INTRODUCTION

On February 15, 2012, the Court granted Plaintiff-Intervenor New York Communities for Change's (NYCC) motion to amend the Complaint in Intervention for Declaratory Judgment and Injunctive Relief filed on June 30, 2010 to include an additional cause of action for violations of the Civil Rights Act of 1871, 42 U.S.C. §1983 and the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. In conformance with that and other parts of the February 15th Memorandum of Decision and Order, the Court directed NYCC to file an amended complaint only as against the Garden City Defendants within 20 days of the date of this Order. This Amended Complaint in Intervention is filed by Plaintiff-Intervenor NYCC pursuant to this Order, and in conformance with the Order, the Amended Complaint in Intervention is asserted only against the Incorporated Village of Garden City and Garden City Board of Trustees.

AMENDED COMPLAINT IN INTERVENTION FOR DECLARATORY JUDGMENT AND INJUNCTIVE RELIEF

Plaintiff-Intervenor New York Communities for Change, Inc., by and through its undersigned attorneys, as and for its Complaint alleges as follows:

I. NATURE OF ACTION

1. Plaintiff-Intervenor New York Communities for Change, Inc. (“NYCC”) is a nonprofit membership organization devoted to improving the quality of life for members of low and moderate income communities in New York. Many members of NYCC live in Long Island and have been deprived of the opportunity to live in an integrated community by the housing segregation and racially discriminatory housing practices that are pervasive throughout Nassau County. By this housing discrimination action, Plaintiff-Intervenor joins existing Plaintiffs in seeking redress for ongoing exclusionary housing practices by defendants Nassau County (the “County”), the incorporated Village of Garden City (“the Village”), the Garden City Board of Trustees (the “Board of Trustees”) and others acting with, or on behalf of, the defendants Village and County (collectively, “Defendants”). This action challenges defendant County’s ongoing discriminatory acts and long-standing pattern and practice of preventing African-American, other Black and Hispanic persons from residing in predominantly white communities of Nassau County and, specifically, the recent and imminent acts of the Defendants that effectively prevent affordable multi-family housing opportunities from being developed on a 25-acre parcel of County-owned property in Garden City, thereby perpetuating not only the exclusion of minorities from the overwhelmingly white enclave of Garden City, but also the pattern of racial and ethnic housing segregation in Nassau County generally, which is already one of the most segregated counties in the entire United States. By these and other illegal and discriminatory acts, the defendants have violated the rights of Plaintiff-Intervenor's members under the Fair Housing Act, as amended, 42 U.S.C. § 3601, et seq.; the Civil Rights Act of 1866, 42 U.S.C. §§ 1981, 1982 and 1983; the "affirmatively furthering" obligations of the Fair Housing Act, 42 U.S.C. § 3608; and the Civil Rights Act of 1964, 42 U.S.C. § 2000d, et seq.

II. JURISDICTION AND VENUE

2. Jurisdiction is conferred on this Court by 42 U.S.C. § 3613 and by 28 U.S.C. §§ 1343 and 2201.

3. Venue is proper in this Court pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1391(b), (c). Defendants all reside in this judicial district; the events or omissions giving rise to the claims herein occurred in this district; and the property at issue is situated in this judicial district.

III. PARTIES

4. Plaintiff-Intervenor New York Communities for Change, Inc. ("NYCC") is a nonprofit corporate entity organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York. NYCC asserts the claims herein on behalf of its members.

5. NYCC filed its certificate of incorporation on December 31, 2009, and had a growing membership of between 200 and 300 New York residents as of March 31, 2010, with approximately 40 members in Nassau County in Long Island.

6. NYCC's mission is to improve the lives of members of low and moderate income communities in New York by promoting social and economic justice. It seeks to do so through advocating for affordable housing, working to eliminate racial and economic discrimination in housing and other areas, and organizing tenants.

7. The members of NYCC have been deprived of the opportunity to live in an integrated community by the housing segregation and racially discriminatory housing practices that are pervasive throughout Nassau County. Such housing segregation and racially discriminatory housing practices further frustrate efforts of NYCC members to find affordable housing in communities other than those that are already predominately populated by minorities.

