ORDER GRANTING PLAINTIFF'S
MOTION FOR CLASS CERTIFICATION

17 BEFORE THE COURT is Plaintiff's Motion to Certify a Class Action, 18 Grant Approval of Notice to Class, and Appoint Class Counsel. (Ct.
19 Rec. 94). Plaintiff is represented by Breean Beggs, Jeffrey K. Finer 20 and John D. Sklut. Defendant Spokane County is represented by Michael 21 A. Patterson and James H. Kaufman. Timothy Ford represents the 22 Washington State Attorney General.

23 I. BACKGROUND

24 Plaintiff, Shawn Huss, filed suit individually and on behalf of a 25 class of others similarly situated, under 42 U.S.C. §§ 1983 and 1988, 26 seeking both monetary damages and declaratory and injunctive relief.

1 Plaintiff's second amended complaint, filed December 21, 2005, alleges 2 that the booking fee policy of the Defendant Spokane County Jail ("the 3 Jail"), as well as the underlying statute, RCW § 70.48.390, are 4 facially unconstitutional in that they deprive individuals who are 5 arrested of their property without due process of law. (Ct. Rec. 61).

6 In May 1999, the Washington legislature passed RCW § 70.48.390,
7 authorizing city, county, and regional jails to take a $10.00 booking 8 fee from the person of each individual booked into jail. In May 2003, 9 the Washington legislature amended RCW § 70.48.390, allowing jails to 10 require each person who is booked into jail to pay a fee based on the 11 jail's actual booking costs or one hundred dollars, whichever is less.
12 The "fee is payable immediately from any money then possessed by the 13 person being booked" into jail. RCW § 70.48.390.

14 In accordance with RCW § 70.48.390, on or about February 24, 15 2004, the Spokane County Board of Commissioners passed Resolution 04-16 0160, which authorized the Jail to develop and implement a procedure 17 to collect a fee from persons booked into jail. On May 5, 2004, 18 pursuant to Resolution 04-0160, the Jail adopted an official policy 19 ("the Policy") authorizing the collection of a booking fee. Under the 20 Policy, federal inmates are charged the federal daily rate while non-21 federal inmates are charged the actual jail booking costs - - $89.12.
22 Pursuant to the statute, the Policy allows the fees to be taken 23 directly from any funds in the person's possession at the time of 24 booking. If the person does not have adequate funds to cover the 25 booking fee, a charge is assessed to the person's account. The Policy 26 does not provide for a pre-deprivation hearing or any other

1 opportunity for persons to contest the taking of their money.
2 Instead, the Jail adopted a separate reimbursement policy. Under this 3 reimbursement policy, the individual is required to prove the charges 4 against him or her were dropped or that he or she was acquitted, and 5 then, upon investigation by the Jail Staff, the inmate may be 6 reimbursed for the intake fee.¹

7 In the present case, Plaintiff was arrested based on a domestic 8 violence complaint and booked into the Jail on October 31, 2004.
9 Plaintiff's wallet was inventoried as personal property that would be 10 returned upon his release, but the Jail took all of the money from 11 Plaintiff's wallet ($39.30) as payment on the booking fee ($89.12).
12 The Jail did not inform Plaintiff he was being charged a booking fee, 13 that there was a reimbursement policy in place, or that the money was 14 required to be returned if his charges were dropped or he was 15 acquitted. Plaintiff was released from jail the next day after all of 16 the charges were dropped. Upon his release, his money was not 17 returned and he did not receive a copy of the Jail's reimbursement 18 policy. The Jail eventually returned Plaintiff's money on February 19 23, 2005, approximately four months after the charges against him were 20 dropped, and after Plaintiff's lawyer sent a letter to Spokane County 21 stating that the Jail's booking fee policy was unconstitutional.

22 In January 2005, the Jail modified its forms and procedures
23 related to the collection of booking fees. It is now a requirement 24

25 ¹ The "Spokane County Jail Claim Form For Reimbursement of 26 Intake Fees" specifically states that the Jail staff will investigate all claims and the decision to honor the claim is based on that investigation.

