the polls on 22 Election Day please use this form to report it to the Arizona Republican Party. Submit 23 any photos, videos, or other materials as evidence. Thank you for your service to ensure 24 the integrity of elections in Arizona!” (Reply to STS at 3; Ex. 3.) Plaintiff argues that this 25 statement contemplates activity beyond that which ARP claims it proscribes, both by 26 encouraging members of the public to be uncredentialed observers at polling places by 27 taking photos or videos of perceived illegal activity and by failing to advise 28 uncredentialed observers that no photos or videos can be taken within the 75-foot limit.

1 (Reply to STS at 3.) On its face, there is nothing untoward about telling members of the 2 public to say something if they witness the law being broken, and ARP's website does 3 not exhort action for any specific perceived crime or against any specific type of person 4 or group. The Court thus sees no obvious tie between the statement on the website and 5 intimidation, threat, coercion or force against any voter for voting or attempting to vote.
6 Moreover, Arizona law already provides that no photographs or videos can be taken 7 within the 75-foot limit—a rule that everyone is obligated to follow—and ARP's website 8 is not telling uncredentialed observers to break the law.⁸

9 Plaintiff likens ARP's statements regarding following and photographing a narrow 10 group of voters suspected of ballot harvesting or breaking the law to actions that the 11 District of South Dakota enjoined in the context of a prior election in Daschle v. Thune, 12 No. 04-CV-4177 (D.S.D. Nov. 2, 2004). There, the court received evidence that 13 individuals acting on behalf of the defendants in that case followed Native American 14 voters from the polling places and copied or otherwise recorded their license plate 15 numbers, and that the conduct resulted in intimidation of Native American voters, 16 particularly through the resulting word of mouth among the Native American population.
17 Id. The two cases are not similar, however. There, the defendants had already taken 18 actions against a group of voters that the group already perceived as intimidation, and the 19 court had evidence that defendants' actions were likely to suppress the vote. Here, 20 Plaintiff produced no evidence that ARP's actions will result in voter intimidation.
21 Indeed, although ARP publicly condoned the idea that its credentialed poll watchers 22 could follow and photograph a voter outside the 75-foot limit in the narrow instance in 23 which the voter was suspected of violating Arizona's new ballot harvesting law, that law 24 is no longer valid. Credentialed poll watchers are trained not to talk to, confront, or 25 interact in any way with the voter. ARP's public statements with regard to following and 26 photographing voters outside the 75-foot limit were made only in the context of helping

28 ⁸ After the Ninth Circuit struck the ballot harvesting law, ARP filed a Notice declaring that it removed the subject page from its website. (Doc. 30-2.)

1 law enforcement enforce the now-invalid ballot harvesting law and could not reasonably 2 have been read to address voters generally, much less intimidate them. Moreover, 3 credentialed poll watchers for both political parties are established and regulated by 4 Arizona law, and there is no evidence of even a single incident between a credentialed 5 poll watcher and voter since at least 2006—the period of time Mr. Opaska has been 6 involved with the ARLA credentialed poll watcher training.

7 With regard to the statement on ARP's website, it is tailored to recording 8 somebody suspected of breaking the law and it is not on its face tied to voter 9 intimidation. The Court also heard no evidence of coordination between ARP and the 10 other Defendants such that statements of the other Defendants could be tied to ARP. As a 11 result, the Court cannot find that Plaintiff is likely to succeed in showing ARP's 12 statements constitute intimidation, threat, coercion or force against voters for voting or 13 attempting to vote in violation of the Voting Rights Act and/or the Ku Klux Klan Act.

14 b. Statements of the Trump Campaign

15 In its pleadings, moving papers and presentation to the Court, Plaintiff identified 16 various statements made by the candidate, his surrogates and campaign officials that, it 17 argues, show both an intent on the part of the Trump Campaign to intimidate voters and 18 intimidation in fact. Plaintiff pointed to an unnamed Trump Campaign official recently 19 telling reporters that “[w]e have three major voter suppression operations under way,” 20 which Plaintiff summarized as targeting “Latinos, African Americans, and other groups 21 of voters.” (Compl. at 1.) It introduced news articles relating Mr. Trump's own 22 statements at campaign rallies and before the media that the election is “rigged” and that 23 widespread voter fraud will favor his opponent. Plaintiff relates additional statements by 24 Mr. Trump to his supporters that, “[a]s opposed to somebody coming up and voting 15 25 times for Hillary[,] I will not tell you to vote 15 times. I will not tell you to do that. You 26 won't vote 15 times, but people will. They'll vote many times, and how that could have 27 happened is unbelievable.” (Gonski Decl. Ex. 18.) 28

1 During a speech given in Pennsylvania, Mr. Trump told attendees, “I hope you 2 people can sort of not just vote on the eighth [but] go around and look and watch other 3 polling places and make sure that it’s 100 percent fine. . . . Go down to certain areas and 4 watch and study, make sure other people don’t come in and vote five times.” (Gonski 5 Decl. Ex. 11.) The following week, while exhorting followers to “go out and watch” for 6 voter fraud, Mr. Trump told attendees, “[a]nd when I say ‘watch,’ you know what I’m 7 talking about, right?” (Gonski Decl. Ex. 19.) In Michigan, the candidate told those 8 present to “[g]o to your place and vote, then go pick some other place, and go sit there 9 with friends and make sure it’s on the up and up.” (Gonski Decl. Ex. 20.)

10 Plaintiff introduced as evidence additional media reports that campaign 11 spokespersons were to emphasize talking points stating, among other things, “We have 12 [s]een very significant recent voting irregularities across the country from Pennsylvania 13 to Colorado and an increase in unlawful voting by illegal immigrants”; “Non-citizen 14 votes may have been responsible for Barack Obama’s narrow margin of victory in North 15 Carolina in 2008”; and, “More than 14 percent of non-citizens surveyed in 2008 and 2010
16 [s]aid they were registered to vote.” (Gonski Decl. Ex. 10.)

17 Finally, Plaintiff provided pages from the Trump Campaign website where those 18 interested could “Volunteer to be a Trump Election Observer” to “Help [Trump] Stop 19 Crooked Hillary From Rigging This Election,” which had fillable fields asking for an 20 entrant’s name, contact information and date of birth. (Gonski Decl. Ex. 3.) From the 21 above statements, talking points and webpage, Plaintiff urges the conclusion that the 22 Trump Campaign has intimidated, threatened or coerced persons for voting, or attempts 23 to so intimidate, threaten or coerce such persons in violation of the Voting Rights Act.
24 Plaintiff also urges the conclusion that the Trump Campaign and its co-Defendants have 25 conspired to prevent voters from voting by intimidation or threat, or to injure them for 26 voting, in violation of the Ku Klux Klan Act.

27 Plaintiff’s evidence regarding the Trump Campaign is insufficient to demonstrate 28 a likelihood of success on the merits of either its Voting Rights Act claim or its Ku Klux

1 Klan Act claim. First, at least some of the Trump Campaign's statements on which 2 Plaintiff relies are taken out of context because they were abbreviated, and when 3 considered in full, do not persuade at all that they evince an intent to intimidate voters, or 4 to coordinate or conspire with others to deny the vote to anyone; nor when read in full 5 would the statements have the effect of intimidating a voter. The quote that the campaign 6 had "three major voter suppression operations underway," which Plaintiff summarizes as 7 against Latinos, African Americans, and others, without more, leads a reader to conclude 8 that the "suppression" referred to is to be achieved by denying the vote to certain groups, 9 and that the only groups being "suppressed" are minority voters. A reading of the full text 10 of the article provides a different meaning:

11 "We have three major voter suppression operations under 12 way," says a senior official. They're aimed at three groups 13 Clinton needs to win overwhelmingly: idealistic white 14 liberals, young women, and African Americans. Trump's 15 invocation at the debate of Clinton's WikiLeaks e-mails and 16 support for the Trans-Pacific Partnership was designed to turn 17 off Sanders supporters. The parade of women who say they were sexually assaulted by Bill Clinton and harassed or threatened by Hillary is meant to undermine her appeal to young women. And her 1996 suggestion that some African American males are "super predators" is the basis of a below-the-radar effort to discourage infrequent black voters from showing up at the polls—particularly in Florida.

18 Inside the Trump Bunker, With Days to Go, Joshua Green and Sasha Issenberg, 19 Bloomberg Business, October 27, 2016. The full text makes clear the speaker uses the 20 word "suppression" to describe efforts to persuade voters not to vote for Hillary Clinton 21 by pointing out issues on which the Trump Campaign believes her positions do not 22 appeal to those voter demographic groups—not any effort to deny the vote by 23 intimidation or otherwise. The quote also makes clear that the Trump Campaign is 24 targeting its arguments against voting for Ms. Clinton to groups beyond minorities. The 25 quotation from the unnamed campaign official is not persuasive of any element of proof 26 required here.

27 Second, whether true or false, and whether appealing or repugnant to the listener, 28 Mr. Trump's and his agents' statements that the election is rigged, that voter fraud is

1 being perpetrated en masse by “illegal aliens,” and that his supporters should go to polls 2 and watch to ensure a fair election, without more, simply do not prove actual or likely 3 intimidation. One can seriously question the wisdom of stirring up supporters about a 4 controversial issue, encouraging them to go to a precinct that is not their own, and telling 5 them to look for “voter fraud” without defining what it is, leaving individuals to their 6 own devices to figure out how to go about that task.⁹ If the objective of observing is to 7 detect persons voting more than once, the fact that the observer is in a precinct not their 8 own, whether in the next town or the next state, only adds to the difficulty of recognizing 9 a voter coming through the line more than once. And if the objective of observing, as 10 strongly suggested by the candidate’s statements, is to detect persons attempting to vote 11 who are ineligible because they are not citizens, it is beyond question that no one can tell 12 a person’s citizenship based on what that person looks like or sounds like. But whatever 13 the shortcomings of the Trump Campaign’s statements on this issue might be, simply 14 arguing there is voter fraud and urging people to watch out for it is not, without more, 15 sufficient to justify the extraordinary relief that an injunction constitutes.

16 Plaintiff bears the burden of providing the evidence to take its claims from a 17 nebulous concern over Defendants’ statements, to a likelihood that the named Defendants 18 and those acting in concert with them will intimidate, threaten, coerce, or attempt to 19 intimidate, threaten or coerce, voters. Plaintiff has produced no evidence that anyone who 20 signed up on the Trump Campaign website was ever contacted to follow up or connect 21 them with a polling place. It produced no evidence that the Trump Campaign organized, 22 trained or otherwise facilitated any volunteer’s actual attendance at a polling place as an

24 ⁹ Indeed, among other evidence, Plaintiff produces a Tweet from a Trump 25 supporter in Florida stating he planned to be “wear’n red at polls,” “watch’n fer 26 shenanigans,” and “haul ya away,” accompanied by a photo of a pickup truck and a 27 person-sized cage built in the bed, surrounded by American flags. (Gonski Decl. Ex. 7.) 28 An Ohio supporter stated, “it’s called racial profiling. Mexicans. Syrians. People who can’t speak American. I’m going to go right up behind them. I’ll do everything legally. I want to see if they are accountable. I’m not going to do anything illegal. I’m going to make them a little bit nervous.” (Gonski Decl. Ex. 6.) While these statements are deeply troubling, they do not illustrate an organized effort to intimidate voters in this jurisdiction, but rather appear to be outlier statements from other jurisdictions. Enjoining Defendants in this action is not likely to address those statements.

1 observer, in Arizona or elsewhere. It produced no evidence of any specific actions that 2 observers would take, things they would say, or other facts that would allow the Court to 3 evaluate whether such actions or statements could or would constitute intimidation, 4 instead inviting the Court to conclude that the Trump Campaign's general exhortations to 5 watch polling places is enough, and largely to speculate about what will come of them.

6 Plaintiff produced no evidence that the Trump Campaign had engaged in voter 7 intimidation in Arizona in the past. And despite that early in-person voting has been 8 ongoing in Arizona for over three weeks, it produced no evidence of any attempts at voter 9 intimidation, or any voter reporting they felt intimidated, during this cycle. This places 10 the instant case in vastly different territory than Daschle v. Thune, where, as discussed 11 above, the court had before it concrete examples of voter intimidation by the defendants' 12 supporters that had actually occurred during early voting, thus removing any air of 13 speculation about likelihood of harm to voters or the plaintiff.¹⁰

14 Without any of these several types of evidence, the Court is unable to evaluate in 15 any meaningful way the likelihood of the harm Plaintiff urges will occur in terms of 16 actual or attempted voter intimidation as a result of the Trump Campaign's statements.
17 For that reason, Plaintiff is unlikely to succeed on the merits of its Voting Rights Act 18 claim. Nor is Plaintiff likely to succeed on the merits of its claim under the Ku Klux Klan 19 Act, as it has not presented sufficient evidence of a conspiracy between the Trump 20 Campaign and any co-Defendant to suppress votes in Arizona. As discussed above, the 21 uncontroverted evidence at the hearing was that ARP did not communicate with the 22 Trump Campaign on this topic and that the poll watching manual made available to all 23 credentialed Republican poll watchers advises them not to contact voters directly and 24 states that as a general matter, credentialed poll watchers do not challenge voters.

27 ¹⁰ The Court notes, as have other district courts considering similar matters, that 28 should evidence arise on or before November 8, 2016, demonstrating harm or likelihood of harm as a result of Defendants' actions, it would entertain renewal of Plaintiff's Motion.

1 As for Defendants Stop the Steal and Mr. Stone, whatever communications may 2 occur between them and the Trump Campaign, Plaintiff has not produced evidence 3 sufficient to persuade the Court that they have conspired to intimidate voters, based on 4 the same analysis as above. The Court agrees with Plaintiff's counsel that it may make 5 inferences from what evidence exists. But at some point the inferences become so 6 attenuated as to be speculative. In the Court's judgment, based on the evidence before it, 7 the inferences necessary to reach a conclusion that there is a conspiracy to intimidate 8 voters have reached the point of speculation.

9 c. Statements of Stop the Steal and Mr. Stone

10 Plaintiff has proffered evidence that Stop the Steal's planned exit polling is 11 illegitimately designed to target Democratic-leaning and majority-minority districts, 12 rather than legitimate exit polling, which requires broad geographical distribution to 13 produce unbiased, reliable results. (Doc. 12, Mellman Report and Decl. at 1.) This may 14 be true. However, as Stop the Steal's counsel iterated, there is no requirement that exit 15 polls be scientific. (Tr. at 158-59 ("Stop the Steal isn't required to be scientific. It's not 16 even required to succeed. It may fail.")) Nor is Stop the Steal or Mr. Stone required to 17 operate a polling firm in order to conduct exit polling. There is no law or regulation 18 requiring any exit polling to be standardized, reliable, or to serve any purpose, much less 19 a legitimate one—only that it not serve an expressly illegitimate one. Therefore, it is not 20 for the Court to decide whether or not resultant information may be of use. Instead, the 21 Court must determine whether or not such activity, be it called "exit polling" or anything 22 else, violates voters' rights.

23 At base, Stop the Steal is not prohibited from conducting exit polling, so long as it 24 does so in accordance with all applicable laws and regulations. See Daily Herald Co. v.
25 Munro, 838 F.2d 380, 390 n.8 (9th Cir. 1988) (upholding District Court's finding that 26 exit polling did not interfere with citizens' right to vote without showing that polling was 27 disruptive, intended to interfere with any voter's rights, or that someone did not vote or 28 voted differently due to polling). Unscientific, targeted, unreliable, and even useless exit

1 polling, by itself, does not violate any voters' rights. Without a demonstration that Stop 2 the Steal's planned exit polling is likely to intimidate, the Court may not enjoin it from 3 conducting its polling. Plaintiff has failed to proffer any evidence that any voter is likely 4 to be intimidated, threatened, or coerced due to the polling. Instead, Plaintiff offers 5 conclusory statements based only on the purported motivation of Stop the Steal and its 6 members. If Stop the Steal does intend to conduct its polling only at Democratic-leaning 7 or majority-minority districts, its actions are facially suspicious. And neither Stop the 8 Steal nor Mr. Stone have offered legitimate reasons for conducting polling in those 9 targeted locations. But Plaintiff does not offer the vital evidentiary components that 10 would allow the Court to infer likely or intended intimidation: precisely what Stop the 11 Steal plans to do, where it plans to do it, how such conduct will intimidate voters, or even 12 if the exit polling will ultimately occur. (Mellman Report and Decl. at 1.) The factually 13 unsubstantiated, though informed, opinion of Plaintiff's expert does not obviate the need 14 for further evidence of either Stop the Steal's alleged stratagem to intimidate non-white 15 voters, or indeed any evidence of what Stop the Steal will do at the polls. Without such 16 evidence, the Court cannot evaluate whether Stop the Steal's activities might constitute 17 intimidation or not.