8. Defendant County of Nassau (the “County” or “County Government”) is a municipal corporation organized under the laws of the State of New York, having its principal offices located at 1 West Street, Mineola, New York, 11501. All references to defendant County include any individual or entity acting on behalf of, or under the authority derived from, the County, including, but not limited to, the Nassau County Planning Commission (“County Planning Commission”), and the Nassau County Office of Real Estate Planning and Development (the “County REP&D”).

9. Defendant Incorporated Village of Garden City, New York (the “Village”) is a municipal corporation organized under the laws of the State of New York, having its principal offices located at 351 Stewart Avenue, Garden City, New York, 11530. All references to the Village include any individual or entity acting on behalf of, or under the authority derived from, the Village.

10. Defendant Garden City Board of Trustees (the “Board of Trustees”) (together with the Village, the “Garden City Defendants”) is an elected governing body in Garden City, having its principal offices located at 351 Stewart Avenue, Garden City, New York, 11530, from which the Garden City offices responsible for all development in Garden City derive their authority. All references to the Board of Trustees include any individual or entity acting on behalf of, or under authority derived from, the Board of Trustees.

IV. FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Nassau County's Historic Pattern and Policy of Housing Segregation

11. Housing in Nassau County is highly segregated by race and ethnicity, making Nassau County one of the most racially segregated counties in all of the United States.

12. Approximately 80% of the residents of Nassau County are white and approximately 17% of the residents of Nassau County are African-American, other Blacks, or Hispanics (hereinafter, "minority").

13. Approximately 84% of white Nassau County residents live in non-integrated, virtually all white communities, whereas approximately 64% of the minority residents of Nassau County live in communities that contain predominantly minority residents.

14. The foregoing custom, pattern, practice and usage of racially and ethnically segregated housing that exists in Nassau County has been caused, perpetuated and reinforced by the custom, pattern and practice of discriminatory actions, policies and practices of defendant County for many decades.

15. Minorities residing in Nassau County have a disproportionate need for affordable multi-family housing that is not restricted to elderly persons (that is to say, "non-age restricted" housing). The County Government is fully aware that such non-age restricted affordable housing is disproportionately needed by – and used by – minorities. However, it is, and for many years has been, an express policy and practice of the County Government to develop and promote the development of non-age restricted affordable housing only in predominantly minority and low-income areas of Nassau County and to exclude such affordable housing from areas that are predominantly populated by white people.

16. The County Government has also adopted a policy of supporting, encouraging, facilitating, and acquiescing in the efforts by local zoning authorities in the towns and villages located within Nassau County to enact exclusionary zoning laws and ordinances that often, inter alia, prevent the development of non-age restricted affordable multi-family housing, and it has done so with the purpose, intent or foreseeable effect of perpetuating racial and ethnic housing segregation throughout Nassau County and creating identifiable enclaves of nearly all-white residential communities, such as Garden City. This express policy amounts to racial steering by the County Government.

17. The County Government's own housing policies and practices also cause, perpetuate, and reinforce housing segregation on the basis of race, color and national origin. With full knowledge and awareness that the minorities in Nassau County have a disproportionate need for affordable housing in Nassau County, the County Government maintains, and for many years has persisted in maintaining, an express and deliberate policy and practice of causing and steering such affordable housing to be constructed only in a small number of lower income and predominantly minority communities such as Roosevelt, Inwood, Hempstead Village, New Cassel and Freeport, and it has done so with the purpose, intent or foreseeable effect of perpetuating racial and ethnic housing segregation throughout Nassau County.

18. As a direct and foreseeable consequence of the aforementioned deliberate policy and practice, nearly all of the government subsidized, non-age restricted affordable housing developments in Nassau County are situated in predominantly minority census blocks.

19. The County Government has received, and continues to receive federal subsidized housing funds from the Community Development Block Grant ("CDBG") program and HOME program. The County Government's customs, patterns and practices with respect to its use of these funds cause, perpetuate and reinforce racial and ethnic housing segregation and constitute overt racial steering. The CDBG and HOME programs require, among other things, the County Government "affirmatively to further" fair housing. Specifically, the County Government must use the funds in a manner that promotes racial integration rather than perpetuating racial and ethnic segregation, must collect and consider data documenting, and must evaluate the impact of its CDBG and HOME expenditures on racial and ethnic housing segregation.