1 that each person booked into jail receive paperwork outlining methods 2 for obtaining reimbursement. Further, persons who are released and 3 not charged within 72 hours, automatically, without request, have 4 their booking fees returned if paid in part or in full. The Jail also 5 automatically voids any unpaid booking fee for all inmates who are 6 found not-guilty, acquitted, or have their charges dismissed.

7 On August 29, 2006, the Court granted Plaintiff's motion for 8 partial summary judgment, holding that RCW § 70.48.390 and the booking 9 fees premised upon it are facially unconstitutional. (Ct. Rec. 75 at 10 14-15). Defendant, as well as the Intervenor, State of Washington, 11 moved for reconsideration on the basis of a number of issues, 12 including standing and mootness. On April 13, 2007, the Court found 13 that Plaintiff does not have standing to seek declaratory or 14 injunctive relief, granted Defendant's motion for reconsideration, and 15 withdrew its prior order. (Ct. Rec. 117). The Court directed the 16 parties to submit supplemental briefing addressing the question: "Is 17 partial summary judgment appropriate on any element of the Plaintiff's 18 suit for damages under 28 U.S.C. § 1983?" (Ct. Rec. 117 ¶ 6).

19 On October 12, 2007, after considering the parties' supplemental 20 briefing, the Court granted Plaintiff's motion for partial summary 21 judgment as to liability. (Ct. Rec. 140). The Court determined that 22 Defendant is liable, under Section 1983, because the Jail's booking 23 fee policy deprived Plaintiff, and others similarly situated, of 24 property without due process of law. (Ct. Rec. 140). The Court set a 25 briefing schedule regarding Plaintiff's Motion for Class 26 Certification. That matter is now before the Court.

1 II. LEGAL STANDARD

2 A. Rule 23

3 In order to certify a case as a class action, the party seeking 4 certification must satisfy the four prerequisites of Federal Rule of 5 Civil Procedure 23(a) and demonstrate that certification is 6 appropriate under one of the categories defined in Rule 23(b). Fed.
7 R. Civ. P. 23(a)-(b). The party seeking certification bears the 8 burden of proving that it has satisfied all of the necessary
9 requirements. Dukes v. Walmart, Inc., 474 F.3d 1214 (9th Cir. 2007); 10 Zinser v. Accufix Research Inst., Inc., 253 F.3d 1180, 1186 (9th Cir.
11 2001).

12 Certification is permitted under Rule 23(a) when: 1) class 13 members are so numerous as to make joinder of all of them impractical 14 ("numerosity"); 2) common issues of law or fact exist among class 15 members ("commonality"); 3) the claims of the class representative are 16 typical of the class ("typicality"); and 4) the class representative 17 and class counsel will fairly and adequately represent the interests 18 of absent class members ("adequacy of representation"). Fed. R. Civ.
19 P. 23(a); Stanton v. Boeing, Co., 327 F.3d. 938, 953 (9th Cir. 2003).

20 In the present case, Plaintiff seeks to certify a class under 21 Rule 23(b) (3). A class action may be maintained under Rule 23(b) (3) 22 when two elements are satisfied. First, questions of law and fact 23 common to the class must predominate over individual issues
24 ("predominance"). Second, the class-action mechanism must be superior 25 to the other available methods of adjudication ("superiority").
26 Amchem Prods. v. Windsor, 521 U.S. 591, 615 (1991).

1 B. Scope of Review

2 In ruling on a motion for class certification, a trial court must 3 conduct a rigorous analysis to ensure that the requirements of Rule 23
4 have been satisfied. General Telephone Co. of Southwest v. Falcon, 5 457 U.S. 147, 161, 102 S. Ct. 2364, 2372, 72 L. Ed. 2d 740, 752
6 (1982). While the Court may look beyond the pleadings in making this 7 determination, certification is not the appropriate time to resolve 8 the merits of the case. Hanon v. Dataproducts Corp., 976 F.2d 497, 9 509 (9th Cir. 1992). "It has long been recognized that arguments
10 evaluating the weight of evidence or the merits of a case are improper 11 at the class certification stage." Dukes, 474 F.3d 1214. As a 12 general rule, the trial court must accept the allegations of the 13 complaint as true at this stage. Jiminez v. Domino's Pizza, Inc., 238 14 F.R.D. 241, 246 (C.D. Cal. 2006); LaCasse v. Wash. Mut., Inc., 198 F.
15 Supp. 2d 1255, 1261 (W.D. Wash. 2002).