18 Plaintiff has also produced evidence that Stop the Steal and Mr. Stone recruited 19 and mobilized groups of volunteers known as "vote protectors," who are encouraged to 20 identify themselves as reporting for vote protectors, approach voters at the polls, and 21 inquire about election fraud. (Gonski Decl. at Ex. 23; <http://stopthesteal.org>.) Plaintiff 22 also alleges that Mr. Stone is using social media to urge potential uncredentialed 23 observers to wear red shirts on Election Day. (Compl. ¶ 35.) However, there is no 24 prohibition regarding the clothing of uncredentialed observers at polling locations, nor 25 has Plaintiff provided any legal precedent holding that such activity is unconstitutional, 26 likely to intimidate voters, or will otherwise hinder voter participation. Neither the 27 encouragement of the activities alleged, nor the activities themselves are per se 28

1 prohibited. It is Plaintiff's burden to illustrate that these activities are likely to intimidate, 2 threaten, or coerce voters. The evidence educed has failed to do so.

3 2. Likelihood of Irreparable Harm

4 While a large portion of ARP and the Trump Campaign's brief focuses on what is 5 purportedly the second part of the four-factor test (GOP Resp. at 4-7), they instead 6 articulate that there is no evidence that the alleged harms have occurred or are likely to 7 occur. This argument is properly placed in the first part of the four-factor test—likelihood 8 of success on the merits. In analyzing the irreparable harm factor, the Court does not 9 assess the likelihood that such harm will occur, but, if such harm does occur, whether it 10 will be irreparable.

11 In doing so, it is clear that abridgement of the right to vote constitutes irreparable 12 injury. Reynolds v. Sims, 377 U.S. 533, 562 (the right to vote is "a fundamental political 13 right, because [it] is preservative of all rights"); Melendres v. Arpaio, 695 F.3d 990, 1002 14 (9th Cir. 2012) ("It is well established that the deprivation of constitutional rights 15 'unquestionably constitutes irreparable injury.'") (quoting Elrod v. Burns, 427 U.S. 347, 16 373 (1976)); Cardona v. Oakland Unified Sch. Dist., California, 785 F. Supp. 837, 840 17 (N.D. Cal. 1992) ("Abridgement or dilution of a right so fundamental as the right to vote 18 constitutes irreparable injury."); see also Obama for Am. v. Husted, 697 F.3d 423, 436 19 (6th Cir. 2012) ("A restriction on the fundamental right to vote . . . constitutes irreparable 20 injury.") (internal citation omitted). Consequently, if potential members of the electorate 21 suffer intimidation, threatening conduct, or coercion such that their right to vote freely is 22 abridged, or altogether extinguished, Plaintiff would be irreparably harmed. Further, if 23 some potential voters are improperly dissuaded from exercising their franchise, it is 24 unlikely those voters can be identified, their votes cannot be recast, and no amount of 25 traditional remedies such as money damages would suffice after the fact. This factor 26 weighs in favor of a preliminary injunction.

1 3. Balance of Equities and the Public Interest

2 Because Plaintiff brings this action not only on behalf of the Arizona Democratic 3 Party, but also unidentified potential voters (see, e.g., Mot. at 15-16), and ARP and the 4 Trump Campaign purport to oppose the injunction due to its effect on unknown third-5 parties (GOP Resp. at 7-10), the Court will collapse the final two factors into a single 6 category. See Arizona Dream Act Coal. v. Brewer, 818 F.3d 901, 920 (9th Cir. 2016)
7 (analyzing both public interest and equities factors simultaneously); Minard Run Oil Co.
8 v. U.S. Forest Serv., 670 F.3d 236, 256 (3d Cir. 2011) (“we consider together the final 9 two elements of the preliminary injunction framework—the public interest and the 10 balance of the equities”); Merced v. Spano, No. 16CV3054 (SJ) (SMG), 2016 WL 11 3906646, at *2 (E.D.N.Y. July 14, 2016) (“The remaining elements (irreparable harm, 12 balance of the equities and public interest) will be discussed together because in this 13 instance, they are intertwined.”). Analyzing factors three and four in unison, the Court 14 must balance both Plaintiff’s and the public’s interest in protecting voters from undue 15 influence, intimidation, or coercion, against Defendants’ poll observing rights and right to 16 free speech under the First Amendment.

17 As stated, the right to vote is a fundamental one, Reynolds, 377 at 562, the 18 preservation of which is compelling. See, e.g., Burson v. Freeman, 504 U.S. 191 (1992).
19 Indeed, “[n]o right is more precious in a free country than that of having a voice in the 20 election of those who make the laws under which, as good citizens, we must live.”
21 Wesberry v. Sanders, 376 U.S. 1, 17 (1964); see also Sw. Voter Registration Educ.
22 Project v. Shelley, 344 F.3d 914, 918 (9th Cir. 2003) (“There is no doubt that the right to 23 vote is fundamental . . .”). The Supreme Court has consistently held that the states, too, 24 have a compelling interest in maintaining the integrity of the voting place and preventing
27 Celebrezze, 460 U.S. 780 (1983). Accordingly, both Plaintiff and the public have a strong 28 interest in allowing every registered voter to do so freely.

1 On the other hand, the Court acknowledges that Plaintiff's injunction, as 2 requested, raises First Amendment concerns. Just as the right to vote is a fundamental 3 one, so too is the right to political speech and the right to associate. See, e.g., Mills v.
4 Alabama, 384 U.S. 214, 218-19 (1966) ("there is practically universal agreement that a 5 major purpose of [the First] Amendment was to protect the free discussion of 6 governmental affairs . . . [including] discussions of candidates, structures and forms of 7 government, the manner in which government is operated or should be operated, and all 8 such matters relating to political processes"); Lerman v. Bd. of Elections in City of New 9 York, 232 F.3d 135, 146 (2d Cir. 2000) ("The right to political association also is at the 10 core of the First Amendment, and even practices that only potentially threaten political 11 association are highly suspect.") (internal quotation and citation omitted). While the 12 Court may only enjoin Defendants and their co-conspirators, if any, the injunction may 13 nonetheless have a chilling effect on protected First Amendment speech by others.
14 Indeed, Plaintiff has not provided the Court with a narrowly tailored injunction that 15 would not unintentionally sweep within its ambit other activities that constitute exercise 16 of freedom of speech. See, e.g., Rodriguez v. Robbins, 715 F.3d 1127, 1133 (9th Cir.
18 Mower, 219 F.3d 1069, 1077 (9th Cir. 2000) ("one basic principle built into Rule 65 is 19 that those against whom an injunction is issued should receive fair and precisely drawn 20 notice of what the injunction actually prohibits") (quoting Granny Goose Foods, Inc. v.
21 Brotherhood of Teamsters, 415 U.S. 423, 444 (1974)); Waldman Pub. Corp. v. Landoll, 22 Inc., 43 F.3d 775, 785 (2d Cir. 1994) ("an injunction should not impose unnecessary 23 burdens on lawful activity").

24 The Court also acknowledges that Plaintiff's requested injunction may further 25 impinge on state-created rights or freedoms regarding poll observation. However, the 26 injunction issued, if any, would only instruct both credentialed poll watchers and 27 uncredentialed observers alike to follow the law as prescribed, and for any training given 28 to credentialed poll watchers to similarly guide its trainees. Further, poll watching is not a

1 fundamental right that enjoys distinct First Amendment protection and it does not carry 2 the same implications as the preceding rights. See, e.g., Cotz v. Mastroeni, 476 F. Supp.
3 2d 332, 364 (S.D.N.Y. 2007) (“poll watching is not incidental to this right and has no
4 distinct First Amendment protection”); Turner v. Cooper, 583 F. Supp. 1160, 1161–62 5 (N.D. Ill. 1983) (holding that the act of poll watching is not protected by the First 6 Amendment). Ultimately, each side implicates vital rights central to our system of 7 government. Because the right to vote is sacrosanct and preservative of all other rights, 8 the hardship balance and public interest factors weigh slightly in favor of granting 9 Plaintiff’s Motion.

10 II. CONCLUSION

11 The Court finds that Defendant Mr. Stone has sufficient contacts with Arizona and 12 that Plaintiff’s claims arise from those contacts, such that the Court has jurisdiction over 13 Mr. Stone in this matter. The Court also finds that Plaintiff has not demonstrated it is 14 likely to succeed in showing the statements and actions of Defendants to-date constitute 15 intimidation, threat, coercion or force against voters for voting or attempting to vote in 16 violation of the Voting Rights Act and/or the Ku Klux Klan Act. Moreover, Plaintiff has 17 not shown the likelihood of a conspiracy as required for its Ku Klux Klan Act claim.
18 Plaintiff is thus not likely to succeed on the merits for either of its claims against 19 Defendants. Although Plaintiff has demonstrated (1) a likelihood of irreparable injury if 20 Defendants violate the Voting Rights Act and/or the Ku Klux Klan Act prior to or on 21 Election Day; (2) that the balance of equities tips slightly in its favor; and (3) that, in such 22 an instance, an injunction would be in the public interest, the Court must deny Plaintiff’s 23 request for injunctive relief before Election Day based on the record before the Court.
24 The parties may continue to raise issues to this Court through Election Day if they 25 receive additional, material evidence.

26 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED denying Plaintiff’s Motion for Temporary 27 Restraining Order and/or Preliminary Injunction (Doc. 10).

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED denying as moot Defendant Roger J. Stone, Jr.'s oral motion to dismiss for lack of service and denying his oral motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction (see Doc. 24; Doc. 25, Tr. at 43).

Dated this 4th day of November, 2016.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF ARIZONA

Arizona Democratic Party,

Plaintiffs,

v.

Arizona Republican Party, Donald J. Trump
for President, Inc., Roger J. Stone, Jr., and Stop the Steal, Inc.,

Defendants.

No. _____

VOTER INTIMIDATION COMPLAINT PURSUANT TO THE VOTING RIGHTS ACT OF 1965 AND THE KU KLUX KLAN ACT OF 1871

Plaintiff Arizona Democratic Party hereby alleges as follows:

INTRODUCTION

1. The campaign of Donald J. Trump (the "Trump Campaign"), Trump's close advisor Roger J. Stone, Jr., Stone's organization Stop the Steal Inc., the Arizona Republican Party ("ARP"), and others are conspiring to threaten, intimidate, and thereby prevent minority voters in urban neighborhoods from voting in the 2016 election. The presently stated goal of the Trump Campaign, as explained by an unnamed official to Bloomberg News on October 27, is to depress voter turnout—in the official's words: "We have three major voter suppression operations under way" that target Latinos, African Americans, and other groups of voters. While the official discussed communications

1 strategies designed to decrease interest in voting, it has also become clear in recent weeks 2 that Trump has sought to advance his campaign's goal of "voter suppression" by using the 3 loudest microphone in the nation to implore his supporters to engage in unlawful 4 intimidation at Arizona polling places. Trump's exhortations have been amplified by 5 direct and tacit assistance from the ARP and Stone, who helped pioneer similar tactics in 6 the 1980s before those efforts were blocked by the federal courts. All have sought to 7 organize, fund, and assist Trump's supporters to carry out Trump's goals. And Trump's 8 supporters have responded with pledges to descend upon polling places in "certain areas" 9 where many minority voters live in order to interfere with their efforts to exercise the 10 franchise.

11 2. In the aftermath of previous voter suppression efforts in our history, Congress 12 responded forcefully by enacting laws that unequivocally prohibit voter intimidation. In 13 the 1870s, in response to threats of political violence and harassment against former slaves 14 and their white supporters by the newly formed Ku Klux Klan, Congress banned private 15 conspiracies to intimidate or threaten voters. In the 1960s, in response to the menacing of 16 African Americans who sought their full rights at the ballot box, Congress prohibited any 17 threats or intimidation against any and all persons engaged in the democratic process.

18 3. Voter intimidation is especially pernicious when it is condoned or encouraged by a 19 candidate or political party. The Republican National Committee ("RNC") recognized the 20 dangers and illegality of party-sponsored efforts to intimidate voters in resolving a 1981 21 lawsuit alleging that it "enlisted the help of off-duty sheriffs and police officers to 22 intimidate voters by standing at polling places in minority precincts during voting with 23 'National Ballot Security Task Force' armbands" and visible firearms, in violation of the 24 Voting Rights Act of 1965. Democratic Nat'l Comm. v. Republican Nat'l Comm., 673
25 F.3d 192, 196 (3d Cir. 2012). In a 1982 Consent Decree settling that lawsuit, the RNC 26 and the New Jersey Republican State Committee agreed, inter alia, to:

- 27 a. "as a first resort, use established statutory procedures for challenging 28 unqualified voters";

- 1 b. “comply with all applicable state and federal laws protecting the rights of duly 2 qualified citizens to vote for the candidate(s) of their choice”;
- 3 c. “refrain from giving any directions to or permitting their employees to 4 campaign within restricted polling areas or to interrogate prospective voters as 5 to their qualifications to vote prior to their entry to a polling place”;
- 6 d. “refrain from undertaking any ballot security activities in polling places or 7 election districts where the racial or ethnic composition of such districts is a 8 factor in the decision to conduct, or the actual conduct of, such activities there 9 and where a purpose or significant effect of such activities is to deter qualified 10 voters from voting”; and
- 11 e. “refrain from having private personnel deputized as law enforcement personnel 12 in connection with ballot security activities.”

13 Id. at 196-97 (internal citations and quotation marks omitted).

14 4. The Consent Decree has been updated, affirmed against challenge, and enforced by 15 several courts, including the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit. See id. at 220.
16 In rejecting the RNC’s 2009 request that the Consent Decree be set aside, the District 17 Court for the District of New Jersey held that “[v]oter intimidation presents an ongoing 18 threat to the participation of minority individuals in the political process, and continues to 19 pose a far greater danger to the integrity of that process than the type of voter fraud the 20 RNC is prevented from addressing by the Decree.” Democratic Nat’l Comm. v.
21 Republican Nat’l Comm., 671 F. Supp. 2d 575, 578-79 (D.N.J. 2009), aff’d, 673 F.3d 192
22 (3d Cir. 2012). On October 26, 2016, citing the RNC’s coordination with the Trump 23 Campaign’s voter intimidation efforts, the Democratic National Committee moved to hold 24 the RNC in contempt of the Consent Decree. See Democratic Nat’l Comm. v. Republican 25 Nat’l Comm., No. 81-cv-3876 (JMV), Dkt. No. 95 (D.N.J. Oct. 26, 2016).

26 5. In this action, Plaintiff alleges Defendants’ coordinated campaign of vigilante voter 27 intimidation also violates the Ku Klux Klan Act of 1871 and the Voting Rights Act of 28 1965.

6. Immediate relief is necessary. There are only 8 days left until Election Day, and early in-person voting is already underway in Arizona. Trump's calls for unlawful intimidation have grown louder and louder, and the conspiracy to harass and threaten voters on Election Day has already resulted in numerous acts that threaten to interfere with the voting rights of registered Arizona voters. The Arizona Democratic Party, and untold numbers of Arizona voters, will suffer irreparable harm if the right to vote is imperiled by the same forms of virulent harassment that federal law has prohibited since shortly after the Civil War.

PARTIES

7. Plaintiff Arizona Democratic Party is a state party organization affiliated with the Democratic Party, headquartered in Phoenix, Arizona. See “Arizona Democratic Party,” available at <http://www.azdem.org>.

8. Defendant Arizona Republican Party is a political organization with its principal place of business in Phoenix, Arizona. See “Arizona Republican Party,” available at <http://az.gop>.