20. In derogation of its affirmative obligations, the County Government maintains, and for many years has maintained, a policy and practice of directing HOME funds to local governments and non-profit entities to acquire sites for the development of non-age restricted affordable housing only in low and moderate income communities with a disproportionately minority population, but not in predominantly white communities and segregated white enclaves like Garden City. The County Government has done so with the purpose, intent or foreseeable effect of perpetuating racial and ethnic housing segregation throughout Nassau County.

21. In derogation of its affirmative obligations, the County Government has not used its CDBG funds in a manner that promotes racial integration, but instead the County Government maintains, and for many years has maintained, an express and deliberate discriminatory policy of using CDBG funds to support the development of non-age restricted affordable housing disproportionately in areas of Nassau County that it knows or should know are already predominated by minority residents and it as done so with the purpose, intent, or foreseeable effect of perpetuating racial and ethnic housing segregation throughout Nassau County.

22. In derogation of its affirmative obligations, the County Government has persistently and knowingly failed and refused to develop an “Analysis of Impediments to Fair Housing” to analyze fair housing needs and residential segregation, which is a basic prerequisite to fulfill its “affirmative obligation” to promote fair housing.

23. In derogation of its affirmative obligations, the County Government has persistently and knowingly failed and refused to track or document the effect of its CDBG and HOME expenditures on perpetuating segregation, so as to conceal and obscure the manifestly segregative effect of its CDBG and HOME programs on housing throughout Nassau County.

24. In furtherance of its policy and practice of perpetuating and reinforcing segregated housing patterns in Nassau County, the County Government maintains, and for many years has maintained, an express and deliberate policy and practice of fostering the development of subsidized senior housing only or disproportionately on sites that are located in predominantly white areas of Nassau County, even though it knows that a disproportionate percentage of the residents of such housing are and will be white persons. As a direct and foreseeable consequence of the aforementioned policies and practices of the County Government, most of the subsidized senior developments are located in census blocks where the vast majority of the population is white.

25. The defendant County’s policies and practices with respect to its use and development of County-owned real estate further cause, perpetuate and reinforce the racially and ethnically segregated housing patterns that persist in Nassau County. The County Government maintains, and for many years has persisted in maintaining, a policy and practice of disallowing County-owned properties located in predominantly white communities of Nassau County to be sold to housing developers who it knows or believes will build affordable and integrated multi-family housing opportunities (and/or has reached agreements as to redevelopment plans to prevent such development). By contrast, the County Government maintains a policy and practice of affirmatively promoting the sale of County-owned property in predominantly minority communities to developers of affordable multi-family housing, and it has done so with the purpose, intent or foreseeable effect of perpetuating racial and ethnic housing segregation throughout Nassau County.

26. Thirty-six years ago in January 1974, the U.S. District Court in Acevedo et al. v. Nassau County et al., expressly found that opposition to affordable and integrated housing in Nassau County is racially motivated:

By far, however, the most objectionable form of housing has been low-income family housing. It is clear from all the evidence that community opposition to this form of housing has been racially motivated. In Nassau County low-income family housing is predominantly occupied by Blacks. Proposals for the construction of this form of housing have incurred immediate and vehement opposition. As can be expected such heated opposition has not been ignored by the elected officials of Nassau. There is evidence of more than one housing proposal being dropped because of vehement community opposition.

Acevedo et al. v. Nassau County et al., 369 F. Supp. 1384, 1389 (E.D.N.Y. 1974).

27. Notwithstanding, and with actual or constructive knowledge of, a judicial finding of this Court that community opposition to affordable multi-family housing is racially motivated, the County Government maintains, and for more than 36 years has maintained, the policy and practice of acquiescing in and impliedly consenting to neighborhood and community opposition to the development of affordable multi-family housing and other housing that provides integrated housing opportunities disproportionately needed by minorities or to proposed local laws or ordinances that would foster or permit such housing developments, and it has done so with the purpose, intent and foreseeable effect of perpetuating racial and ethnic housing segregation throughout Nassau County.

Garden City's History of Housing Segregation

28. Defendant Village has cooperated with, facilitated and affirmatively acquiesced in the County Government's segregative policies and practices, including those that target the placement of non-age restricted affordable multi-family housing only in predominantly minority communities of Nassau County but not in predominantly white communities or in white residential enclaves like Garden City.

29. Garden City is, and has been for decades, a highly segregated, nearly all-white residential enclave, located near the center of Nassau County.