16 The depth of review and explication necessary to resolve class 17 certification issues varies with the facts of the case. Chamberlain 18 v. Ford Motor Co., 402 F.3d 952, 961 (9th Cir. 2005). Where "the 19 issues are plain enough from the pleadings to determine whether the 20 interests of the absent parties are fairly encompassed within the 21 named plaintiff's claim," an "almost conclusory" explanation may 22 suffice. Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp., 150 F.3d 1011, 1023 (9th Cir.
23 1998) (citing General Telephone, 457 U.S. at 160).

26 ///

1 III. DISCUSSION

2 A. RULE 23(a)

3 1. Numerosity

4 A proposed class satisfies the numerosity prerequisite when class 5 members are so numerous that joinder of all of them would be 6 impractical. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(1). Joinder need not be 7 impossible, only impractical. Smith v. Univ. of Wash. Law Sch., 2 F.
8 Supp. 2d 1324, 1340 (W.D. Wash. 1998) (citing Harris v. Palm Springs 9 Alpine Estates, Inc., 329 F.2d 909, 913 (9th Cir. 1964)). The 10 appropriateness of certification depends on the facts of the 11 particular case rather than the existence of a particular minimum 12 number of plaintiffs. The party seeking certification need not 13 identify the precise number of potential class members. Id.

14 Plaintiff alleges that the proposed class includes "thousands of 15 individuals" who had jail booking fees unlawfully taken without due 16 process from May 5, 2004, to present (December 20, 2006). (Ct. Rec.
17 143 at 7). Generally, 40 or more members will satisfy the numerosity
18 requirement. Consolidated Rail Corp. v. Town of Hyde Park, 47 F.3d 19 473, 483 (2nd Cir. 1995). The Court finds that Plaintiff has 20 satisfied numerosity.

21 2. Commonality

22 A proposed class satisfies the commonality prerequisite when 23 "there are questions of fact and law which are common to the class."
24 Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(2). The commonality requirement has been 25 liberally construed. Rodriguez v. Carlson, 166 F.R.D. 465, 472 (E.D.
26 Wash. 1996). Class members need not share all factual or legal issues

1 in order to satisfy the commonality requirement. Rather, "[t]he 2 existence of shared legal issues with divergent factual predicates is 3 sufficient, as is a common core of salient facts coupled with 4 disparate legal remedies within the class." Hanlon, 150 F.3d at 1019.

5 While Defendant asserts that Mr. Huss has "little if anything in 6 common with the diverse groups he seeks to represent" (Ct. Rec. 141 at 7 10), the undersigned does not agree. Here, all proposed class members 8 have common underlying facts and legal theories. Each had their due 9 process rights violated by the Jail depriving them of their property, 10 pursuant to the Jail's booking fee policy, without being provided 11 proper notice or a pre-deprivation hearing. A "common nucleus of 12 operative facts" is usually enough to satisfy the commonality 13 requirement. Rosario v. Livaditis, 963 F.2d 1013, 1017-18 (7th Cir.
14 1992). The Court concludes that Plaintiff has satisfied commonality.

15 3. Typicality

16 A proposed class representative satisfies the typicality 17 prerequisite when the claims of the class representative are typical 18 of the class. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(3). A representative's claims 19 are typical of the class when they are "reasonably co-extensive with 20 those of absent class members; they need not be identical." Mendoza 21 v. Zirkle Fruit Co., 222 F.R.D. 439, 445 (E.D. Wash. 2004) (quoting 22 Hanlon, 150 F.3d at 1020). "The test of typicality 'is whether other 23 members have the same or similar injury, whether the action is based 24 on conduct which is not unique to the named plaintiffs, and whether 25 other class members have been injured by the same course of conduct.'" 26 Fernandez v. Dep't of Soc. & Health Servs., 232 F.R.D. 642, 645 (E.D.