9. Defendant Roger J. Stone, Jr., is a resident of Florida. Stone is a Republican political operative and longtime associate of Trump's. He is currently an operative for Trump and his campaign. Stone is a vocal proselytizer of Trump's false voter fraud claims and his calls for vigilante action, including through Stone's "super PAC" Stop the Steal Inc., its website stopthesteal.org, and many forms of social media. Stone has encouraged Trump supporters to wear red shirts on Election Day, in large part to menace voters. Stone was a key advisor to the 1981 campaign of former New Jersey Governor Thomas Kean, in which a "ballot security" force wearing black armbands engaged in widespread voter intimidation in Democratic areas of the state, leading to a nationwide federal consent decree barring supposed ballot security efforts by the Republican Party.

10. Defendant Stop the Steal Inc. is a “super PAC” formed by Stone on April 6, 2016, under Section 527 of the Internal Revenue Code. Stop the Steal Inc. is devoted to promoting Stone’s conspiracy theories regarding voter fraud, and to using fears of a

1 “rigged” election to organize and recruit poll watchers to harass and intimidate perceived 2 Democratic voters on Election Day. Stop the Steal Inc. is headquartered at 3843 South 3 Bristol Street, Suite 312, Santa Ana, California.

4 11. Defendant Donald J. Trump for President, Inc. (the “Trump Campaign”) is the 5 campaign of Donald J. Trump for the presidency of the United States. The Trump 6 Campaign is headquartered at 725 Fifth Avenue, New York, New York.

7 8 JURISDICTION AND VENUE

9 12. The Court has subject matter jurisdiction over this action under 28 U.S.C. § 1331
10 because this action arises under federal law, specifically Section 2 of the Ku Klux Klan 11 Act of 1871, 42 U.S.C. § 1985(3), and Section 11(b) of the Voting Rights Act of 1965, 52 12 U.S.C. § 10307(b).

13 13. Personal jurisdiction exists over Stone, Stop the Steal Inc., and the Trump 14 Campaign because Defendants caused and/or will cause harm or tortious injury by an act 15 or omission in this State or directed to this State. See Ariz. R. Civ. P. 4.2; Meyers v.
16 Hamilton Corp., 143 Ariz. 249, 251-52 (1984).

17 14. The Arizona Democratic Party has standing in this action because it is supporting 18 many candidates for office in the election to be held on November 8, 2016, including 19 Democratic candidates in the Presidential, Senate, House, and numerous statewide 20 elections. The Party is threatened with immediate and irreparable injury if the vigilante 21 voter intimidation campaign by Trump, Stone, and their co-conspirators succeeds in 22 disrupting or changing the results of the election by means of an unlawful conspiracy.
23 The Arizona Democratic Party has standing on behalf of itself and its members.

24 15. Venue is proper in this district under 28 U.S.C. § 1391(e) because significant 25 events giving rise to this action occurred in this district.

26 16. The allegations herein justify immediate temporary relief in order to prevent 27 irreparable harm. An injunction against the Trump Campaign and its co-conspirators’ 28

1 planned intimidation tactics is the only way to protect thousands of Arizona voters from 2 harassment, threats, or intimidation that could discourage them from voting in the 3 upcoming election.

5 CONGRESS REGULATES VOTER INTIMIDATION FOR OVER A CENTURY 6 IN RESPONSE TO POLLING PLACE VIGILANTISM

7 17. The Ku Klux Klan Act of 1871 (the “Klan Act”) was the last of the Enforcement 8 Acts—legislation passed during Reconstruction to protect the suffrage rights of newly 9 freed slaves, including by protecting them and their supporters from violence and 10 harassment. President Grant requested the legislation in order to empower him to stamp 11 out the first generation of the Ku Klux Klan, which Congress granted within a month of 12 the request.

13 18. The Klan Act, as currently codified in 42 U.S.C. § 1985(3), provides for damages 14 and equitable relief “if two or more persons conspire to prevent by force, intimidation, or 15 threat, any citizen who is lawfully entitled to vote, from giving his support or advocacy in 16 a legal manner, toward or in favor of . . . an elector for President or Vice President, or as a 17 Member of Congress of the United States; or to injure any citizen in person or property on 18 account of such support or advocacy.” The Act further provides that an action will lie 19 against the conspirators so long as “one or more persons engaged” in the conspiracy “do, 20 or cause to be done, any act in furtherance of the object of such conspiracy.” As the 21 Supreme Court made clear in Ex parte Yarbrough, 110 U.S. 651 (1884), the constitutional 22 basis for this broad provision—whose text requires no showing of racial intent or animus, 23 only a conspiracy to intimidate voters—is the Constitution’s Elections Clause.

24 19. Nearly a century later, in 1965, Congress again invoked its broad Elections Clause 25 power to protect the franchise. Responding to numerous instances of intimidation in both 26 elections and registration efforts in the Jim Crow South, including the killing of black and 27 white activists seeking to register African Americans to vote, Congress passed Section 28 11(b) of the Voting Rights Act. Section 11(b) prohibits actual or attempted

1 “intimidation,” “threats,” or “coercion” against a person, either “for voting or attempting 2 to vote” or “for urging or aiding any person to vote or attempt to vote.” Section 11(b) 3 authorizes private suits against private actors, even in the absence of any action by a state 4 or state official.

5 20. Congress has thus enacted two broad statutes to prevent voter intimidation. As 6 courts have made clear, it violates Section 11(b) to follow voters around, stand behind 7 them taking notes, follow them into the parking lot, or loudly discuss voter fraud laws in 8 their presence. See, e.g., Temporary Restraining Order, Daschle v. Thune, No. 04-cv-9 4177, Dkt. No. 6 (D.S.D. Nov. 2, 2004) (entering a Temporary Restraining Order 10 prohibiting a Republican Senate candidate and his supporters from continuing to “follow[]
11 Native Americans from the polling places,” “copy the license plates of Native Americans 12 driving to the polling places” and record “the license plates of Native Americans driving 13 away from the polling places”). Invasions of physical space and intimations of possible 14 future violence, prosecution, or legal action based on a voter’s presence at the polls 15 constitute unlawful voter intimidation. And even as to those persons who do not directly 16 participate in those activities, the Klan Act makes it unlawful to conspire with others to 17 promote, organize, and facilitate those efforts.

20 ELECTION ON THE BASIS OF BOGUS CLAIMS OF VOTER FRAUD

21 21. In the months leading up to the 2016 election, Trump has made an escalating 22 series of statements, often racially tinged, suggesting that his supporters should go to 23 particular precincts on Election Day and intimidate voters—and that if they do not do so, 24 he will lose the election because certain people, in certain precincts, will vote “15 times” 25 for Secretary Hillary Rodham Clinton.

26 22. For example, Trump told a crowd in Altoona, Pennsylvania, in August that “I 27 hope you people can . . . not just vote on the 8th, [but also] go around and look and watch 28 other polling places and make sure that it’s 100-percent fine. We’re going to watch

1 Pennsylvania—go down to certain areas and watch and study—[and] make sure other 2 people don't come in and vote five times. . . . The only way we can lose, in my opinion—3 and I really mean this, Pennsylvania—is if cheating goes on.”

4 23. In a speech ten days later in Ohio, Trump explained that he did not just mean that 5 supporters should “watch”: “You’ve got to get everybody to go out and watch, and go out 6 and vote,” Trump said. “And when [I] say ‘watch,’ you know what I’m talking about, 7 right?” Trump has explained that his “watchers” should act in a capacity similar to law 8 enforcement, even though they will not in fact be acting in a law-enforcement capacity.
9 In other words, Trump is encouraging his supporters to act as vigilantes.

10 24. In the midst of these comments, the Trump Campaign rolled out a form on its 11 website for supporters to sign up to be “Trump Election Observers” in order to “Stop 12 Crooked Hillary From Rigging This Election!”

13 25. Trump has specifically encouraged his supporters who work in law enforcement 14 to use their official authority to assist in “watching” Democratic-leaning communities.
15 For example, he stated at the Altoona rally in August that to protect against supposed 16 voter fraud, “[w]e have to call up law enforcement” and “we have to have the sheriffs and 17 the police chiefs and everybody watching.”

18 26. Trump’s exhortations have grown more ominous and specific as the election 19 draws closer. At an October 1 rally in Manheim, Pennsylvania, for example, Trump 20 instructed his supporters to “go check out [other] areas because a lot of bad things happen, 21 and we don’t want to lose for that reason.” Trump and Trump Campaign surrogates have 22 told supporters that voters of color should be suspected of fraud. Trump has suggested 23 that Latino voters are undocumented immigrants whom the federal government has 24 allowed to “pour into this country” specifically to vote in the election. And in a nationally 25 televised interview on October 16, former New York City Mayor and Trump surrogate 26 Rudy Giuliani expressed that voter fraud is concentrated in predominantly minority 27 communities in “inner cities” that support “Democrats,” like “Philadelphia and Chicago.”
28

1 27. While speaking in Ambridge, Pennsylvania, on October 11, Trump warned that it 2 is “[s]o important that you watch other communities”—which, he clarified, meant 3 Philadelphia—“because we don’t want this election stolen from us And everybody 4 knows what I’m talking about.” Trump was referring in particular to stories he had 5 circulated earlier in the summer about Philadelphia precincts comprised nearly exclusively 6 of African-American voters in which Mitt Romney received no votes in 2012. At that 7 same rally, a prominent Trump supporter, U.S. Representative Bill Shuster, made clear 8 that Trump supporters should focus their voter intimidation in Philadelphia, stating: “The 9 people in Western and Central Pennsylvania have to overcome what goes on down in 10 Philadelphia—the cheating.” Another prominent Trump supporter, former Speaker of the 11 House Newt Gingrich, has similarly stated that the election might be “stolen” because of 12 voter fraud in Democratic-leaning communities: “You look at Philadelphia, you look at 13 St. Louis, you look at Chicago, I mean, again, I’m old enough, I remember when Richard 14 Nixon had the election stolen in 1960 So to suggest that we have—that you don’t 15 have theft in Philadelphia is to deny reality.”

16 28. At an October 29 rally in Phoenix, Trump repeated his claim that election is 17 “rigged” against him and “the outcome is fixed.” He later elaborated that the election is 18 “rigged” because of “voter fraud,” and instructed his supporters to “watch, watch, be 19 careful, watch.” Trump has further made clear: “This is what I mean when I say that our 20 system is rigged. Be careful, watch for voter fraud.” Trump was introduced at the 21 Phoenix by Joe Arpaio, the Sheriff of Maricopa County, who is under federal civil rights 22 investigation for racial profiling of Latino Americans and has been charged with contempt 23 of court for failing to comply with court orders in that case.

24 29. Trump’s vice presidential running mate, Indiana Governor Mike Pence, has joined 25 in calling for Trump supporters to engage in voter intimidation, stating that “we’re 26 encouraging all our supporters . . . to be involved” in monitoring polling places for voter 27 fraud.

1 30. Trump now asserts at rallies that the presence of fraud at the polls will prevent 2 him from winning the November 8 election. His comments are consistently directed at 3 Democratic-leaning communities with large minority populations. For example, at an 4 October 18 rally in Colorado Springs, Colorado, Trump warned his supporters about voter 5 fraud: “[T]ake a look at Philadelphia, what’s been going on, take a look at Chicago, take 6 a look at St. Louis. Take a look at some of these cities, where you see things happening 7 that are horrendous.”

8 31. At an October 20 rally in Delaware, Ohio, Trump told the crowd that Secretary 9 Clinton is “truly capable of anything, including voter fraud.” At the same rally, Trump 10 repeated what he called “terrible, frightening statistics” (which also happen to be false), 11 like the claim that “fourteen percent of non-citizens are registered to vote,” or that “1.8 12 million people are dead, but they’re registered to vote, some of whom voted even though 13 they’re dead. Which is really a hard thing to do. But it’s easy, if fraud is involved. . . .
14 One was a Republican, and after death, became a Democrat. It’s true!”

15 32. At a rally in Golden, Colorado on October 29, 2016, Trump accused postal 16 workers of throwing out ballots that they don’t “like.” Trump told the crowd, “I have real 17 problems with ballots being sent. Does that make sense? Like people saying, ‘Oh here’s 18 a ballot,’ being, ‘here’s another ballot - throw it away, throw it away. Oh, here’s one I 19 like, we’ll keep that one. I have real problems—so get your ballots in. We’re trying to 20 have some pretty good supervision out there. We got a lot of people watching you people 21 that collect the ballots. We got a lot of people watching the people that collect the ballots.
22 Now, the, you know, dishonest media will say ‘oh, that wasn’t nice. Everything is so 23 honest. Everything in our country –’ We have 1.8 million people that are dead registered 24 to vote. Right? And some of them vote. I wonder how that happens. We have 2.7 25 million people on more than one state, they’re registered two states, and sometimes more 26 than that. And I could go on and on and on.”

27 33. Stone has amplified Trump’s message. Stone is a far-right-wing political 28 operative who has served as a close advisor to Trump throughout his run for President.

1 Stone has a history of engaging in voter intimidation, racist and misogynist hate speech, 2 and incitement to violence. Stone has publicly called for the execution of Secretary 3 Clinton, Senator Bernie Sanders, and George Soros, among others. He has referred to 4 Herman Cain as a “mandingo,” to former presidential candidate Ben Carson as an “Uncle 5 Tom,” and Representative Allen West as an “arrogant know-it-all negro.” He is also the 6 peddler of numerous widely discredited conspiracy theories, just a few of which include 7 that the Bush family tried to assassinate President Reagan, that President Lyndon Johnson
8 orchestrated the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, and that Senator Ted Cruz’s 9 father was tied to the Kennedy assassination.

10 34. Stone’s super PAC Stop the Steal is currently running a website called 11 “StopTheSteal.org,” through which Stone is actively signing up Trump supporters to 12 “volunteer” to fight “voter fraud.” #StopTheSteal is a popular hashtag among Trump 13 supporters on Twitter, and Stone’s group maintains an active Facebook presence. Stone 14 and his organization also have widely disseminated messages via websites such as 15 stopthesteal.org and through social media under hashtags such as #StopTheSteal, falsely 16 claiming that Secretary Clinton rigs elections. One image states: “HILLARY CLINTON 17 CHEATED AND STOLE THE PRIMARY FROM BERNIE . . . WE THE PEOPLE CAN 18 STOP HER FROM STEALING THE GENERAL.” Another states that “25% of Votes
19 needed to win, is decided by illegals” and that hundreds of “electoral votes [are] at RISK 20 of being RIGGED.” Through these and other messages, Stone has sought to encourage 21 Trump supporters to engage in unlawful voter intimidation.

22 35. Stone is also using social media to promote the common plan that Trump 23 supporters—and particularly those who have agreed to engage in vigilante “ballot 24 security” efforts—wear red shirts on Election Day.

25 36. Further, Stone and Stop the Steal Inc. are actively recruiting Trump supporters for 26 “exit polling,” specifically targeting nine Democratic-leaning cities with large minority 27 populations. As of October 29, 2016, Stone claimed to have organized 2,177 volunteers 28 to engage in this “exit polling” operation. That number includes at least 93 volunteers

1 signed up to participate throughout Arizona according to the website at 2 <https://stopthesteal.org/states/Arizona/>.

3 37. Stone's purported polling exercise serves no legitimate purpose. Stone does not 4 run a polling firm, and effective "exit polling" requires focusing on competitive electoral 5 districts rather than areas that vote overwhelmingly for one party. On information and 6 belief, the purpose and effect of these so-called "exit polling" activities, which are focused 7 on majority-minority communities such as certain areas in Phoenix, is to discourage or 8 intimidate urban and minority voters from casting ballots.

9 38. Through an organization called "Vote Protectors," Stone has also recruited 10 hundreds of volunteers to watch polling places. The Vote Protectors website permits any 11 volunteer to download and print official-looking identification badges, and asks that 12 volunteers "commit to go out in November and Youtube and Periscope streams to the 13 [Vote Protectors] website." The website offers detailed instructions for posting videos of 14 voters online but provides few instructions for conducting legitimate exit polling. Instead, 15 volunteers are permitted to tally up votes on the Vote Protectors website—for Trump or 16 any other candidate—without any proof that they had spoken to voters or visited a polling 17 site. Vote Protectors discontinued some, but not all, of these practices after they were 18 exposed by a national media outlet.