30. The population of Garden City is approximately 95% white; approximately 1% of the Garden City population is African-American.

31. The Village of Hempstead, which directly borders Garden City on the South, has a population of which approximately 84% are minority. Uniondale, which is located Southeast of Garden City, has a population of which approximately 79% are minority. The Village of Westbury, which is located Northwest of Garden City, has a population of which approximately 43% minority.

32. Defendant Village has continuously acted to reject and obstruct the creation of any affordable and integrated multi-family housing opportunities by engaging in exclusionary zoning practices, and it has done so with the purpose, intent or foreseeable effect of excluding minorities from residing within the borders of Garden City and thereby perpetuating racial and ethnic housing segregation in Garden City itself and throughout Nassau County, generally.

33. In or about April 1989, developers of a 18-acre parcel previously owned by Doubleday & Co., Inc. located at 501 Franklin Avenue in Garden City (“Doubleday Site”) proposed a plan to redevelop the Doubleday Site that would have included 51 units of affordable housing under then-current zoning (“Proposed Doubleday Site Development”). Faced with objections from Garden City residents, defendant Village rejected the Proposed Doubleday Site Development and adopted a plan that eliminated the possibility of an affordable housing development on the Doubleday Site.

34. Despite its opposition to the construction of affordable multi-family housing that would be likely to attract a significant proportion of minority residents, defendant Village has not blocked the development of other multi-family housing and apartment buildings that by their design are likely to be inhabited by predominantly white residents. For example, the Wyndham, completed in 1989, is a two building, 9-story complex consisting of 316 luxury condominiums and rental apartments on 12 acres of land. The size and density of the Wyndham is significantly greater than the affordable, multi-family housing which faced staunch opposition in the present case. By its past actions, defendant Village has encouraged and permitted the building of luxury multi-family housing, like the Wyndham, in Garden City that it knew or should have known would be inhabited by only or virtually only white residents.

35. Upon information and belief, with actual or constructive knowledge that government-subsidized, multi-family unit housing is likely to attract a significant proportion of minority residents and provide an opportunity for racially integrated housing for residents of Garden City and the surrounding communities, the defendant Village has not permitted the construction of even a single instance of such housing within the boundaries of Garden City.

36. Consistent with and in furtherance of its policy of maintaining Garden City as, for all intents and purposes, an entirely white residential enclave within Nassau County, officials of defendant Village have engaged in open and notorious conduct to exclude minority persons from Garden City, its public parks, public streets and public schools. Examples of such conduct includes (1) in 1970, defendant Village denied, after receiving objections from Garden City residents, an application by the Unitarian Universalist Church to operate a daily day care center in Garden City to serve 35 children, most of whom would be African-American and from low-income households in neighboring towns; (2) as was recently found by the New York State Attorney General's Office, defendant Village discriminatorily excludes minorities from using its public parks by regularly asking non-white, non-residents to leave the parks and permitting white non-residents to use its parks; and (3) numerous African-Americans have reported incidents of being harassed by Village police while walking, jogging, driving and shopping in Garden City.

The Social Services Site: An Opportunity for Affordable Racially Integrated and Diverse Housing

37. In or about May 2002, the County Government began drafting a Real Estate Consolidation Plan ("Consolidation Plan"). The purpose of the Consolidation Plan was to inventory the approximately 2500 County-owned properties, to consolidate County Government operations, and to sell certain County-owned properties that would no longer be necessary for County Government operations.

38. Among the subjects of the Consolidation Plan was certain property located in Garden City known as the "Mineola Complex", which houses a courthouse, certain administration buildings, and parking facilities. Within the Mineola Complex is a parcel of approximately 25 acres of land located at 101 County Seat Drive, Garden City, known as the “Social Services Site”.

39. The 25-acre Social Services Site consists chiefly of 21.44 acres located on the eastern side of County Seat Drive on which a social services building and a parking lot are situated, and an additional 3.03 acres located on the Western side of County Seat drive on which the Old Laboratory Building and County Garage are situated.

40. Throughout its preparation of the Consolidation Plan, the Nassau County defendants consulted with the Garden City Board of Trustees to discuss the plans for the Mineola Complex and specifically for the Social Services Site.

41. The County Government issued its Consolidation Plan in December 2003 which called for, inter alia, the relocation of all the governmental operations then performed at the Social Services Site, and consolidating such operations with those performed at the County’s facility in neighboring Uniondale. The Consolidation Plan further called for the sale of the Social Services Site to a private developer.