1 Wash. 2005) (quoting Armstrong v. Davis, 275 F.3d 849, 869 (9th Cir.
2 2001)).

3 Like all proposed class members, Mr. Huss experienced a 4 deprivation of property, pursuant to the Jail's booking fee policy, 5 without due process. Although Mr. Huss later had his money returned 6 to him,² it does not change the fact that the Jail took his property 7 without due process. The proposed class members were harmed by the 8 same course of conduct, and the injury of the proposed representative, 9 Mr. Huss, is similar to those of the proposed class members. The 10 Court finds that the proposed class representative is typical of the 11 class.

12 4. Adequacy of Representation

13 A proposed class representative satisfies the adequacy of 14 representation prerequisite when the proposed representative will 15 adequately protect the interests of the class. Fed. R. Civ. P.
16 23(a)(4). In making this determination, a trial court should make two 17 inquiries. First, the Court should determine whether either the 18 representative or the representative's counsel have any conflicts of 19 interest with the class. Second, the Court should consider whether 20 the representative will "prosecute the action vigorously on behalf of 21 the class." Fernandez, 232 F.R.D. at 645 (citing Hanlon, 150 F.3d at 22 1020).

23 24 ²The fact that damage claims will vary among members of the 25 class does not defeat typicality. Typicality may exist even 26 though "there is a disparity in the damages claimed by the representative parties and the other members of the class." 7A Charles A. Wright, et al., Federal Practice and Procedure § 1764, at 235-236, 241 (1986).

1 Defendant has not demonstrated a conflict between Mr. Huss and 2 any proposed members of the class, nor has Defendant provided argument 3 with respect to whether Mr. Huss will vigorously prosecute this 4 matter. Representation is deemed adequate if the named plaintiffs and 5 their attorneys do not have conflicts with absent members and they 6 will prosecute this action vigorously on behalf of the entire class.
7 Hanlon, 150 F.3d at 1020. The Court finds that the class
8 representative, Mr. Huss, and counsel will "fairly and adequately" 9 protect the interests of all members in the class. Fed. R. Civ. P.
10 23(a)(4).

11 Based on the foregoing analysis, the undersigned concludes that 12 the prerequisites of Rule 23(a) are satisfied in this case. However, 13 in order to obtain certification of a class under Rule 23, the moving 14 party must establish not only that the putative class satisfies all 15 four requirements of section (a), discussed above, but also that it 16 fits within at least one of the categories specified in section (b).
17 Blake v. Arnett, 663 F.2d 906, 912 (9th Cir. 1981).

18 B. RULE 23(b)(3): Common Questions of Law or Fact Predominate

19 Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3) permits a class action if common 20 questions of law or fact predominate over an individual's questions:

21 . . . the questions of law or fact common to the members of the 22 class predominate over any questions affecting only individual 23 members, and that a class action is superior to other available 24 methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of the 25 controversy. The matters pertinent to the findings include: (A) 26 the interest of members of the class in individually controlling the prosecution or defense of separate actions; (B) the extent and nature of any litigation concerning the controversy already commenced by or against members of the class; (C) the desirability or undesirability of concentrating the litigation of the claims in the particular forum; (D) the difficulties likely to be encountered in the management of a class action.

1 Therefore, to bring an action under Rule 23(b) (3), first, common 2 questions of law or fact must predominate over the individual issues
3 presented in the dispute. Next, it must be shown that class treatment 4 is a superior form of relief, considering the four criteria listed in 5 Rule 23(b) (3).