19 39. As recently as October 26, 2016, Vote Protectors encouraged volunteers it styles 20 "citizen journalists" to "approach voters at the polls," identify themselves as "reporting 21 for Vote Protectors," and ask them about election fraud.

22 40. The notion of widespread voter fraud in modern American politics is itself a 23 fraud. Every attempt to verify the presence of voter fraud has proven fruitless. See 24 generally Lorraine C. Minnite, The Myth of Voter Fraud (2010) (concluding that the 25 notion of widespread voter fraud is a "myth"). One 2014 study found 241 potentially 26 fraudulent ballots had been cast nationwide over a fourteen-year period—out of 1 billion 27 ballots cast.

41. Those statistics help explain why the courts that have examined the evidence have concluded that widespread voter fraud does not exist. In a challenge to Pennsylvania's voter ID law, for example, "[t]he parties [we]re not aware of any incidents of in-person voter fraud in Pennsylvania and d[id] not have direct personal knowledge of in person voter fraud elsewhere." Applewhite v. Commonwealth, No. 330 M.D. 2012, 2014 WL 184988, at *57 (Pa. Commw. Ct. Jan. 17, 2014). A federal judge in North Dakota recently determined that "[t]he undisputed evidence before the Court reveals that voter fraud in North Dakota has been virtually non-existent." Brakebill v. Jaeger, No. 16-cv-00008 (DLH), Dkt. No. 50 (D.N.D. Aug. 1, 2016). A federal judge in Wisconsin has similarly observed that "[t]he Wisconsin experience demonstrates that a preoccupation with mostly phantom election fraud leads to real incidents of disenfranchisement, which undermine rather than enhance confidence in elections, particularly in minority communities." One Wis. Inst. v. Thomsen, No. 15-cv-324 (JDP) (W.D. Wis. July 29, 2016); see also Crawford v. Marion Cty. Election Bd., 553 U.S. 181, 194 (2008) ("The only kind of voter fraud that SEA 483 addresses is in-person voter impersonation at polling places. The record contains no evidence of any such fraud actually occurring in Indiana at any time in its history."); Veasey v. Abbott, 830 F.3d 216, 238 (5th Cir. 2016) ("[T]he evidence before the Legislature was that in-person voting, the only concern addressed by SB 14, yielded only two convictions for in-person voter impersonation fraud out of 20 million votes cast in the decade leading up to SB 14's passage."); League of Women Voters of N.C. v. North Carolina, 769 F.3d 224, 246 (4th Cir. 2014) ("North Carolina asserts goals of electoral integrity and fraud prevention. But nothing in the district court's portrayal of the facts suggests that those are anything other than merely imaginable."); Frank v. Walker, 17 F. Supp. 3d 837, 848 (E.D. Wis. 2014) ("[I]t appears that there have been zero incidents of in-person voter-impersonation fraud in Wisconsin during recent elections."), rev'd on other grounds, 768 F.3d 744 (7th Cir. 2014); Lee v. Va. State Bd. of Elections, No. 3:15-cv-357-HEH, 2016 WL 2946181, at *23 (E.D. Va. May 19, 2016) ("evidence of actual voter impersonation-type fraud was scant").

1 42. The fact that widespread voter fraud is a myth does not prevent many people—
2 particularly those who are listening most closely to the RNC, Trump, and their surrogates 3 such as Stone—from believing it is real. As a recent Washington Post-ABC poll showed, 4 nearly 70% of Trump’s supporters (but less than half of all voters) believe that voter fraud 5 happens “very often” or “somewhat often.” This widespread belief, despite a total lack of 6 evidence to support it, has been stoked for decades by certain elements of the Republican 7 Party, including Stone and Trump’s allies in the so-called “alt-right” media ecosystem, 8 such as the Breitbart website that was run until recently by Trump Campaign CEO Steve 9 Bannon. In the last few months alone, Breitbart has run dozens of articles on supposed 10 voter fraud, with ominous headlines about “Obama forces” and “Soros-backed” cover-11 ups, and Stone has appeared on Breitbart-affiliated radio stations to echo Trump’s 12 fearmongering about a stolen election. Stone’s “StopTheSteal” campaign has fanned these 13 flames by widely distributing via social media and elsewhere the false claim that “the 14 Democratic National Committee” and “the Clintons” “intend to flood the polls with 15 illegals” and encouraging Trump supporters to “monitor for voting fraud” in “targeted 16 localities.” And, appearing on Face the Nation on October 23, 2016, RNC Chairman 17 Reince Priebus declared that voter fraud “is real,” and that what Trump is doing is “trying 18 to also tell his folks to watch out for this fraud that might occur.”

19 43. Voter intimidation efforts aimed at suppressing minority voters have frequently 20 been “ostensibly aimed at combatting voter fraud.” Ne. Ohio Coal. for the Homeless v.
21 Husted, No. 2:06-cv-896, 2016 WL 3166251, at *28 (S.D. Ohio June 7, 2016), aff’d in 22 part, rev’d in part on other grounds, No. 16-3603, 2016 WL 4761326 (6th Cir. Sept. 13, 23 2016); see also Veasey, 830 F.3d at 237 (“[T]he record shows that Texas has a history of 24 justifying voter suppression efforts such as the poll tax and literacy tests with the race-25 neutral reason of promoting ballot integrity.”). As the New Jersey District Court held in 26 rejecting the RNC’s 2009 request to vacate the Consent Decree, “[v]oter intimidation 27 presents an ongoing threat to the participation of minority individuals in the political 28 process, and continues to pose a far greater danger to the integrity of that process than the

1 type of voter fraud the RNC is prevented from addressing by the Decree.” Democratic 2 Nat’l Comm., 671 F. Supp. 2d at 578-79.

3 44. Trump’s calls for unlawful vigilantism to stop purported voter fraud are 4 calculated to advance a coordinated effort to harass and intimidate voters at the polls.
5 Many of the Trump Campaign’s supporters have responded to Trump’s call to action.

7 REPUBLICAN NATIONAL AND STATE COMMITTEES CONSPIRE WITH 8 TRUMP AND STONE TO ENCOURAGE VOTER INTIMIDATION

9 45. As the Republican Party nominee for President, Trump and his campaign 10 coordinate closely with the RNC and ARP on a wide variety of matters, including overall 11 campaign strategy, public messaging, voter outreach, and field operations. It has been 12 widely reported that the Trump Campaign “relinquished control over many of its tactical 13 decisions” to the RNC. Shortly after Trump became the Republican nominee, the RNC 14 met with the Trump Campaign to discuss what they described as “the merger.” The 15 Trump Campaign and RNC “negotiated a partnership,” in which the RNC “buil[t] assets 16 and infrastructure and the nominee gets to benefit from it.”

17 46. On May 25, 2016, the RNC created a joint fundraising committee with the Trump 18 Campaign specifically to fund the Trump Campaign and its operations, and to elect 19 Republicans up and down the ballot.

20 47. The Trump Campaign has decided largely to refrain from setting up its own 21 offices and staff in Arizona and elsewhere, as past Republican Party nominees have done.
22 Instead, as has been widely reported, the Trump Campaign is relying predominantly on 23 the RNC and Republican state party entities (such as the ARP) to manage get-out-the-vote 24 operations in contested states such as Arizona.

25 48. The Trump Campaign’s coordination with the RNC and ARP extends to efforts to 26 monitor polling locations for purported voter fraud. Trump’s running mate, Governor 27 Mike Pence, publicly confirmed that the Trump Campaign is working directly with the 28 RNC and state Republican parties on ballot security measures. At an August 3, 2016,

1 town hall rally in Denver, Colorado, Pence was asked “how is the Trump-Pence campaign 2 going to . . . prevent” Secretary Clinton from “steal[ing] this election.” Pence 3 responded: “I will tell you that the Trump campaign and the Republican National 4 Committee are working very very closely with state governments and secretaries of states 5 all over the country to ensure ballot integrity. . . . We are working hard all over the 6 country, the Republican National Committee is working all over the country, but I would 7 encourage everyone within the sound of my voice, get involved, participate, be a poll 8 worker on election day . . . be a part of that process, and uphold the integrity of one person 9 one vote in America.”

10 49. The RNC has delegated “ballot security” initiatives to its agents in the state 11 parties. For example, Robert Graham, the chair of the Arizona Republican Party, recently 12 remarked that individuals who are designated as Republican poll watchers “will be the 13 eyes and ears of the GOP” to identify people who attempt to drop off multiple absentee 14 ballots at early voting, polling locations, or the county recorder’s office. Despite 15 acknowledging that Arizona law limits what a party-designated observer can do—16 including restrictions on photography and talking to voters—Graham asserted that 17 “they’re still free to follow voters out into the parking lot, ask them questions, take their 18 pictures and photograph their vehicles and license plate” as long as they are more than 75 19 feet outside a polling place.

20 50. Robert Graham is an RNC member and therefore its agent. He has been widely 21 mentioned as a potential successor to Reince Priebus as Chair of the RNC. On October 22 10, 2016, Graham issued a press release stating: “It is my responsibility, as a member of 23 the Republican National Committee, to elect our Republican nominees and defend our 24 country against all enemies. Hillary Clinton is an enemy to our nation’s security, general 25 welfare and blessings of liberty. I will continue to work with passion, integrity and 26 restlessness to stop Hillary Clinton and elect Donald J. Trump.”

27 51. ARP’s official spokesman, Tim Sifert, has similarly encouraged Republican poll 28 watchers to ask purportedly suspicious voters to provide their names, and to “turn on their

1 phone to take video or pictures or something like that,” including “a picture of the person”
2 as well as “the license plate on the voter’s car.” Sifert reports that this year over 1,000 3 people have signed up to serve as poll observers for the ARP, more than 10 times the 4 number of people who were interested in 2012. Sifert attributes this surge in volunteers 5 directly to Donald Trump and his calls for citizens to monitor the polls.

6 52. Last week, Trump’s campaign manager Kellyanne Conway confirmed that the 7 Trump campaign is “actively working with” the RNC and other branches of the 8 Republican Party apparatus, including the ARP, to engage in “ballot security” initiatives.
9 The RNC and ARP have continued this close coordination even after Trump’s widespread 10 and racially charged pleas to his supporters to engage in voter intimidation in areas like 11 Phoenix that contain large communities of racial minorities.

12 53. Only recently, the Trump Campaign distributed talking points to Republican Party 13 surrogates directing that they “[m]ust make points on rigged system,” and encouraging 14 them to claim there has been “an increase in unlawful voting by illegal immigrants.”

16 CO-CONSPIRATORS RESPOND WITH PROMISES TO INTIMIDATE VOTERS

17 54. The available evidence suggests that Trump’s supporters are responding to his 18 calls to engage in voter intimidation. The Boston Globe has reported on Trump supporters 19 who are planning to engage in unlawful voter intimidation, and who understand 20 themselves to be doing so at Trump’s behest:

21 “Trump said to watch your precincts. I’m going to go, for sure,” said Steve 22 Webb, a 61-year-old carpenter from Fairfield, Ohio.

23 “I’ll look for . . . well, it’s called racial profiling. Mexicans. Syrians. People 24 who can’t speak American,” he said. “I’m going to go right up behind them.
25 I’ll do everything legally. I want to see if they are accountable. I’m not going 26 to do anything illegal. I’m going to make them a little bit nervous.”

1 55. Notwithstanding Mr. Webb's pledge not to do "anything illegal," the conduct in 2 which he plans to engage on Trump's behalf—deliberately targeting minority voters via 3 "racial profiling" in order to "make them a little bit nervous" while they are attempting to 4 vote—unequivocally violates Section 11(b) of the Voting Rights Act. See, e.g., 5 Temporary Restraining Order, Daschle, No. 04-cv-4177, Dkt. No. 6.

6 56. Similarly, Harry Miller, purportedly of Palm Beach, Florida, tweeted in response 7 to Trump's calls for election observers that he would be "wear'n red at polls... We gonna 8 be watch'n fer shenanigans...& haul ya away..." The tweet included a picture of a pickup 9 truck with Florida plates and a person-sized cage built into the bed, surrounded by 10 American flags. Miller has over 20,000 Twitter followers and tweets almost exclusively 11 about Trump, Secretary Clinton, and racially charged political themes such as deporting 12 "Muzzys." A typical tweet asserts that "Our Muzzy Commander in Chief" is "shov'n 13 Sharia Law down our throats.... & Crooked Hiltlery follow'n his every move..."

14 57. At a "poll watcher training" class for Trump supporters organized by the 15 Republican Party of Virginia, would-be watchers expressed their belief that "there is 16 going to be massive voter fraud, and it definitely will be to ensure Hillary Clinton wins."
17 The leader of the class listed purported voter-fraud schemes "orchestrated by liberal 18 groups," including "civil rights leaders coercing severely disabled people into voting." 19 One Trump supporter seeking to be a poll watcher said her "biggest concern" was 20 "[i]llegals voting," and noted as an example of said phenomenon that in 2012 she saw 21 voters who did not appear to speak English.

22 58. Other examples of vigilantism and planned voter intimidation connected to Trump 23 and Stone's call to action abound. For instance, as noted above, the ARP is training poll 24 watchers to demand identifying information from voters dropping off multiple ballots, 25 encouraging volunteers to follow suspected violators of Arizona's ballot collection law 26 into parking lots, interrogate them, record their license plates, and even call 911 to report 27 that a felony is in progress—regardless of whether the poll watcher actually knows 28 whether the person is legally allowed to drop off the ballots.

59. Similarly, on October 13, 2016, two armed Trump supporters staged a purported “protest” in front of the office of a Virginia Democratic candidate for Congress, Jane Dittmar. The armed Trump supporters, one of whom wore a signature Trump campaign hat, stood for nearly twelve hours outside Dittmar’s campaign office, turning sideways so that those inside could see that they were carrying firearms.

60. In North Carolina, according to one report, “someone showed up to early voting with a badge saying ‘poll observer’ and was photographing and videotaping cars coming and going and ‘generally being an intimidating factor there.’”

61. Trump supporters have also sought to sow misinformation among supporters of Secretary Clinton. For example, Joshua Lorenz, a Republican City Councilman from Murrys ville, Pennsylvania, posted on Facebook an image with the phrase: “Vote Hillary November 8th” and “YOU CAN VOTE AT HOME COMFORTABLY ONLINE!” with instructions for how only Clinton supporters could purportedly vote online. Lorenz included with his post a statement: “More proof that the election process is rigged. Only Hillary supporters can vote from their smartphones or in the comfort of their own homes.” A similar image being circulated online features a photo of Clinton and the statement: “Did you know? Pennsylvania now has online voting?” in a font that is similar to that used in official Clinton campaign advertising. Of course, these statements are false.

62. Stone has participated directly in this misinformation campaign. On October 23, 2016, Stone sent out a message via his Twitter feed deliberately designed to mislead Democratic voters by representing—using Secretary Clinton’s likeness and logo—that supporters can “VOTE the NEW way on Tues. Nov 8th” by texting “HILLARY to 8888,” after which voters will apparently “receive official confirmation.”

63. All the while, Trump continues to fan the flames of polling-place harassment targeting non-white voters in urban areas, and continues to invoke the baseless claim that the unlawful conduct that his supporters are planning, at his behest, is justified by “voter fraud.” Trump and Stone’s formalized efforts to organize these vigilantes through the 1 “Trump Election Observers” and “StopTheSteal” mechanisms remain mostly hidden from 2 public view.

3 DEFENDANTS’ PLANNED ACTIONS ARE NEITHER LEGITIMATE NOR 4 LAWFUL MEASURES TO PROTECT AGAINST VOTER FRAUD

6 64. Trump’s calls for his supporters to travel en masse outside their counties of 7 residence and engage in vigilante voter intimidation bears no possible relationship to 8 legitimate efforts to protect against voter fraud. In fact, Trump has directed his supporters 9 to engage in activity forbidden by Arizona state election law.

10 65. Arizona law provides that “one challenger for each political party may be present 11 and act,” after they have been designated by the county party chairman “by written 12 appointment addressed to the election board.” Ariz. Rev. Stat. § 16-590(A)-(B). But “not 13 more than the number of party representatives for each party which were mutually agreed 14 upon by each political party represented on the ballot shall be in the polling place at one 15 time.” Ariz. Rev. Stat. § 16-590(C).