42. The defendant County requested the defendant Village’s cooperation in rezoning the Mineola Complex, including the Social Services Site. At the time, the Social Services Site was zoned “P,” that is to say, for public use. The County Government sought to rezone the Social Services Site to allow for non-governmental uses, which would facilitate the sale of the Social Services Site to a private developer. Throughout their planning of the rezoning and redevelopment of the Social Services Site, the County Government and the Garden City Defendants cooperated, facilitated, and coordinated their efforts.

43. The defendant County knew or reasonably should have known that the Social Services Site presented a uniquely attractive opportunity to address the County's need for affordable integrated housing opportunities, since it was centrally-located, publicly-owned, well-served by public transportation, situated nearby to uses compatible with affordable multi-family housing, including retail establishments and employment opportunities, and lacked barriers that the County has frequently identified as impediments to the development of affordable multi-family housing, such as land availability and willing developers.

The Original Proposed Plan and Its Significant Housing Opportunities for Minorities

44. In response to the County Government's request, the Board of Trustees appointed a "P Zone Committee" to address issues relating to the Mineola Complex and hired planning consultants, the firm of Buckhurst Fish & Jacquemart Inc. ("BFJ"), to assist the Garden City Defendants in drafting rezoning proposals in response to the County Government's plan to sell and redevelop the Social Services Site.

45. During 2003, Garden City's P Zone Committee and BFJ held public workshops to discuss the development of the Social Services Site.

46. During 2003 BFJ and the P Zone Committee also met with representatives of the County Defendants to discuss issues related to the County's proposed real estate consolidation, including among other things, the Village's future zoning of the Mineola Complex and the Social Services Site.

47. In its final proposal, BFJ recommended that a new zoning designation of "CO-5b" be used for the Social Services Site ("Proposed Zoning"). Under the Proposed Zoning, the CO-

5b zoning would use existing residential multi-family zoning controls (commonly referred to as “R-M” zoning) and would allow single-family homes, townhomes and multi-family apartments.

48. Under the Proposed Zoning, and consistent with the existing R-M zoning, a multi-family dwelling would be subject, inter alia, to the following limitations: a maximum building height of 35 feet or two and a half stories; a restriction that the dwelling cover no more than 25% of the plot; a minimum of 25% of the plot must be open space; and the maximum number of multi-family housing units equal to one unit per 3000 square feet, or 14.5 units per acre. The Proposed Zoning therefore allowed for a maximum of 355 affordable multi-family units to be constructed on the 25-acre Social Services Site.

49. In its proposal, and in accordance with the Proposed Zoning, BFJ contemplated the construction of a 311-unit multi-family housing development on the Social Services Site (“Proposed Plan”), with each unit of sufficiently small size (approximately 1000 square feet per unit) and of sufficiently dense lot size as a whole so as to make it economically feasible for a developer of affordable multi-family housing to develop such housing.

50. The Proposed Plan as developed by BFJ expressly stated that the Proposed Zoning permitted the development of housing that fit well with existing uses around the Social Services Site, which sits in a transitional area between single-family houses, retail/commercial areas, public/governmental offices and multi-story parking garages.

51. Under the Proposed Plan, a developer could have constructed 311 affordable apartments and, therefore, could have created a substantial number of racially integrated housing opportunities disproportionately needed by minorities in Nassau County. The Proposed Plan represented a meaningful step forward towards attenuating the persistent racial and ethnic housing segregation that existed in Garden City, its surrounding communities and Nassau County.

Neighborhood Opposition to the Possibility of Integrated Housing

52. On January 8 and February 5, 2004, the Garden City Defendants held hearings on the Proposed Zoning of the Mineola Complex and the Social Services Site.

53. During those public hearings, Garden City residents vociferously objected to the construction of affordable multi-family housing on the Social Services Site, and sought repeated assurances from Garden City Defendants and County officials present that no such affordable multi-family housing would be built on the Social Services Site. Upon information and belief, the public opposition was racially-motivated.