6 1. Predominance

7 Certification under Rule 23(b) (3) is appropriate when common 8 questions predominate over individual issues among class members.
9 Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b) (3). The predominance inquiry tests whether a 10 proposed class is sufficiently cohesive to warrant adjudication by 11 representation. Amchem, 521 U.S. at 624. "Implicit in the 12 satisfaction of the predominance test is the notion that the 13 adjudication of common issues will help achieve judicial economy."
14 Zinser, 253 F.3d at 1189.

15 All potential class members were booked into the Jail and were 16 deprived of their property without due process pursuant to the Jail's 17 booking fee policy. The Court has determined that Defendant is liable 18 for this constitutional deprivation to "Plaintiff and other similarly 19 situated individuals". (Ct. Rec. 140 at 13). Common questions of law 20 and fact exist to the entire class and thus predominate in this 21 matter. In fact, Defendant appears to concede that the "'taking' 22 issue" does not seem to vary. (Ct. Rec. 141 at 13). Although 23 Defendant appears to allege that the issue of damages presents an 24 individual issue (Ct. Rec. 141 at 14), it is well established that 25 individual damage issues generally do not defeat predominance. See 26 Negrete v. Allianz Life Ins. Co. of N. Am., 238 F.R.D. 482, 494 (C.D.

1 Cal. 2006) (collecting cases). The Court finds that Plaintiff has 2 satisfied the predominance requirement.

3 2. Superiority

4 Certification under Rule 23(b)(3) is appropriate when 5 adjudicating the case as a class action would be superior to other 6 methods of adjudication. In determining whether a class satisfies the 7 superiority requirement, the trial court should compare the class 8 action mechanism to the potential mechanisms for resolving the case.
9 Hanlon, 150 F.3d at 1023. The court should also consider "whether the 10 objectives of the particular class action procedure will be achieved 11 in the particular case." Id. (citing Wright & Miller, Federal 12 Practice & Procedure § 1779).

13 The only alternative to class certification in this case would be 14 individual actions. Individual actions would squander judicial time 15 and resources to no purpose. It is also likely, as observed by 16 Plaintiff, that the small claims of the proposed class members would 17 prevent them from seeking individual relief. Moreover, Defendant 18 fails to contest the issue of superiority. The Court finds that 19 Plaintiff has satisfied the superiority requirement.

20 IV. THE PROPOSED CLASS

21 A. Standing

22 Defendant asserts that Mr. Huss does not have standing to 23 challenge the booking procedure of absent class members who were not 24 booked into the Jail for domestic violence, for those booked into the 25 Jail following the policy change on January 5, 2005, and for those 26 whose booking fees have not been returned. (Ct. Rec. 141 at 4-5).

1 In the context of a class action, the individual class 2 representative must have standing to bring the claims he seeks to 3 assert on behalf of the class. O'Shea v. Littleton, 414 U.S. 488, 4 494, 94 S. Ct. 669, 675, 38 L. Ed. 2d 674, 682 (1974). A party has 5 standing to bring a claim when he or she has suffered an actual 6 injury, the defendant's conduct caused the injury, and action by the 7 court is capable of redressing the injury. Lujan v. Defenders of 8 Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 560, 112 S.Ct. 2130, 119 L. Ed. 2d 351 (1992).

9 The reason an individual is booked into the Jail is of no 10 significance to the actual deprivation of property, without due 11 process, which occurs upon the collection of a booking fee. A later 12 refund does not distinguish members of the class, except with respect 13 to potential damages. The 2005 revised policy also does not 14 distinguish members of the class, for although the new policy mandates 15 that booking fees shall be automatically returned to persons not 16 charged within 72 hours, it still deprives individuals booked into the 17 Jail of their property without due process. Mr. Huss, similar to all 18 potential class members, was deprived of property without due process.
19 It has been found by this Court that Defendant is liable, under 20 Section 1983, for this deprivation. (Ct. Rec. 140). The Court finds 21 that Mr. Huss has standing to represent the proposed class.