16 66. Arizona law also provides that no one other than “election officials,” “one 17 representative at any one time of each political party represented on the ballot who has 18 been appointed by the county chairman of that political party,” “and the challengers 19 allowed by law” may enter a 75-foot perimeter around polling places during voting 20 “except for the purpose of voting.” Ariz. Rev. Stat. § 16-515(A). “[N]o electioneering 21 may occur within the seventy-five foot limit,” and after voting, voters must “promptly 22 move outside the seventy-five foot limit.” Id. The officials and other persons permitted 23 within the perimeter for purposes other than voting “shall not wear, carry or display 24 materials that identify or express support for or opposition to a candidate, a political party 25 or organization . . . or other political issue, and shall not electioneer” within the perimeter.
26 Ariz. Rev. Stat. § 16-515(F). Photography and video recording within the limit is 27 forbidden. Ariz. Rev. Stat. § 16-515(G).

67. Trump has urged his supporters to move beyond legitimate and lawful voter protection activity and engage in voter intimidation. See Ariz. Rev. Stat. § 16-1013(A) (making it generally illegal to “[d]irectly or indirectly . . . in any manner to practice intimidation upon or against any person, in order to induce or compel [a] person to vote or refrain from voting,” and to “impede, prevent, or otherwise interfere with the free exercise of the elective franchise of any voter, or to compel, induce, or to prevail upon a voter either to cast or refrain from casting his vote at an election” by means of “any forcible or fraudulent device or contrivance whatever.”).

68. Defendants' and their supporters who join in Defendants' concerted misinformation campaign are also in violation of Arizona's prohibition on "imped[ing], prevent[ing] or otherwise interfere[ing] with the free exercise of the elective franchise of any voter," or "compel[ling], induc[ing] or . . . prevail[ing] upon a voter either to cast or refrain from casting a his vote" by means of "any forcible or fraudulent device or contrivance whatever." Ariz. Rev. Stat. § 16-1013(A)(2).

69. It is unfortunate that this Complaint must be filed. What would be more unfortunate is if voter suppression and intimidation were allowed to undermine the democratic process. This Court should act quickly and firmly to ensure that the citizens of Arizona are able to vote free from intimidation in the 2016 election.

COUNT ONE: KU KLUX KLAN ACT

70. Plaintiff incorporates by reference the allegations of the preceding paragraphs.

71. Defendants the Trump Campaign, Stone, Stop the Steal Inc., and the ARP have called on supporters to descend on polling places in “certain areas”—generally, the urban communities of color where they and their allies have stoked fabricated threats of massive voter fraud—in order to intimidate voters at the polls. Trump’s calls to stake out polling places in those communities and to suspiciously, aggressively “watch” these minority

1 voters—"You know what I mean," he has clarified for his co-conspirators—have resulted 2 in plans to engage in "racial profiling" and threaten lawful voters with the prospect of 3 monitoring, questioning after voting under the guise of phony "exit polling" or by self-4 declared "citizen journalists," baseless legal action, and even possible physical harm, 5 including unlawful detention because they have come out to cast a ballot.

6 72. The Trump Campaign, Stone, and Stop the Steal Inc. have engaged in online 7 organizing and mobilization efforts to support their plan.

8 73. The RNC and Defendant ARP are providing financial, personnel, and other 9 organizational support to the voter intimidation efforts launched by the Trump Campaign, 10 Stone, and Stop the Steal Inc. in violation of the Ku Klux Klan Act.

11 74. Absent declaratory and injunctive relief, voters will be subjected to intimidation, 12 threats, and perhaps even force at the hands of vigilante "poll watchers" and "ballot
13 integrity" volunteers on Election Day, and many may suffer unwarranted delays or denials 14 of their right to cast a ballot in the approaching elections.

15 75. Plaintiffs are entitled to a declaration that the ARP, the Trump Campaign, Stone, 16 Stop the Steal Inc., and their co-conspirators have violated the Ku Klux Klan Act through 17 their conspiracy to intimidate voters, and an injunction enjoining Defendants and others 18 from any further activity to advance their conspiracy.

20 COUNT TWO: VOTING RIGHTS ACT

21 76. Plaintiff incorporates by reference the allegations of the preceding paragraphs.

22 77. Following Trump's urging, Defendants have called for—and their supporters have 23 promised—polling-place activity that is objectively likely to instill fear in voters. Such 24 intimidation includes racial targeting, invasions of physical space, aggressive questioning 25 and other forms of menacing, suggestions of possible criminal prosecution, and threats of 26 physical violence or harm.

1 78. The RNC and Defendant ARP have provided financial, personnel, and 2 organizational support to the efforts of the Trump Campaign, Stone, and Stop the Steal 3 Inc. to organize people to engage in intimidation efforts in Arizona.

4 79. This planned course of intimidation constitutes a violation of Section 11(b) of the 5 Voting Rights Act, which prohibits all actual or attempted "intimidation," "threats," or 6 "coercion" against a person, either "for voting or attempting to vote."

7 80. Absent declaratory and injunctive relief, voters will be subjected to intimidation,
8 threats, and perhaps even force at the hands of vigilante "poll watchers" and "ballot
9 integrity" volunteers on Election Day, and many may suffer unwarranted delays or denials 10 of their right to cast a ballot in the approaching elections.

11 81. Plaintiffs are entitled to a declaration that the ARP, the Trump Campaign, Stone, 12 Stop the Steal Inc., and their co-conspirators have violated Section 11(b) of the Voting 13 Rights Act.

14 COUNT THREE: INJUNCTIVE RELIEF

15 82. Based on Defendants' above-described violations of law, Plaintiff is entitled to an 16 injunction enjoining the Defendants and others from any and all planned voter-17 intimidation activities. This activity includes but is not limited to:

- 18 a. Funding, encouraging, or otherwise supporting, including by training or 19 organizing, individuals who are not officially appointed party or candidate 20 representatives under Arizona law to be present at or around polling places or 21 voter lines for the purpose of engaging in poll watching activities;
- 22 b. Monitoring polling places, or permitting, encouraging, or assisting individuals 23 to monitor polling places, if the proposed monitor does not meet the statutory 24 requirements for service as a poll watcher;
- 25 c. Gathering or loitering within seventy five (75) feet of a polling place, or 26 permitting, encouraging, or assisting any individuals to gather or loiter within 27 seventy five (75) feet of a polling place, unless such person is one of the 28

1 appointed party representatives for each candidate or party who may be present 2 in a polling place at any time;

3 d. Questioning, interrogating, or verbally harassing voters or prospective voters, or 4 training, organizing, or directing others to do the same, for the purpose or with 5 the effect of intimidating voters or prospective voters;

6 e. Following, taking photos of, or otherwise recording voters or prospective 7 voters, those assisting voters or prospective voters, or their vehicles, or training, 8 organizing, or directing others to do the same.

9 83. Defendants Stone and Stop the Steal should be enjoined from questioning, and 10 from training, organizing, or deputizing any persons to question voters at Arizona polling 11 locations under the guise of purported “exit polling” operations.

13 PRAYER FOR RELIEF

14 WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs pray this Court:

15 a. Declare that the harassment or intimidation of voters at or outside the polls 16 during the 2016 Election based on unsubstantiated beliefs in supposed voter 17 fraud—including through aggressive questioning of those waiting to vote, 18 threats or suggestions of legal or criminal action, or any other form of menacing 19 or intimation of violence—is contrary to law.

20 b. Declare that Defendants’ “exit polling” and “citizen journalist” initiatives are 21 contrary to law.

22 c. Temporarily restrain and enjoin any such conduct effective through November 23 8, 2016.

24 d. Temporarily restrain and enjoin the ARP, the Trump Campaign, Stone, Stop the 25 Steal Inc., and their affiliates and collaborators from organizing efforts to 26 engage in voter intimidation.
28

- 1 e. Publicize the Order to all law enforcement and elections officials in advance of 2 Election Day.
3 f. Grant such other relief as this Court may deem proper.

15 Pursuant to Rule 65 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Plaintiff Arizona 16 Democratic Party hereby moves this Court for a Temporary Restraining Order and/or 20 enjoining Defendants—as well as their agents, employees, successors, and attorneys, and 21 all persons in active concert and participation with them—from advancing their 22 conspiracy to intimidate, threaten, harass, or coerce voters in violation of Section 11(b) of 23 the Voting Rights Act, 52 U.S.C. § 10307(b), and the Ku Klux Klan Act of 1871, 42

Attorney of Record for Plaintiff

Arizona Democratic Party,

Plaintiff,

v.

Arizona Republican Party, Donald J. Trump
Stop the Steal, Inc.,

Defendants.

No. CV-16-03752-PHX-JJT

PLAINTIFF'S MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF ITS MOTION FOR A TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER AND/OR
PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

A temporary restraining order (TRO) is urgently needed to protect the right of Arizona's minority voters to vote free from intimidation, harassment, and coercion. As explained below, the allegations in the accompanying Complaint and material presented with this motion justify immediate temporary relief in order to prevent irreparable harm. An injunction against Defendants' planned intimidation tactics is the only way to protect countless lawfully registered voters from harassment, threats, and intimidation that will interfere with their ability to vote in the rapidly approaching election.

Relief should be granted because: Plaintiff is likely to succeed on the merits of its claims under Section 11(b) of the Voting Rights Act, 52 U.S.C. § 10307(b), and the Ku Klux Klan Act of 1871, 42 U.S.C. § 1985(3); irreparable harm to Plaintiff, candidates, and voters will occur in the absence of immediate relief; the balance of equities tips in favor of barring Defendants from carrying out their plans to intimidate, harass, and suppress voters; and an injunction barring such flagrantly unlawful conduct is in the public interest.

2 Wild Rockies v. Cottrell, 632 F.3d 1127, 1131 (9th Cir. 2011) (noting that an injunction 3 may issue under a “sliding scale” approach “so that a stronger showing of one element 4 may offset a weaker showing of another,” for example where “serious questions going to 5 the merits were raised and the balance of hardships tips sharply in [plaintiff’s] favor”).

6 I. STATEMENT OF FACTS

7 Donald J. Trump for President, Inc., Trump’s close adviser Roger J. Stone, Jr., 8 Stone’s organization Stop the Steal, Inc., and the Arizona Republican Party (“ARP”) are 9 conspiring to threaten, intimidate, and thereby prevent Democratic and minority voters in 10 urban neighborhoods from voting in the 2016 election. The stated goal of the Trump 11 Campaign, as explained by an unnamed official to Bloomberg News on October 27, is to 12 depress voter turnout among constituencies likely to vote for Democrats, including 13 minorities—in the official’s words: “We have three major voter suppression operations 14 under way.” Declaration of Sarah R. Gonski, Esq. (hereinafter “Gonski Decl.”) at Ex. 17.
15 In recent weeks, Trump has sought to advance that goal by using the loudest microphone 16 in the nation to implore his supporters to engage in unlawful intimidation at Arizona 17 polling places. Trump’s exhortations have been amplified by direct and tacit assistance 18 from the ARP and from Stone, who helped pioneer similar tactics in the 1980s before 19 those efforts were blocked by the federal courts. See Gonski Decl. at Ex. 24. All have 20 sought to organize, fund, and assist Trump’s supporters to carry out the conspiracy’s 21 goals. Trump’s supporters have pledged to descend upon polling places in “certain areas” 22 where many Democratic and minority voters live to inhibit their efforts to vote.

23 In the months leading up to the 2016 election, Trump has made an escalating series 24 of statements, often racially tinged, suggesting that his supporters should intimidate 25 voters—intimating that otherwise he will lose the election because of imagined voter 26 fraud. Of course, voter fraud is practically nonexistent—but that has not stopped Trump 27 from telling his supporters that certain people, in certain precincts, will vote “15 times” 28 for Secretary Clinton. Gonski Decl. at Ex. 18. For example, Trump told a crowd in 1 Altoona, Pennsylvania in August that “I hope you people can ... not just vote on the 8th, 2 [but] go around and look and watch other polling places and make sure that it’s 100-3 percent fine. . . . We’re going to watch Pennsylvania—go down to certain areas and 4 watch and study—[and] make sure other people don’t come in and vote five times.”

5 Gonski Decl. at Ex. 19. Ten days later, at an Ohio speech, Trump explained that he did 6 not just mean that supporters should “watch”: “You’ve got to get everybody to go out and 7 watch, and go out and vote,” Trump said. “And when [I] say ‘watch,’ you know what I’m 8 talking about, right?” Trump has explained that his “watchers” should act in a capacity 9 similar to law enforcement (i.e., as vigilantes). Id. Trump and Trump Campaign 10 surrogates like Rudy Giuliani have told supporters that voters of color should be suspected 11 of fraud. Gonski Decl. at Ex. 21. Trump has suggested that Latino voters are 12 undocumented immigrants whom the federal government has allowed to “pour into this 13 country” specifically to vote in the election. Gonski Decl. at Ex. 22.

14 Meanwhile, the Trump campaign published a signup form on its website for 15 supporters to be “Trump Election Observers” to stop “Crooked Hillary From Rigging This 16 Election,” further encouraging his supporters to join in a common plan to “watch” voters 17 in “certain areas” of states like Arizona for voter fraud. Gonski Decl. at Ex. 3.

18 Trump now constantly repeats at rallies that the presence of fraud at the polls will 19 prevent him from winning the November 8 election. His comments are consistently 20 directed at Democratic-leaning communities in states like Arizona. At an October 29 rally 21 in Phoenix, Trump repeated his claim that election is “rigged” against him and “the 22 outcome is fixed.” He later elaborated that the election is “rigged” because of “voter 23 fraud,” and instructed his supporters to “watch, watch, be careful, watch.”¹ Trump has 24 further made clear: “This is what I mean when I say that our system is rigged. Be careful, 25 watch for voter fraud.” Gonski Decl. at Ex. 12. Trump was introduced at the Phoenix by

2 for racial profiling of Latino Americans and has been charged with contempt of court for 3 failing to comply with court orders in that case. Id.

4 Roger Stone, a key Trump advisor, has amplified Trump's message. Stone runs a 5 website, through his organization, called "Stop The Steal" that is actively signing up 6 Trump supporters to "volunteer" to fight "voter-fraud and election theft." Stop the Steal, 7 <https://stopthesteal.org/> (last visited Oct. 31, 2016). #StoptheSteal is a popular hashtag
8 among Trump supporters on Twitter, and Stone's group maintains an active Facebook 9 presence. Stone and his associates, including Stop the Steal Inc., have also widely 10 disseminated messages via websites such as Stop the Steal and through social media under 11 hashtags such as #stopthesteal. One image states: "HILLARY CLINTON CHEATED 12 AND STOLE THE PRIMARY FROM BERNIE . . . WE THE PEOPLE CAN STOP HER 13 FROM STEALING THE GENERAL." Gonski Decl. at Ex. 25. Through these and other 14 messages, Mr. Stone has encouraged Trump supporters to engage in voter intimidation.

15 Stone and Stop the Steal Inc. are actively recruiting Trump supporters for "exit 16 polling," specifically targeting Democratic-leaning cities with large minority populations.
17 See Gonski Decl. at Ex. 4. Stone claimed in an appearance on the show "Info Wars" that 18 the operation was necessary to stop Clinton from rigging the election, and that his plan 19 was to present the results of his "exit polling" activities, conducted by his "army" of 20 "Infowar Warriors" directly to Trump within hours of the election being over.² As of 21 November 1, 2016, Stone's website claimed to have organized 2,603 volunteers to engage 22 in this "exit polling" operation. That number includes at least 107 volunteers signed up to 23 participate throughout Arizona. See <https://stopthesteal.org/states/Arizona/>. Stone's 24 purported polling exercise serves no legitimate purpose. Stone does not run a polling

27 Infowar Warriors To Help Us' Conduct 'Exit Polls' At Polling Places," available at

1 business, and legitimate “exit polling” cannot focus on Democratic-leaning or majority-2 minority districts—rather, legitimate exit polling by necessity must include monitoring 3 contested and competitive districts rather than areas that vote overwhelmingly for one 4 party. See Expert Report and Declaration of Mark S. Mellman at 1 (“The polling that 5 [Stone] plans to conduct is unlikely to produce unbiased, reliable results, and, moreover, 6 does not appear to be designed to meet such ends.”). Stone’s “exit polling” activities 7 appear to be aimed chiefly at majority-minority communities, such as certain majority-8 minority communities in Arizona, with the purpose or effect of intimidating non-white 9 persons from voting. See id. at 7 (Stone’s “exit polling strategy appears only designed to 10 intimidate voters in an attempt to influence the election and suppress the vote”).