54. In accordance with its long-standing policy and practice, the defendant County acquiesced in neighborhood and community opposition to the development of affordable housing on the Social Services Site and cooperated with, facilitated, and affirmatively supported in the Village's segregative zoning policies and practices by assuring Garden City residents, during the public hearings and at other times, that the County would not take any action antagonistic to Garden City's wishes and by agreeing to act in concert with the Garden City Defendants to reject the Proposed Plan and to permit only luxury housing to be built on the Social Services Site.

55. In direct response to the aforementioned neighborhood and community opposition, the County Government, by its County Executive the Honorable Thomas R. Suozzi, acting consistent with and in furtherance of the County's long-standing policy and practice of acquiescing to neighborhood and community opposition of white residents to any housing developments likely to encourage or facilitate racially and ethnically integrated and diverse housing and acting, further, with conscious knowledge and awareness that affordable multi-family housing was actually needed in Nassau County and, in particular, those areas of Nassau County near to and around Garden City, gave express assurances that only luxury housing -- that is to say, housing that defendant County knew or should have known was likely to attract predominantly white residents -- would be allowed to be developed on the Social Services Site and gave as the reason therefor that given “the character of Garden City,” only such housing “would be appropriate.”

56. In June 2004, the defendant Village -- with the express and deliberate support, encouragement, acquiescence and consent of the defendant County -- rejected the Proposed Plan and Proposed Zoning, which had been recommended by its own planning consultants, and subsequently adopted an entirely new zoning classification for the Social Service Site, designated “R-T”, which had not previously existed under the Village’s proposed zoning ordinance (“Special Zoning”).

57. The new Special Zoning adopted by the Village was unique to, and expressly limited to the Social Services Site. The Special Zoning imposed more severe restrictions on the construction of affordable multi-family housing than had theretofore existed under the “R-M” designation for residential multi-family zoning. Most importantly, the new Special Zoning imposed stringent and unique limitations on multi-family housing unlike those found elsewhere in the Village’s zoning regulations and, by design or foreseeable effect, prohibited the development of and integrated housing on the Social Services Site.

58. The discriminatory Special Zoning permits multi-family dwellings only by special permission and only on a tiny sliver of the Social Services Site -- namely, the 3.03 acre plot on which the Old Laboratory Building and County Garage were situated -- constituting less than 15% of the Social Services Site's 25-acre area. The discriminatory Special Zoning permits at the very most construction of only about 36 affordable multi-family housing units, as compared to the 311 units of affordable, multi-family housing that had been permitted under the Proposed Plan and Proposed Zoning.

59. Even if special permission were to be obtained, the exclusionary Special Zoning adopted by the Village for the Social Services Site decreases the maximum number of multi-family units permitted on the 3.03 acre sliver of the Social Services Site, thereby making it economically unfeasible for any affordable racially integrated housing units to be developed on the Social Services Site.

60. Under the exclusionary Special Zoning, even if special permission were obtained the maximum number of multi-family units permitted on the 3.03 acre sliver is only one unit per 4000 square feet, as compared to the Proposed Zoning and existing R-M zoning, which permitted one unit per 3000 feet.

61. The discriminatory Special Zoning requires that single family homes and townhouses on the Social Services Site must be constructed of such a significant lot size and minimum square footage that the only economically feasible development on the Social Services Site will be of luxury single-family homes and townhouses, which are housing units likely to attract and to be inhabited by predominantly white residents.

62. The Proposed Zoning was rejected and the Special Zoning was adopted by Garden City Defendants with the purpose, intent or foreseeable effect of preventing and excluding minorities from moving into the Village and the housing units to be constructed on the Social Services Site and into Garden City generally.

63. The reason asserted by defendants for rejecting the Proposed Zoning and adopting the Special Zoning was a concern with increased traffic and an increased burden on the school system from additional children that the Proposed Plan would cause.

64. The purported concern with increased traffic and an increased burden on the school system from additional children that the Proposed Plan would cause was not the real reason that the defendants rejected Proposed Zoning and adopted the Special Zoning.

65. Garden City's Defendants' own consultants projected that, assuming up to 355 apartments on the site, the impact on traffic would be negligible, or about a 5% increase in traffic during the evening and morning rush hour, given current traffic for the existing uses. Further, assuming 355 apartments at an average of 1000 square feet each, BFJ projected only an additional 89 school children.

66. The real reason for and foreseeable effect of the Garden City Defendants' decision to reject the Proposed Zoning and the Proposed Plan and to adopt the exclusionary Special Zoning was to prevent and curtail the availability of affordable, racially integrated housing in Garden City and to assure that the only housing allowed to be developed on the Social Services Site would be housing likely be inhabited by only or virtually only white residents.