22 B. Defined

23 A class proposed under Rule 23(b)(3) must be sufficiently well
24 defined so that the Court may provide individual notice to all members 25 who can be identified through reasonable effort. Mendoza, 222 F.R.D.
26 at 442. A class does not have to be defined with precision at the

1 outset. 7A C. Wright et al., Federal Practice & Procedure § 1760, at 2 117 (2d ed. 1986). The test is whether the description of the class 3 is "sufficiently definite so that it is administratively feasible for 4 the court to determine whether a particular individual is a member."
5 Id. at 121.

6 Plaintiff's proposed class consists of all individuals who were 7 assessed a booking fee at the Spokane County Jail in violation of 8 their constitutionally protected rights. On December 20, 2006, 9 Plaintiff requested that the class be certified as "the class of all 10 persons deprived of their property without due process of law through 11 the mandatory collection of a jail booking fee by the Spokane County 12 Jail from May 5, 2004 through the present [December 20, 2006]." (Ct.
13 Rec. 94-2 at 2). This request is consistent with the allegations 14 described in Plaintiff's second amended complaint. (Ct. Rec. 61).

15 Defendant argues that, should the Court grant Plaintiff's motion 16 for class certification, the class should be limited only "to those 17 people who were booked into Spokane County Jail prior to January 5, 18 2005 and who were never charged with a crime and released within 72 19 hours or less and who allege significant impact such as Mr. Huss has."
20 (Ct. Rec. 141 at 16).

21 Defendant essentially contends that all individuals should be 22 excluded from the proposed class unless their situation mirrors that 23 of Mr. Huss. The Court finds this argument unpersuasive. A class 24 representative's claims need not be identical with those of absent 25 class members. Mendoza v. 222 F.R.D. at 445. As previously 26 determined by this Court, "[u]nder the Defendant's booking fee policy,

1 everyone who is arrested is deprived, at least temporarily, of the use
2 of their property." (Ct. Rec. 140 at 8). The Constitutional 3 violation at issue in this case occurs following an arrest for any 4 matter and at the moment of the taking without due process. It would 5 be inappropriate to narrow the proposed class to only include members 6 who encountered the exact circumstances as Mr. Huss.

7 Accordingly, the Court finds that the class shall be certified as 8 follows:

9 The class of all individuals, from May 5, 2004 to December 20, 10 2006, who were deprived of their property pursuant to the booking 11 fee policy of the Spokane County Jail without being provided the 12 constitutionally guaranteed due process of law.

13 The Court finds this class is clear and precise and appropriate given 14 the facts and allegations in this case.

15 V. CLASS COUNSEL

16 A Court that certifies a class must appoint class counsel. Fed.
17 R. Civ. P. 23(g)(1)(A). In evaluating Plaintiff's motion, the Court 18 has considered the following factors to the extent they are reflected 19 in the record: "the work counsel has done in identifying or 20 investigating potential claims in the action," "counsel's experience 21 in handling class actions, other complex litigation, and claims of the 22 type asserted in the action," "counsel's knowledge of the applicable 23 law," and "the resources counsel will commit to representing the 24 class." Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(g)(1)(C). Having considered these 25 factors, the Court is satisfied that Plaintiff's counsel of record 26 will fairly and adequately represent the interests of the class. Fed.
R. Civ. P. 23(g)(1)(B). Accordingly, it is ordered that Plaintiff's counsel of record shall serve as class counsel in this matter.

1 VI. CONCLUSION

2 Based on the foregoing, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED:

3 1. The Plaintiff's Motion For Class Certification (Ct. Rec. 94)
4 is GRANTED.

5 2. This action shall proceed as a class action on behalf of a 6 class consisting of all individuals, from May 5, 2004 to December 20, 7 2006, who were deprived of their property pursuant to the booking fee 8 policy of the Spokane County Jail without being provided the 9 constitutionally guaranteed due process of law.

10 3. Shawn Huss shall serve as the class representative.

11 4. Attorneys for the Center for Justice, Breean L. Beggs, 12 Jeffry K. Finer and John D. Sklut, shall serve as counsel for the 13 class.

14 5. A telephonic scheduling conference in this matter shall be 15 held on August 26, 2008, at 11:00, by the parties calling the Court's 16 conference line at 509-458-6382.