11 Stone has also recruited volunteers to watch polling places through a program 12 called Vote Protectors. The Vote Protectors website permits any volunteer to download 13 and print official-looking ID badges, and provides scripts for volunteers that instruct them 14 on how to interrogate voters on Election Day. Gonski Decl. at Ex. 23. Stone’s volunteers 15 are permitted to tally up votes on the Stop the Steal website—for Trump or any other 16 candidate—without any proof that they had spoken to voters or visited a polling site. See 17 “Popular Vote (Citizen Exit Polls),” <http://stopthesteal.org> (last accessed Oct. 31, 2016).
18 Vote Protectors and Stop the Steal discontinued some, but not all, of these practices after 19 they were exposed by a national media outlet. Vote Protectors continues to encourage 20 volunteers it styles “citizen journalists” to “approach voters at the polls,” identify 21 themselves as “reporting for Vote Protectors,” and ask them about election fraud.

22 That voter fraud is a myth does not prevent many people—particularly those who 23 are listening most closely to the Republican National Committee (“RNC”), Trump, and 24 surrogates such as Stone—from believing it is real. As a recent poll showed, 69% of 25 Trump’s supporters (but less than half of all voters) believe individual voter fraud happens 26 “very often” or “somewhat often.” Gonski Decl. at Ex. 28. This widespread belief, 27 despite a lack of supporting evidence, has been stoked for decades by certain elements of 28 the Republican Party, including Stone and Trump’s allies in the so-called “alt-right”

1 media ecosystem, such as the Breitbart website run until recently by Trump Campaign
2 CEO Steve Bannon. Gonski Decl. at Ex. 26. Stone, Stop the Steal, and the Trump 3 Campaign fan these flames by distributing messages via social media and elsewhere 4 falsely claiming the election will be “rigged” by “illegals.” Gonski Decl. at Ex. 5.

5 Trump’s calls for unlawful vigilantism to stop purported voter fraud advance a 6 coordinated effort to harass and intimidate voters at the polls. Voter intimidation efforts 7 aimed at suppressing minority voters are often “ostensibly aimed at combatting voter 8 fraud.” Ne. Ohio Coal. for the Homeless v. Husted, No. 2:06-cv-896, 2016 WL 3166251, 9 at *28 (S.D. Ohio June 7, 2016). Defendants are engaged in a concerted effort to engage 10 in voter intimidation. As the Republican Party’s nominee for President, Trump and his 11 campaign coordinate closely with the RNC and ARP on a wide variety of matters, 12 including overall campaign strategy, public messaging, voter outreach, and field 13 operations. On May 17, 2016, the RNC created a joint fundraising committee with the 14 Trump Campaign specifically to fund the Trump Campaign and its operations. Gonski 15 Decl. at Ex. 1. The Trump Campaign has “relinquished control over many of its tactical 16 decisions” to the RNC. Gonski Decl. at Ex. 17. Shortly after Trump became the 17 Republican nominee, the RNC and the Trump Campaign met to discuss “the merger.” Id.
18 The Trump Campaign and RNC “negotiated a partnership” in which the RNC “buil[t] 19 assets and infrastructure and the nominee gets to benefit from it.” Id. The Trump 20 Campaign has decided largely to refrain from setting up a parallel layer of offices and 21 staff in Arizona and elsewhere, as past Republican Party nominees have done. Instead, 22 the Trump Campaign is relying predominantly on the RNC and ARP to manage get-out-23 the vote operations in contested states such as Arizona. See Gonski Decl. at Ex. 20.

25 monitor polls for purported voter fraud. Trump’s running mate, Governor Mike Pence, 26 confirmed the Trump Campaign is working with the RNC and state Republican parties on 27 ballot security measures. At an August 3, 2016 town hall rally in Denver, Colorado, 28 Pence was asked “how is the Trump-Pence campaign going to . . . prevent” Hillary

1 Clinton from “steal[ing] this election.” Pence responded: “the Trump campaign and the 2 Republican National Committee are working very, very closely with state governments 3 and secretaries of states all over the country to ensure ballot integrity. . . . We are working 4 hard all over the country, the Republican National Committee is working all over the 5 country, but I would encourage everyone within the sound of my voice, get involved, 6 participate, be a poll worker on election day . . . be a part of that process, and uphold the 7 integrity of one person one vote in America.”³

8 The RNC has delegated “ballot security” initiatives to its agents in the state parties.
9 For example, Robert Graham, the chair of the ARP, recently remarked that individuals 10 who are designated as Republican poll watchers “will be the eyes and ears of the GOP” at 11 polling places. Despite acknowledging that Arizona law limits what a party-designated 12 observer can do—including restrictions on photography and talking to voters—Graham 13 asserted that “they’re still free to follow voters out into the parking lot, ask them 14 questions, take their pictures and photograph their vehicles and license plate” as long as 15 they are more than 75 feet outside a polling place.⁴ Gonski Decl. at Ex. 2. The ARP’s 16 official spokesperson, Tim Sifert, has echoed that call, encouraging “good citizens” who 17 suspect voter fraud “to do something about it,” such as to approach voters outside the 18 polls, question them, and take pictures and videos of them and their vehicles. Id.; Gonski 19 Decl. at Ex. 29.

20 Just recently, Trump’s campaign manager Kellyanne Conway confirmed that the 21 Trump campaign is “actively working with” the RNC and other branches of the 22 Republican Party apparatus, including the ARP, to “monitor precincts around the 23 country.” Gonski Decl. at Ex. 9. The RNC and ARP continued this close coordination

27 ⁴ Robert Graham is an RNC member and its agent. On October 10, 2016, Graham 28 issued a press release stating: “It is my responsibility, as a member of the Republican National Committee . . . to work with passion, integrity and restlessness to stop Hillary Clinton and elect Donald J. Trump.” Gonski Decl. at Ex. 8.

1 after Trump's widespread and racially charged pleas to his supporters to engage in voter 2 intimidation in areas like Phoenix, which contains large communities of racial minorities.
 3 The Trump Campaign also recently distributed talking points to Republican Party 4 surrogates directing them to "make points on rigged system," and encouraging them to 5 claim "an increase in unlawful voting by illegal immigrants." Gonski Decl. at Ex. 10.

6 Trump's supporters are responding to his calls to engage in voter intimidation. The 7 Boston Globe has reported on Trump supporters who plan to engage in unlawful voter 8 intimidation, and who understand themselves to be doing so at Trump's behest:

9 "Trump said to watch your precincts. I'm going to go, for sure," said Steve 10 Webb, a 61-year-old carpenter from Fairfield, Ohio. "I'll look for . . . well, 11 it's called racial profiling. Mexicans. Syrians. People who can't speak 12 American," he said. "I'm going to go right up behind them. I'll do everything legally. I want to see if they are accountable. I'm not going to do anything illegal. I'm going to make them a little bit nervous."

13 Gonski Decl. at Ex. 6. Similarly, Harry Miller, purportedly of Palm Beach, Florida, 14 tweeted in response to Trump's calls for election observers that he would be "wear'n red 15 at polls. . . . We gonna be watch'n fer shenanigans . . . haul ya away." Gonski Decl. at Ex.
 16 7. The tweet included a picture of a pickup truck and a person-sized cage built into the 17 bed, surrounded by American flags. See id. Miller has over 20,000 Twitter followers and 18 tweets almost exclusively about Trump, Secretary Clinton, and racially-charged political 19 themes such as deporting "Muzzys."

20 II. PLAINTIFF IS LIKELY TO SUCCEED ON THE MERITS

21 a. Defendants Have Violated Section 11(b) Of The Voting Rights Act.

22 Plaintiff is likely to prevail on its claim that Defendants have violated Section 23 11(b) of the Voting Rights Act, codified at 52 U.S.C. § 10307(b), which provides in 24 relevant part: "No person, whether acting under color of law or otherwise, shall 25 intimidate, threaten, or coerce, or attempt to intimidate, threaten, or coerce any person for 26 voting or attempting to vote." 52 U.S.C. § 10307(b).⁵ Section 11(b) was passed as part of 27 ⁵ Section 11(b) affords a private right of action. See Allen v. State Bd. of Elections, 28

1 the Voting Rights Act “to banish the plight of racial discrimination in voting,” South
 2 Carolina v. Katzenbach, 383 U.S. 301, 308 (1966), but Congress intentionally drafted
 3 Section 11(b) “not [to] require proof that racial discrimination motivated the intimidation, 4 threats, or coercion,” Willingham v. Cnty. of Albany, 593 F. Supp. 2d 446, 462 (N.D.N.Y.
 5 2006).⁶ Section 11(b) “on its face prohibits any intimidation, threat, or coercion, whether 6 done by a public official or by a private individual.” Whatley v. Vidalia, 399 F.2d 521, 7 526 (5th Cir. 1968); see Jackson v. Riddell, 476 F. Supp. 849, 859 (N.D. Miss. 1979)
 8 (Section 11(b) “is to be given an expansive meaning”).

9 The operative words of Section 11(b)—to “intimidate,” “threaten,” and “coerce,” 10 or to attempt to do so—should be given their commonly understood meaning. See, e.g., 11 Merriam Webster (“intimidate”: “to make timid or fearful”; “to compel or deter by or as if 12 by threats”); id. (“threaten”: “to utter threats against”; “to hang over dangerously”; “to 13 cause to feel insecure or anxious”); id. (“coerce”: “to restrain or dominate by force”; “to 14 compel to an act or choice”; “to achieve by force or threat”).⁷

15 Section 11(b)’s reach is not restricted to overt acts of violence. Courts assessing 16 comparable language in other civil rights statutes have held that “intimidating” and 17 “threatening” includes subtler conduct. For instance, the Ninth Circuit found that it 18 constituted “intimidation” to send a mass mailing to 14,000 newly registered voters with 19 Hispanic surnames warning them that if they voted in the election, their personal 20 information would be collected and made available to organizations that were “against 21 immigration.” United States v. Nguyen, 673 F.3d 1259, 1261 (9th Cir. 2012) (interpreting 22 a criminal voter intimidation provision of the California election code). As the Ninth 23 Circuit held, “intimidation” is “not limited to displays or applications of force, but can be 24 achieved through manipulation and suggestion,” including “through subtle, rather than 25 393 U.S. 544, 555-56 & n.18 (1969); see also 28 U.S.C. § 1343(a)(4).

 racially motivated.”), as reprinted in 1965 U.S.C.C.A.N. 2437, 2462.

1 forcefully coercive means.” Id. (emphasis added). Similarly, the Seventh Circuit found 2 that conduct involving the writing of a racial slur on property was proscribed under the 3 Fair Housing Act’s provision prohibiting “intimida[tion].” Halprin v. Prairie Single 4 Family Homes of Dearborn Park Ass’n, 388 F.3d 327, 330 (7th Cir. 2004) (Posner, J.).

5 Courts assessing voter intimidation claims have looked to whether the conduct 6 contemplated by Defendants would reasonably intimidate, threaten, or coerce voters. For 7 example, during the 2004 election cycle, Senator Daschle argued that certain conduct 8 committed by Republican candidate John Thune, the South Dakota Republican Party, and 9 their agents violated Section 11(b): “[f]ollowing Native American voters at [a] polling 10 place . . . and standing two to three feet behind Native American voters, and ostentatiously 11 making notes”; “[f]ollowing Native American voters out to their cars after they have 12 voted, walking up to their vehicles, and writing down their license plate numbers”; and 13 “[h]aving a loud conversation in a polling place, where Native Americans were voting, 14 about Native Americans who were prosecuted for voting illegally in Minnesota.” Gonski 15 Decl. at Ex. 14 (Daschle v. Thune, Complaint at 5-6, Civ. 04-4177 (D.S.D., Nov. 1, 16 2004)). Daschle claimed that “[t]he persons carrying out these activities are part of a large 17 group of Republican Thune supporters who have come to South Dakota from across the 18 country, and who are poised to repeat the same conduct in Native American voting places 19 across South Dakota . . . on Election Day.” Id. at 6. The district court granted a 20 temporary restraining order and found Daschle was “likely to succeed” on his Section 21 11(b) claim, “as the Court finds that there was intimidation particularly targeted at Native 22 American voters . . . by persons who were acting on behalf of John Thune.” Gonski Decl.
23 at Ex. 13 (TRO at 2, Civ. 04-4177 (D.S.D., Nov. 2, 2004)). Although Daschle alleged 24 intentional intimidation, the court explained that “[w]hether the intimidation was intended 25 or simply the result of excessive zeal is not the issue, as the result was the intimidation of 26 prospective Native American voters.” Id.; see United States v. Clark, 249 F. Supp. 720, 27 728 (S.D. Ala. 1965) (the “inevitable effect” of challenged conduct would deter voters).

28 The allegations in the Complaint and material supplied with this motion show that

1 the Trump Campaign, Stone, and their agents are engaged in a concerted effort to 2 intimidate, threaten, and coerce lawful voters from exercising their right to vote. The 3 ARP has embraced these suppression efforts. The Chair of the ARP, Robert Graham has 4 called on his fellow Trump supporters to be the ARP's "eyes and ears" at polling places, 5 directing them to "follow voters out into the parking lot, ask them questions, take their 6 pictures and photograph their vehicles and license plate." Gonski Decl. at Ex. 2. This is 7 textbook voter intimidation that violates Section 11(b). See Daschle, TRO at 2.

8 Plaintiffs need not show that Defendants' voter suppression efforts have been 9 successful in order to obtain injunctive relief. Even if those efforts have not yet achieved 10 success, Defendants have already attempted to induce fear and anxiety among minority 11 voters in Arizona, and likewise taken steps designed to prevent minority voters from 12 voting. See supra, at 3-5; Gonski Decl. at Ex. 1, 4, 17, 19. As described, Trump 13 supporters are already responding to the candidate's call to intimidate voters. See supra at 14 7-8. Such planned conduct is indistinguishable from the allegations that the Daschle court 15 found more than sufficient to constitute intimidation and threats in violation of Section 16 11(b) and therefore support a TRO. Plaintiffs need not wait for intimidators to arrive at 17 polling stations in Arizona on Election Day—Section 11(b) authorizes relief against 18 Defendants for attempting to fund, organize, and support their arrival.

19 b. Plaintiff Is Likely To Show Defendants Violated Klan Act.

20 For similar reasons, Plaintiff is likely to prevail on its claim that Defendants have 21 violated the Ku Klux Klan Act of 1871 (the "Klan Act"). The relevant provision of the 22 Klan Act, 42 U.S.C. § 1985, creates liability for several kinds of conspiracies. Bretz v.
23 Kelman, 773 F.2d 1026, 1027 n.3 (9th Cir. 1985) (en banc); United Bhd. of Carpenters &
24 Joiners of Am., Local 610, AFL-CIO v. Scott, 463 U.S. 825, 839 n.1 (1983) (Blackmun, J., 25 dissenting). Plaintiff's claim arises under § 1985(3)'s provision barring conspiracies to 26 suppress voters, which provides: "[I]f two or more persons conspire to prevent by force, 27 intimidation or threat, any citizen who is lawfully entitled to vote, from giving his support 28

1 or advocacy in a legal manner, toward or in favor of the election of any lawfully qualified 2 person as an elector for President or Vice President, or as a Member of Congress of the 3 United States; or to injure any citizen in person or property on account of such support or 4 advocacy,” and “one or more persons engaged” in that conspiracy commit an act in 5 furtherance of the conspiracy that injures a person or deprives that person of a federal 6 right, “the party so injured or deprived may have an action . . .” 42 U.S.C. § 1985(3).