Nassau County's Promotion of and Consent To the Discriminatory and Exclusionary Special Zoning That Excludes Housing Opportunities for Minorities

67. With knowledge of the Village's discriminatory conduct in adopting the exclusionary Special Zoning, the County Government failed and refused to – and indeed supported and acquiesced in – those provisions and conditions of the Special Zoning that eliminated the opportunity for affordable, racially integrated housing on the Social Services Site. In May 2004, the County Government affirmatively informed the Village of its objections to certain other provisions and conditions of the Special Zoning. However, the County Government supported and acquiesced in Garden City Defendants' decision to block affordable and integrated housing opportunities on the Social Service Site.

68. The defendant County failed and refused to object to – and indeed acquiesced in and supported – certain provisions and conditions of Special Zoning that prevented or curtailed the availability of integrated housing – namely those limiting the permitted density of the housing units and the availability of multi-family housing – notwithstanding its belief that such provisions and conditions of the Special Zoning reduced the potential revenue from its sale of the Social Services Site and negatively affected the County Government's overall Consolidation Plan.

69. In or about July 2004, after the discriminatory Special Zoning was adopted, the County Government issued a Request for Proposals ("RFP") for the Social Services Site that set forth an asking price for the Social Services Site was $30 million.

70. Developers of affordable housing, including plaintiff NYAHC, were unable to respond to the RFP with a proposal that complied with the Special Zoning because the discriminatory Special Zoning made it economically infeasible to develop affordable housing given its limitations on permitted density. Immediately after Plaintiff NYAHC received the July 2004 RFP, NYAHC and a chapter of New York ACORN met with the County Government to present an alternative proposal for leasing the Social Services Site that would enable the County to meet its financial objectives while still providing affordable multi-family housing in Garden City. Promptly after that meeting, NYAHC sent financial information with respect to the proposal to County Government. During an August, 2004 meeting, County Government requested more information about the proposal, particularly with respect to the proposed lease payments. NYAHC promptly provided the requested information.

71. Under NYAHC's proposal, it would lease the Site from the County and develop multi-family housing containing both affordable and market-rate units. The rents for the affordable units would be below market and based on the tenant's income and family size as compared to the Nassau County area median income ("AMI"). For example, rent on a two-bedroom apartment would be priced at $591 for families earning 30-40% of AMI, $760 for families earning 41-50% of AMI, $928 for families earning 51-60% of AMI, $1,182 for families earning 61-80% of AMI, $1,519 for families earning 81-100% of AMI, $1,857 for families earning 101-120% of AMI, and $2,195 for families earning 121-140% of AMI. The market-rate rent on a two-bedroom unit in the proposed development would be $2,500. NYAHC planned to fund the proposed development through tax-exempt bonds, the low income housing tax credit, and other subsidies, such as federal HOME funds, each of which is commonly used in the industry and has been previously used by NYAHC.

72. NYAHC developed this proposal in consultation with architects and other developers. NYAHC's employees expended significant hours preparing the development proposal. Nonetheless, the County Government never responded to Plaintiff NYAHC's proposal.

73. After it submitted its proposal to County Government, NYAHC drafted an alternative development plan including multiple scenarios that would comply with the Proposed Zoning and under which NYAHC would purchase the Social Services Site from the County for no less than its $30 million dollars asking price. These alternative development plans provide for the construction of a multi-family housing development containing approximately 300 units, some of which would be affordable units for families with low and moderate incomes and others which would be market-rate units. Under this alternative plan, the affordable housing units would include one, two, and three bedroom rental apartments with an average size of 1000 square feet and average rents substantially similar to those contained in NYAHC's original proposal to the County Government. Some of these affordable housing units would be available for families receiving Section 8 housing assistance. NYAHC intended to fund this alternative plan through tax-exempt bonds, the low income housing tax credit, and other subsidies, such as federal HOME funds, each of which is commonly used in the industry and has been previously used by NYAHC. NYAHC again expended numerous hours preparing this alternative proposal.

74. Upon information and belief, other affordable housing developers in Nassau County are also interested in building multi-family affordable housing on the Social Services Site, but did not respond to the RFP because of the restrictive Special Zoning.