7 The Ninth Circuit has referred to this type of § 1985(3) conspiracy as one “to 8 interfere with federal elections.” Bretz v. Kelman, 773 F.2d 1026, 1027 n.3 (9th Cir.
 9 1985) (en banc). And the Supreme Court has explained that the correct interpretive 10 approach to “Reconstruction civil rights statutes” is “to accord them a sweep as broad as 11 their language.” Griffin, 403 U.S. at 97. A straightforward reading of the statutory text, 12 coupled with case law interpreting the Klan Act, makes clear that Plaintiff’s claim in this 13 case is likely to succeed.⁸ In construing § 1985(3) conspiracy claims under the statute’s 14 first clause, the Supreme Court explained that:

15 the plaintiff must allege and prove four elements: (1) a conspiracy; (2) for 16 the purpose of depriving, either directly or indirectly, any person or class of 17 persons of the equal protection of the laws, or of equal privileges and 18 immunities under the laws; and (3) an act in furtherance of the conspiracy;
 (4) whereby a person is either injured in his person or property or deprived of any right or privilege of a citizen of the United States.

19 Scott, 463 at 828-29. It follows that to make out a violation of the latter part of § 1985(3) 20 at issue here, a plaintiff must allege and prove: (1) a conspiracy; (2) to prevent a lawful 21 voter from supporting a candidate in a federal election by force, intimidation, or threat; 22 and (3) an act in furtherance of the conspiracy; (4) whereby a person is injured in his 23 person or property or deprived of any right or privilege of a citizen of the United States.

 25 ⁸ Plaintiff is not required to prove that Defendants are motivated by racial or other 26 class-based animus, as is required for a claim for violations of the other two conspiracy 27 bars in § 1985(3). See Kush v. Rutledge, 460 U.S. 719, 721 (1983) (analogizing the anti-28 voter suppression conspiracy bar to 42 U.S.C. § 1985(2), which does not require a racial or other class-based animus). But if it were required, the explicit targeting of minority areas and voters is sufficient to demonstrate a likelihood of success on that aspect as well.

1 First, Plaintiff is likely to succeed on the merits of its claim that Defendants have 2 engaged in a conspiracy. “A civil conspiracy is a combination of two or more persons 3 who, by some concerted action, intend to accomplish some unlawful objective for the 4 purpose of harming another which results in damage.” Lacey v. Maricopa Cty., 693 F.3d 5 896, 935 (9th Cir. 2012). As the Ninth Circuit explained:

6 To be liable, each participant in the conspiracy need not know the exact 7 details of the plan, but each participant must at least share the common 8 objective of the conspiracy. A defendant’s knowledge of and participation 9 in a conspiracy may be inferred from circumstantial evidence and from evidence of the defendant’s actions.

10 Id. Plaintiff has alleged facts likely to prove that Defendants share the “common 11 objective” to suppress voting by Democratic, and predominantly non-white, voters in the 12 2016 Election. See supra, at 2-8; Gonski Dec. at Ex. 4, 9; 17, 23. Trump’s running mate, 13 Indiana Governor Mike Pence, admitted in public that “the Trump Campaign and the 14 Republican National Committee are working very very closely . . . all over the country to 15 ensure ballot integrity.” See supra at 6. Defendants have not only agreed on a common 16 plan; they are boasting about it in public, and seeking to recruit others.⁹

17 Second, Plaintiff will likely prove the conspiracy is directed at preventing lawful 18 voters from voting “by force, intimidation, or threat.” For the reasons laid out above, 19 Defendants’ efforts are plainly designed to threaten, coerce, and intimidate minority and 20 Democratic voters, and to encourage supporters to engage in activities barred in Arizona.

21 ⁹ Defendants cannot rely on the First Amendment for permission to intimidate and 22 harass voters, as “poll watching is not a fundamental right which enjoys First Amendment 23 protection.” Dailey v. Hands, No. 14-cv-423-KD-M, 2015 WL 1293188, at *4 (S.D. Ala.
 24 Feb. 20, 2015) adopted Mar. 23, 2015; see DNC v. RNC, 671 F. Supp. 2d 575, 596 (D.N.J.
 25 2009) (rejecting as “meritless” the argument that consent decree bar on RNC “ballot 26 security activities” “infringes on activity protected by the First Amendment”), aff’d, 673
 27 F.3d 192 (3d Cir. 2012); Cotz v. Mastroeni, 476 F. Supp. 2d 332, 364 (S.D.N.Y. 2007)
 28 (“poll watching . . . has no distinct First Amendment protection”); Turner v. Cooper, 583
 F. Supp. 1160, 1162 (N.D. Ill. 1983) (same). The “position of poll-watcher,” rather, is “a mere creature of state statute,” Cotz, 476 F. Supp. 2d at 364, so any individual’s supposed “right” to be a poll-watcher “derive[s] solely from state law,” Turner, 583 F. Supp. at 1162. Moreover, any hypothetical First Amendment right to engage in poll watching must give way to the compelling state interest in preventing voter intimidation.

1 Third, each co-conspirator has performed an act in furtherance of that conspiracy.
 2 Trump regularly issues warnings of vote-rigging and calls to “watch” “certain areas” of 3 the country. Gonski Decl. at Ex. 11. Defendant ARP has undertaken concrete steps to 4 advance the objectives, including by organizing poll watchers, encouraging Trump 5 supporters to “follow” and harass voters, and supplying the Trump Campaign with 6 personnel and resources to further its efforts. See supra at 6-7. Defendants Stone and 7 Stop the Steal, Inc. have similarly adopted the objective and have taken concrete steps to 8 advance it, including organizing an “exit polling” operation targeted at minority voters in 9 locations including Phoenix, and recruiting “vote protectors” to patrol polling places 10 where they believe voters are likely to vote for Secretary Clinton. Gonski Decl. at Exs. 4, 11 27. Each of these acts, and many others, has furthered the conspiracy to intimidate voters.

12 Finally, each of those acts has injured Plaintiff in its capacity as the Democratic 13 Party organization in the State of Arizona, by harming its prospects in the election, and by 14 depriving the lawful voters whose interests it represents of their legal right to vote without 15 intimidation. In the absence of immediate relief, thousands of voters, if not more, will be 16 deprived of their right to vote on account of Defendants’ intimidation.

17 III. PLAINTIFF WILL SUFFER IRREPARABLE HARM IN THE 18 ABSENCE OF PRELIMINARY RELIEF

19 In the absence of injunctive relief, Defendants’ plans to intimidate Democratic and 20 minority voters are likely to succeed, causing irreparable harm to Plaintiff. See, e.g., 21 Crawford v. Marion County Election Bd., 553 U.S. 181, 189 n.7 (2008) (citing Crawford 22 v. Marion County Election Bd., 472 F.3d 949, 951 (7th Cir. 2007) (“The Democratic Party 23 also has standing to assert the rights of those of its members who will be prevented from 24 voting by the new law.”)). U.S. political history suggests that Defendants’ schemes are 25 neither anomalous nor unthreatening—to the contrary, voter intimidation efforts have 26 been known to compromise the integrity of both federal and state elections. See, e.g., Ne.
 27 Ohio Coal. for the Homeless, 2016 WL 3166251, at *28 (“Poll watching, . . . although 28 ostensibly aimed at combatting voter fraud, has a pernicious history of intimidation of minority voters.”); DNC v. RNC, 671 F. Supp. 2d 575, 578-79 (D.N.J. 2009) (“Voter intimidation presents an ongoing threat to the participation of minority individuals in the political process, and continues to pose a far greater threat to the integrity of that process than” alleged in-person “voter fraud”), aff’d, 673 F.3d 192 (3d Cir. 2012).

Defendants seek to intimidate and suppress Arizona voters, and “[i]t is clear that abridgment of the right to vote constitutes an irreparable injury.” Sanchez v. Cegavske, No. 16-cv-00523 MMD WGC, 2016 WL 5936918, at *3 (D. Nev. Oct. 7, 2016); see Melendres v. Arpaio, 695 F.3d 990, 1002 (9th Cir. 2012) (“It is well established that deprivation of constitutional rights unquestionably constitutes irreparable injury.”).¹⁰

IV. THE BALANCE OF EQUITIES FAVORS PLAINTIFF

a. Preventing Voter Intimidation Is A Strong Federal Interest.

“[V]oter intimidation and coercion [are] . . . obvious harm[s] that federal law strongly and properly prohibits.” United States v. Madden, 403 F.3d 347, 352 (6th Cir. 2005) (Boggs, C.J., concurring in part and dissenting in part). The constitutional interest at stake in this litigation is the voters’ “most precious” “right . . . , regardless of their political persuasion, to cast their votes effectively” and free of intimidation. Williams v. Rhodes, 393 U.S. 23, 30-31 (1968). The interest in “protecting voters from confusion and undue influence” is “compelling,” Burson v. Freeman, 504 U.S. 191, 199 (1992) (plurality op.), and laws that protect voters from intimidation safeguard the “fundamental political right . . . preservative of all rights,” Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356, 370 (1886). The Constitution secures the “citizen’s right to a vote free of arbitrary impairment by state action,” including intimidation by poll-watchers. Baker v. Carr, 369 U.S. 186, 208 (1962).

The “right” to engage in poll-watching is a state-created interest, poll-watching in federal elections is permissible only insofar as it complies with federal laws proscribing

1 voter intimidation. See 42 U.S.C. § 1985(3); 52 U.S.C. § 10307(b); Arizona v. Inter
 2 Tribal Council of Arizona, Inc., 133 S. Ct. 2247, 2257 (2013) (“the Elections Clause 3 empowers Congress to regulate how federal elections are held”). And, as discussed, even 4 activities that comply with state election procedures violate Section 11(b) where their 5 purpose and effect is to interfere with the right to vote. See Katzenbach, 250 F. Supp. at 6 348 (noting that “acts otherwise lawful may become unlawful and be enjoined under 7 [section 11(b)] if the purpose and effect of the acts is to interfere with the right to vote”).

8 b. Widespread Or Systemic Voter Fraud Is A Myth.

9 The claimed rationale for the conspiracy in which Defendants are engaged is to 10 combat alleged “voter fraud.” But widespread voter fraud is a myth. One recent study 11 discovered only “31 credible incidents” of in-person voter fraud – out of one billion votes 12 cast. Gonski Decl. at Ex. 16. The actual frequency of substantiated claims of voter fraud 13 reveal that mass coordinated efforts to combat it are misguided at best and pretextual at 14 worse, with the true purpose to suppress voter turnout. Courts that have examined the 15 evidence have concluded that widespread voter fraud does not exist. In a challenge to 16 Pennsylvania’s voter ID law, for example, “[t]he parties [we]re not aware of any incidents 17 of in-person voter fraud in Pennsylvania and d[id] not have direct personal knowledge of 18 in person voter fraud elsewhere. Applewhite v. Commonwealth, No. 330 M.D. 2012, 2014 19 WL 184988, at *57 (Pa. Commw. Ct. Jan. 17, 2014). A federal judge in Wisconsin has 20 similarly observed that “[t]he Wisconsin experience demonstrates that a preoccupation 21 with mostly phantom election fraud leads to real incidents of disenfranchisement, which 22 undermine rather than enhance confidence in elections, particularly in minority 23 communities.” One Wis. Inst. v. Thomsen, No. 15-civ-324 (JDP), 2016 WL 4059222, at 24 *2 (W.D. Wis. July 29, 2016).¹¹

25 ¹¹ See also, e.g., Gonski Decl. at Ex. 15 (Brakebill v. Jaeger, No. 16-civ-00008 (DLH), 26 Dkt. No. 50, Aug. 1, 2016) (“The undisputed evidence before the Court reveals that voter 27 fraud in North Dakota has been virtually non-existent.”); Veasey v. Abbott, 830 F.3d 216, 28 238 (5th Cir. 2016) (“[T]he evidence before the Legislature was that in-person voting . . .
 yielded only two convictions for in-person voter impersonation fraud out of 20 million

V. A PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION IS IN THE PUBLIC INTEREST

The preliminary relief that Plaintiff seeks would clearly advance the public interest by enforcing federal law. As explained above, voter intimidation is expressly prohibited by Section 11(b) of the Voting Rights Act, 52 U.S.C. § 10307(b), and the Klan Act, 42 U.S.C. § 1985(3). Plaintiff's requested injunctive relief does no more than to effectuate the mandate of federal law. Plaintiff's requested relief would also further compliance with Arizona laws that protect Arizona's voters from vigilante poll watchers' unlawful interference with their votes. See Ariz. Rev. Stat. § 16-1013(A).

"In the absence of legitimate, countervailing concerns, the public interest clearly favors the protection of constitutional rights, including the voting and associational rights of . . . candidates, and their potential supporters." Hooks, 121 F.3d at 883-84. "By definition, [t]he public interest . . . favors permitting as many qualified voters to vote as possible." League of Women Voters, 769 F.3d at 247; see Purcell v. Gonzalez, 549 U.S. 1, 4 (2006) (the public has a "strong interest in exercising the fundamental political right to vote"). Against a backdrop of widespread past and threatened future voter intimidation and minimal evidence of voter fraud, Defendants must be enjoined from engaging in conduct that threatens the most basic right in American democracy—the right of voters to cast their votes free of coercion and intimidation. "[O]ther rights, even the most basic, are illusory if the right to vote is undermined." Wesberry v. Sanders, 376 U.S. 1, 17 (1964).

VI. CONCLUSION

votes cast in the decade leading up to SB 14's passage."); League of Women Voters, 769 F.3d at 246 ("North Carolina asserts goals of electoral integrity and fraud prevention. But nothing in the district court's portrayal of the facts suggests that those are anything other than merely imaginable."); Crawford v. Marion Cty. Election Bd., 553 U.S. 181, 194 (2008) ("The only kind of voter fraud that SEA 483 addresses is in-person voter impersonation at polling places. The record contains no evidence of any such fraud actually occurring in Indiana at any time in its history."); Frank v. Walker, 17 F. Supp. 3d 837, 848 (E.D. Wis. 2014) ("there have been zero incidents of in-person voter-impersonation fraud in Wisconsin during recent elections."); Lee v. Va. State Bd. of Elections, No. 15-cv-357 (HEH), 2016 WL 2946181, at *23 (E.D. Va. May 19, 2016) ("evidence of actual voter impersonation-type fraud was scant").

GRANTING PLAINTIFF'S

16 This matter comes before the Court on Plaintiff's Motion for a Temporary 17 Restraining Order and/or Preliminary Injunction. For the reasons set forth below, the 18 Motion is GRANTED.

19 Plaintiff Arizona Democratic Party brings this action under Section 2 of the Ku 20 Klux Klan Act of 1871, 42 U.S.C. § 1985(3), and Section 11(b) of the Voting Rights Act
21 of 1965, 52 U.S.C. § 10307(b). Plaintiff moves to temporarily restrain and preliminarily 22 enjoin Defendants from (a) advancing their conspiracy to intimidate, threaten, harass, or 23 coerce voters; (b) actually intimidating, threatening, harassing, or coercing—or attempting 24 to intimidate, threaten, harass, or coerce—voters; (c) violating Arizona law with respect to 25 poll-watching activities; and (d) engaging in any other conduct contributing to the 26 intimidation, harassment, or coercion of voters.

27 Having considered all of the materials and argument that have been submitted in 28 this matter, including Plaintiff's Complaint and Memorandum of Law, IT IS HEREBY

1 ORDERED THAT, effective immediately and extending until 11:59 p.m., November 8, 2 2016, or until voting in the 2016 Presidential Election is complete, Defendants—as well 3 as their officers, agents, servants, employees, and attorneys, and those persons who are in 4 active concert or participation with them—are RESTRAINED AND ENJOINED from 5 engaging in any of their contemplated voter intimidation activity, including but not 6 limited to:

- 7 1. Funding, encouraging, or otherwise supporting, including by training or 8 organizing, individuals who are not officially appointed party 9 representatives under Arizona law to be present at or around polling places 10 or voter lines to challenge, investigate, interfere with, or otherwise act to 11 prevent any person from voting, including but not limited to confronting 12 potential voters and verifying their eligibility at the polls, distributing 13 literature stating (and/or stating) to individuals that voter fraud is a crime, or 14 describing the penalties under any State or Federal Statute for impermissibly 15 casting a ballot.
- 16 2. Monitoring polling places, or permitting, encouraging, or assisting 17 individuals to monitor polling places, including but not limited to 18 confronting potential voters and verifying their eligibility at the polls, 19 distributing literature stating (and/or stating) to individuals that voter fraud 20 is a crime, or describing the penalties under any State or Federal Statute for 21 impermissibly casting a ballot, if the proposed monitor does not comply 22 with the statutory requirements for such monitoring activities under Arizona 23 law; Gathering or loitering within seventy five (75) feet of a polling place, 24 or permitting, encouraging, or assisting any individuals to gather or loiter 25 within seventy five (75) feet of a polling place, unless such person is one of 26 the appointed party representatives who may be present in a polling place at 27 any time;

- 1 3. Questioning, interrogating, or verbally harassing voters or prospective 2 voters, or training, organizing, or directing others to do the same, with the 3 sole exception of questioning that is explicitly authorized by Arizona law;
- 4 4. Following, taking photos of, or otherwise recording voters or prospective 5 voters, those assisting voters or prospective voters, or their vehicles, or 6 training, organizing, or directing others to do the same.
- 7 5. Questioning, and training, organizing, or deputizing any persons to question, 8 voters at Arizona polling locations under the guise of the purported “exit 9 polling” or “citizen journalist” operations organized and encouraged by 10 Defendants Stone and Stop the Steal;
- 11 6. Otherwise organizing efforts to engage in voter intimidation.

12 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED THAT this Order be publicized to all law
13 enforcement and elections officials in advance of Election Day. Defendants shall bear 14 reasonable costs of publication.

15 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED THAT Defendants shall show cause as to why a 16 Preliminary and/or Permanent Injunction should not issue restraining and enjoining them 17 from engaging in the conduct described above.

Expert Report and Declaration of Mark S. Mellman

The Mellman Group
1023 31st Street, NW
Fifth Floor
Washington, DC 20007

I. INTRODUCTION

I have been retained by plaintiffs to prepare a report outlining the accepted standard industry purpose, methodology, and use of exit polling in U.S. elections and provide my opinion as to whether to the exit polling that Roger Stone intends to use for the 2016 General Election comports with the same. I am being compensated for my work on this matter at a rate of $500 per hour.

II. SUMMARY OF OPINION

Based on 34 years of work as a public opinion researcher, communication strategist, and political pollster, it is my conclusion that the “Exit Poll” that Roger Stone purports to be employing in the 2016 General Election is not in keeping with the accepted methodology, purpose, or practices in this field. The polling that he plans to conduct is unlikely to produce unbiased, reliable results, and, moreover, does not appear to be designed to meet such ends. Mr. Stone’s effort seems oblivious to the fundamental techniques accepted throughout the industry as based on reliable principles and methods, as well as very basic well-known facts about exit polling. Given Mr. Stone’s stated political biases and the methodology he has employed—i.e., targeting Democratic and minority precincts—his exit polling strategy appears only designed to intimidate voters in an attempt to influence the election and suppress the vote.

III. QUALIFICATIONS & EXPERTISE

I am the President and CEO of The Mellman Group, a firm dedicated to providing opinion research and strategic advice to political leaders, government agencies, corporations, and public interest groups for nearly thirty -five years. For our work in these areas The Mellman Group has been named “Pollster of the Year” and leading strategists and pollsters have cited my company as one of the most accurate polling companies in the United States.

As part of my work, I routinely design and implement polls to project the results of elections and have designed, implemented, and executed such polls nationwide and have worked with exit poll data in real time for over 20 years. I have helped guide the campaigns of 29 U.S. Senators, two dozen members of Congress, and 10 governors. I have also assisted candidates and campaigns at the local and state level as well as internationally. I also perform polling and surveys for public interest organizations such as the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, Alliance for American Manufacturing, The Bipartisan Policy Center, the League of Conservation Voters, as well as for corporate clients. I have served as a consultant on politics for CBS News, PBS, The Hotline, and National Journal’s daily briefing on politics.

I received my B.A. in Politics from Princeton and graduate degrees in Political Science from Yale. I also taught as a Lecturer in the Yale Political Science Department and served on the faculty of George Washington University's Graduate School of Political Management. I am President of the American Association of Political Consultants.

I served as an expert in on behalf of the Defendants in McConnell v. Fed. Election Commission, a case that was brought in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia. My expert report in that case primarily relied on a research poll that I conducted. See McConnell v. Fed. Election Comm'n, 251 F. Supp. 2d 176, 870-71 (D.D.C. 2003).

IV. SOURCES

In addition to drawing upon my many years of experience and expertise as a pollster and political polling consultant, this report draws upon standard sources in political science, statistics, and polling methods, including scholarly journals, articles, reports, and newspaper articles. Specific sources referenced for my discussion of exit polling principles are listed in the accompanying bibliography.

V. ANALYSIS

A. Background - Exit Polls

Exit polls are scientific surveys conducted with a random sample of voters shortly after they have cast their ballots.¹ Traditionally voters have been interviewed just after exiting their polling places, and that is still the case in much of the country. However, with the advent of early voting and vote by mail in some states, in order for exit polls to be accurate, it has been necessary to identify means of interviewing those voters as well.

Exit polls are usually, but not always, sponsored by news organizations, and are designed to:

- a. Assist news organizations in “projecting” the results of specific election contests after the polls have closed but before all, or even most of the ballot have been counted;
- b. Help determine which segments of the population supported which candidate or party; and/or
- c. Help assess why voters cast their ballots the way they did.

Scholars also use exit poll data in furthering their understanding of election dynamics.

The major exit poll in the United States is conducted by the National Election Pool (NEP), which is comprised of: ABC, CBS, CNN, Fox, NBC and the Associated Press. Other entities such as the Wall Street Journal subscribe to the NEP. This exit polls looks at the Presidential, Senate, Gubernatorial and Congressional elections and occasionally at ballot measures.

Conducting exit polls is a difficult, laborious and highly technical process that requires considerable expertise and training. Meaningful exit polling requires months of planning and substantial funding, as well as careful deployment of random sampling techniques to determine which precincts are included and to randomly select voters within each precinct. Exit polls typically keep their sampled precincts confidential to prevent anyone from intervening to alter the results.

When designing an exit poll, one key consideration is that the interviewers conducting the polling must be thoroughly non-partisan and rigorously trained. Past errors in exit polls have been attributed in part to inadequate training and, as such, it has become a key part of designing a successful and reputable poll. Training programs for interviewers almost always involve multiple interactions between poll organizers, interviewers and supervisors.

Another hallmark of legitimate exit polling is guaranteeing respondents' privacy, confidentiality and anonymity. Exit polls should be as secret a ballot as the actual vote, and the pollster should not know the voters' responses. No exit poll should require the respondent to publicly state their choices.

True exit polls also seek to project the results of the election as a whole, meaning that to conduct a proper exit poll a significant effort is made to account for absentee, early, and mail voters who do not vote on election day, but comprise 50%-100% of the electorate in some states. No exit poll can be accurate without a process for interviewing these individuals, who will, by definition not be at polling places.

Exit poll interviewing must occur during the entire time the polls are open, in order to account for any time of day effects. Some demographic groups are more likely to vote before or after work, for instance, while others might vote in the middle of the day—and it is important that any biases observed during those times be mitigated by coverage throughout the day.

Moreover, throughout the polling process exit pollsters must employ a methodology that adjusts for non-response bias. If a voter sampled for interviewing is missed for any reason (they refuse, for example) the pollster must have an approach to overcoming this problem.

All polls have statistical margins of error and other non-sampling error. No one can be certain that any poll is 100% accurate. The network polls become more accurate because the projections they display on the air take into account both poll results and actual precinct result. Only by blending these data sources do network exit polls become highly accurate.

B. Comparison of Stone "Exit Polls" to Accepted Exit Poll Methodology

As demonstrated above, conducting exit polls requires considerable expertise and training. Mr. Stone's so-called "exit poll operation" reflects none of these characteristics.

First, meaningful exit polling—polling designed to capture the likely outcome of a potential election—requires months of planning. For example, the planning and execution process for network exit polling in the U.S. takes over a year and substantial funding.² In other countries, it can take three to six months to plan and execute exit polls. Mr. Stone's exit poll enterprise, which purports to be a nationwide survey and that appears to be akin to network exit polling, seems to have begun just 2 weeks ago and he admits it is "underfunded." See Stop the Steal, <http://stopthesteal.org> (last visited Nov. 1, 2016); Stone Cold Truth, Genesis Communications Network, 10/29/16.

Further, as discussed, exit polling requires careful deployment of random sampling techniques to determine which precincts are included and to randomly sample voters within each precinct. Failure to employ proper sampling methods renders any poll, including an exit poll, completely invalid.

Mr. Stone appears to have no sampling method. From his own accounts of his polling, he is herding his followers to specific precincts he has selected, apparently without even an attempt at a random process. See Stop the Steal, <http://stopthesteal.org> (last visited Nov. 1, 2016) (explaining that Stone is conducting exit polling in targeted Democratic states and localities, rather than randomly selected locations).

Moreover, exit polls typically keep their sampled precincts confidential to prevent anyone from intervening to alter the results. Mr. Stone has done just the opposite and publicized the locations he wants his so-called “interviewers” to go to. Oliver Laughland and Sam Thielman, “Trump Loyalists Plan Own Exit Poll Amid Claims of ‘Rigged’ Election,” The Guardian, Oct. 20, 2016, available at: <https://www.theguardian.com/us-news/2016/oct/20/citizens-for-donald-trump-exit-poll-roger-stone-rigged-election-claim>.

And, most importantly, in typical exit polls interviewers themselves must be thoroughly non-partisan and rigorously trained. Past errors in exit polls have been attributed in part to inadequate training. Training programs for exit poll interviewers almost always involve multiple interactions between poll organizers, interviewers, and supervisors. In fact, the U.S. network exit polls began their recruitment and training for interviewers for the 2016 General Election as early as August 2016, at least three months before the election. Mr. Strone’s program, only 2 weeks old, does not appear to have a clearly defined training element and it appears that he is still recruiting interviewers—hardly leaving them enough time to be trained before Election Day. Stop the Steal- Citizen Toolbox, https://stopthesteal.org/register-from-toolbox/?redirect_to=https://stopthesteal.org/citizen-toolbox/ (last visited Nov. 1, 2016).

Perhaps most obvious, legitimate exit pollsters make use of non-partisan interviewers who are obligated to avoid displaying any clothing or paraphernalia which may betray their personal political beliefs and to refrain from engaging in political discussions with respondents.

As his website makes clear, Mr. Stone’s plan is precisely the opposite. He is recruiting mostly partisan individuals to conduct his interviews. See Stop the Steal, <http://stopthesteal.org> (last visited Nov. 1, 2016). Legitimate exit polls are not in any way biased. Yet, Mr. Stone enters the arena with an avowedly partisan purpose—to help Donald Trump’s campaign. See Stop the Steal, <http://stopthesteal.org> (last visited Nov. 1, 2016). Further, because he has not made public the questions he is asking, there is no way to know how biased or misleading they might be, but it is clear that any exit poll with an avowedly partisan purpose will not produce the type of unbiased, neutral results that exit polls are designed to reflect.

Another hallmark of legitimate exit polling is guaranteeing the respondents’ privacy, confidentiality and anonymity. Exit polls should be as secret a ballot as the actual vote, and the pollster should not know the voters' responses. No exit poll should require the respondent to publicly state their choices. It is unclear whether Mr. Stone is planning to meet that obligation.

As noted proper exit polls make significant efforts to deal with absentee, early, and mail voters who do not vote on Election Day. No exit poll can be accurate without a process for interviewing these individuals, who will, by definition not be at polling places. Mr. Stone appears to be completely ignoring this vital aspect of obtaining accurate exit poll results. See Stop the Steal- Citizen Toolbox, https://stopthesteal.org/register-from-toolbox/?redirect_to=https://stopthesteal.org/citizen-toolbox/ (last visited Nov. 1, 2016).

Both at the polling place and with early and mail voters, exit pollster must employ a methodology that adjusts for non-response bias. If a voter sampled for interviewing is missed for any reason (they refuse, for example) the pollster must have an approach to overcoming this problem.

Mr. Stone lacks the training or experience required to develop and implement solutions to this problem and it is not clear anyone working with him brings the required expertise. In particular, Mr. Stone is not a statistician, experienced pollster, or social scientist. Stonezone-About Roger Stone, <http://stonezone.com/about.php> (last visited Nov. 1, 2016). He claims in some places to be associated with a Dr. Richard Davis who apparently has a distinguished career in the US Navy, but does not appear to be statistician, pollster or social scientist. He is rather an MD, "an accomplished serial entrepreneur with a background in Aerospace Engineering, Chemistry, and Medicine." Poll Mole- About, <http://www.pollmole.vote/about/> (last visited Nov. 1, 2016). This is plainly inadequate to ensure adjustments for non-response bias in exit polling.

Additionally, exit poll interviewing must occur during the entire time the polls are open, in order to account for any time of day effects. Some demographic groups are more likely to vote before or after work, for instance, while others might vote in the middle of the day—and it is important that any biases observed during those times be mitigated by coverage throughout the day.³ Again, Mr. Stone's plan seems to lack any mechanism for insuring continuous coverage, particularly given his on-going recruitment problems and the low number of interviewers recruited to this point. See Stop the Steal- Total Participation Goal, <https://stopthesteal.org/> (last visited Nov. 1, 2016).

³ This is also why it is important to account for people during the early and absentee voting periods as some demographic groups, particularly African Americans, are known to utilize early and weekend voting more than others.

Perhaps most important, Mr. Stone's avowed purpose in conducting the poll is to insure there is no election fraud.⁴ Exit polls cannot fulfill that objective. Exit polls are conducted to project the outcome of an election as accurately as possible, not to prevent fraud.

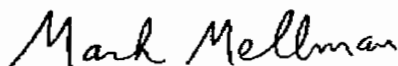

Further, all polls have statistical margins of error and other non-sampling error. No one can be certain that any poll is 100% accurate. Indeed, the intricately crafted exit polls used by the networks have had meaningful bias in their results for many years.

The network polls become more accurate because the projections they display on the air take into account both poll results and actual precinct results—the kind of data Mr. Stone seems determined to challenge. Stop the Steal, <http://stopthesteal.org> (last visited Nov. 1, 2016).

Only by blending these data sources do network exit polls become highly accurate.

On whole, Mr. Stone's effort seems oblivious to the fundamental techniques of, and facts about exit polling and is plainly not designed to achieve the accepted purpose of an exit poll. Rather, given Mr. Stone's stated political biases and the methodology he has employed—i.e., targeting Democratic and minority precincts—it appears only designed to intimidate voters in an attempt to influence the election and suppress the vote.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

No. 16-4268

FOR THE SIXTH CIRCUIT

OHIO DEMOCRATIC PARTY,

Plaintiff-Appellee,

v.

Defendant-Appellant

OHIO REPUBLICAN PARTY; ROGER J.
STONE, JR.; STOP THE STEAL, INC.,

Defendants.

Before: BATCHELDER, ROGERS, and GRIFFIN, Circuit Judges.

Donald J. Trump for President, Inc. moves for a stay of the district court's temporary restraining order, dated November 4, 2016, enjoining Defendants Donald J. Trump for President, Stop the Steal and Roger J. Stone, Jr., their officers, agents, servants, and employees, and others not parties to this action, including groups associated with the Clinton for Presidency campaign, from engaging in various activities denominated by the district court as voter intimidation activity.

We review for abuse of discretion the district court's order granting a temporary restraining order. Ohio Republican Party v. Brunner, 543 F. 3d. 357, 361 (6th Cir. 2008). We review a motion to stay a temporary restraining order using the same factors that we consider in determining whether to grant a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction:

(1) whether the movant has a strong likelihood of success on the merits, (2) whether the movant would suffer irreparable injury absent a stay, (3) whether granting the stay would cause substantial harm to others, and (4) whether the public interest would be served by granting the stay.

Id.

After reviewing the district court's order, the motion for an emergency stay of that order, and the Plaintiff's submission in response to the Petition for Initial En Banc Hearing, we conclude that the Plaintiff did not demonstrate before the district court a likelihood of success on the merits, and that all of the requisite factors weigh in favor of granting the stay.

Accordingly, the motion for an emergency stay is GRANTED.

ENTERED BY ORDER OF THE COURT

Deborah S. Hunt, Clerk
